TEN BIG PACKERS INDICTED IN CHICAGO

Heads of Swift, Armour, and Morris Concerns Charged with Conspiracy and Monopoly.

THREE INDICTMENTS EACH

J. Ogden Armour, Edward Morris, Edward, Charles H., and L. F. Swift, with Five Others, Are Named.

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—The Federal Grand Jury, which has been investigating Chicago packers, to-day returned indictments against ten high officials of the Swift, Armour, and Morris concerns. There are three indictments against each charging combination, conspiracy, and illegal monopoly.

The men indicted are L. F. Swift, President of Swift & Co.; Edward Swift, Vice President of Swift & Co.; Charles H. Swift, Director of Swift & Co.; Francis A. Fowler, Director of Swift & Co.; Edward Tilden, President of the National Packing Company; J. Ogden Armour, President of Armour & Co.; Arthur Meeker, General Manager of Armour & Co.; Thomas J. Conners, Superintendent of Armour & Co.; Edward Morris, President of Morris & Co., and Louis H. Heyman, manager of Morris & Co.

The first indictment in detail charges all defendants with engaging in a combination in restraint of inter-State trade in fresh meats. The second charges conspiracy. The third charges the defendants with monopolizing the trade in fresh meats by unlawful means.

The indictment charging the ten packing company officers with engaging in a combination in restraint of trade declares that the object or the agreement is the elimination of competition between the Swift, the Armour, and the Morris groups of defendants in the purchase of live cattle, sheep, and hogs, and also in the sale of fresh meats throughout the United States.

The indictment further declares that the method adopted or so doing was first to refrain from bidding up the prices of live stock and then to agree on a uniform system of figuring the cost of meats sent to branch houses. This resulted in the placing of an excessive price on the meat. The next step, says the indictment, was to force managers of branch houses to obtain this price. If any margin less than the price was permitted, it was one agreed on by all of the defendants.

Next, it is charged the National Packing Company was used to obtain information in all markets as to what branch house managers were doing, this information being sent to the Chicago offices of the National Company at the end of each week. There it was accessible to the defendants as directors of this company. These reports, it is charged, were used by all the concerns as the basis of orders for the next week's business.

The indictment also charges that the Swift, the Armour, and the Morris interests held stock in the National Packing Company in proportions equal to the rate of business done by the three houses. The offices of the National Company, it is also stated, were used as a convenient place of meeting.

The second indictment is virtually the same as the first, except that conspiracy, instead of a combination in restraint of trade, is charged.

The third indictment charges that the packers have monopolized the trade in fresh meats by the following means:

By a combination eliminating competition in the purchases of cattle and in the sales of meats.

By conducting the business of the National Packing Company, itself in harmony with the business of the Swift, Armour, and Morris interests.

By removing the New York Butchers' and Dressed Meat Association from the field of competition by purchasing stock in that concern from time to time until control of it was obtained.

Listed in the indictment are the cities and towns where the Chicago packing companies maintain branch houses. The number of these places follow:

Swift & Co., 282.
Armour & Co., 316.
Morris & Co., 82.

As each concern has several branches in a number of the larger cities, the total number of branch houses is:

Swift & Co., 323.
Armour & Co., 371.
Morris & Co., 103.

J. Ogden Armour, head of Armour & Co., one of the packers indicted, issued the following statement to-night:

"I deeply regret the bringing of these indictments, for the charges are unfounded, as will be shown when the cases come to trial. The true facts will then be made known. Misunderstandings and prejudices have been the basis of these attacks. They now can and will be removed.

"The present charges involve four packing concerns out of 900 that are engaged in inter-State packing business in the United States. The defendants do only about one-third of the packing business of the entire country. Their entire profits are not over 2½ per cent. of their total business. This margin of profit is less than that made by any other manufacturing business in the world. Yet we are attacked and assailed at all times and from all quarters. Even this small margin of profit can be made only by the strictest economy in the utilizing of every possible by-product. I feel that our business ought to be fostered and encouraged by the entire country rather than be constantly assailed.

"The fact that the business has been conducted with the very smallest margin of profit is itself a demonstration that no combination to depress the cost of livestock, or to increase the prices of fresh meats, could have been possible. Prejudice has arisen in the minds of many on account of the higher cost to the consumer of pork and beef products. These higher prices are wholly due to the higher cost of livestock. This the growers of the country know. During the period of these high prices the packer's profits have been even less than the 2½ per cent. margin to which I have already referred."

That the purpose of the Grand Jury inquiry was the indictment of individuals rather than of packing corporations was shown when Judge Kenesaw M. Landis, who imposed the famous $29,000,000 Standard Oil fine, instructed the investigators.

"It sometimes happens that a person about to violate the law takes a name other than his own," said Judge Landis in his charge to the jury. "John Jones, undertaking to counterfeit gold dollars, changes his name to John Smith, or the Metals Fabricating Company, and under that name does the thing forbidden by law. If your investigation discloses such a case, do not indict a mere alias, but follow the trail wherever it may lead until you have found, identified, and pointed out the real offenders."

The investigation just ended was the second started by Judge Landis within a year. On Jan. 20 he ordered a Grand Jury inquiry which on March 20 resulted in the indictment of the National Packing Company and ten subsidiary concerns. Attorneys for the packers filed a demurrer to the indictments. On June 23 Judge Landis sustained the demurrer, killing the Government's case against the packing companies. At the same time he issued an order for a special Grand Jury venire of seventy-five men for July 14.

The witnesses who were summoned included employes of the Chicago companies, Eastern packers, small independents, New York wholesale and retail meat dealers, and packers from as far west as Denver.

Moses H. Joseph, Secretary of the New York Butchers' Dressed Beef Association, was the most important witness early in the investigation. He told how the Chicago packers got control of an independent concern founded by the butchers to fight the alleged trust. Altogether more than 200 witnesses were examined.

GOT EX-SULTAN'S $40,000,000

Why Germany Was Able to Sell Obsolete Battleships to Turkey.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 12.—A telegram from Salonika throws new light on the recent purchase by Turkey of two antiquated German battleships for $45,000,000.

It will be remembered that the Ottoman Government recently failed to recover the balance of ex-Sultan Abdul Hamid's fortune, which was lying in German banks. German diplomacy proved more amenable than German law, and the Government accepted for the battleships $40,000,000 of Abdul Hamid's money, which was practically in German possession, calling on the Ottoman exchequer only for the balance.

The transaction is highly pleasing to both parties. Turkey has been able to make use of the deposed Sultan's money, while Germany has been able to sell two obsolete warships and to obtain prompt payment for them.

ARTIST DUPE IN SWINDLE.

Mexican Had Kaulbach Paint His Portrait, Which Got Credit for Him.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Sept. 12.—A Mexican giving the high-sounding name of Don José Pirioli de Elardny, and a German-American representing himself as a Chicago art connoisseur named Emil Becker, are wanted by the German police for swindling a Frankfort jeweler out of $36,000 worth of precious stones.

The jeweler met the pair socially at Munich, the Mexican representing himself as a millionaire gentleman farmer. He had paved the way for making people believe that he was a real plutocrat by sitting for his portrait to Von Kaulbach, the famous Bavarian painter.

When Prof. Von Kaulbach was asked for a reference he said the Mexican must have money or he would not have ordered so costly a portrait. The jeweler was easily satisfied regarding the respectability of his customers, and handed to the Mexican goods to the value stated against a check on the Deutsche Bank's Wiesbaden branch.

The check proved worthless.

CEILING FALLS IN ANSONIA.

Makes a Wreck of Billiard and Pool Tables in Billiard Room.

While three guests of the Ansonia Hotel were in the midst of a game in the billiard room last night the heavy ceiling fell with a crash, wrecking the billiard and pool tables and damaging the walls and floor. About 6 o'clock Oscar Herman and Sanford Erlanger were playing a game of billiards, while Mr. Erlanger's little son watched from a chair near the wall. At one of the pool tables U. P. Upperman was practicing. The room held two billiard and two pool tables. Herman, while chalking a cue, happened to look up at the ceiling. He saw it bulge and shouting to the two other men to run he pulled the little boy to a recess in the window. When the ceiling fell it buried three of the tables. Where it struck the woodwork it chipped it away as though an axe had been used.

The accident caused those in the lobby and dining room to run out.

FIRST AID TO HERSELF.

School Teacher Knew What to Do When She Took the Wrong Medicine.

The fact that Grace Cruiz, a young school teacher, living with her parents at 441 East Eighty-eighth Street, kept her wits about her last night saved her life when she took an overdose of medicine. At the close of the school term, last June, she was on the verge of nervous breakdown, and during the Summer was under a physician's care. He prescribed two kinds of medicine—two drops of one and two teaspoonfuls of the other—to be taken after meals.

Last night after supper she went to her room to take the medicine. By mistake she took one teaspoonful from the bottle from which she should have taken only two drops. She ran down stairs, calling for her mother, and her father, ex-Police Capt. Cruiz, hurried to the East Eighty-eighth Street Station, a few doors away, and asked Lieut. Cooney to call an ambulance.

While awaiting the arrival of Dr. Fowler from the Presbyterian Hospital the young woman said: "I can take care of myself. Get me some warm milk, quick."

The milk was heated and she swallowed several cupfuls. On the arrival of Dr. Fowler he asked if anything had been done, and Miss Cruiz replied:

"I have drunk several cups of warm milk. I stood at the head of the class in training school on the subject of first aid to the injured, and knew that the best antidote was warm milk."

Dr. Fowler said that his services were unnecessary, and after complimenting the young woman on keeping cool while every one else in the home was excited left the house.

HARMON REBUKES MAYOR

Who Wants Special Legislation to End the Columbus Strike.

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Sept. 12.—Taking his inspiration from Col. Roosevelt's speech here last Saturday, Mayor George S. Marshall addressed to Gov. Harmon today a letter requesting him to call a special session of the Legislature to provide for compulsory arbitration and the prevention of overcapitalization.

"My inspiration to take this action came directly from Col. Roosevelt's speech," says the Mayor. "When he finished his speech Saturday he turned to me and said, 'Now you go after these fellows,' and that convinced me that some decisive action should be taken toward arbitration."

Gov. Harmon sent a reply to Mayor Marshall to-night in which he says:

"John J. Lentz and Frank S. Monnett some time ago wrote me similar letters, my replies to which were published. Certainly, in view of the expense to which the State has already been put to maintain order in Columbus, you are the last who should suggest putting it to the further great expense of a special session.

"I am bound in frankness to say that your sending such a letter at this time, and promptly giving it to the press, suggests a desire to make up by fertility in recommending new laws for the lack of efficiency in enforcing existing laws with which you are charged by the public in general."

MORE AIR RECORDS BROKEN AT BOSTON

Johnstone Beats All Accuracy Marks and American Duration and Distance Figures.

SHOOTS FROM AN AEROPLANE

Lieut. Fickel Makes a Large Percentage of Hits—Grahame-White Flies 33 Miles in 34 Minutes.

BOSTON, Sept. 12.—One world's record and two American records were broken by the fliers at the Harvard-Boston aviation meet to-day.

Ralph Johnstone, in a Wright biplane, made new marks in accuracy, duration, and distance events.

An achievement no less remarkable was a flight by Claude Grahame-White of England, in which he went twice to Boston Light and back from the field, a distance of 33 miles, in 34 minutes 1 1-5 seconds, or almost a mile a minute for the entire distance. He used a Blériot monoplane. Fearing that the mark of 40 minutes 1 3-5 seconds he set last week over this course for The Boston Globe's prize of $10,000 might be bettered, Grahame-White covered the course again to-day, and finished his remarkable exhibition of speed in front of the grand stand on the aviation field, where 35,000 persons applauded him.

Glenn H. Curtiss failed to obtain the desired results with a new sixty-five horse power motor in his biplane and had it taken out, giving up his intention of trying for the Boston Light $10,000 prize.

Grahame-White's effort was the more remarkable from the fact that the Englishman has been suffering from malaria in the last two days, and practically rose from a sickbed to go into the contests to-day.

A feature of slightly less interest was target shooting from an aeroplane with a regulation service ammunition rifle by Lieut. J. E. Fickel of the army, a sharpshooter. The officer went up with Charles F. Willard, who went round and round the field, while the marksman cracked away at targets on the ground. There was a large percentage of hits, and from an experimental standpoint the work was considered highly satisfactory and valuable. Out of six shots fired while the airship was going at thirty miles an hour one hundred feet above the field, one struck within a foot of the bull's-eye and four within three feet.

Wilbur Wright and Glenn H. Curtiss were again in the air together to-day, and at the same time Charles F. Willard and Grahame-White were circling the course in various events, four competing aeroplanes being seen at once. Wright, with Brookins as pilot, was engaged in a bomb-dropping contest over the model battleship and, with thirty-seven of his ninety allotted bombs, he made seventy-seven points, which put the Wright camp in the lead in this event, which formerly Grahame-White had felt to be secure with seventy-five points.

Clifford B. Harmon of New York was the only amateur to come out in the morning for actual competition in the amateur events. Souvenir hunters had taken away such important parts of his own machine when it was smashed last week that he could not use it and availed himself of the courtesy of Mr. Grahame-White, who loaned him a Farman biplane. With this he made marks in all four of the amateur events, which will give him the Harvard $5,000 Cup and three other trophies.

W. Starling Burgess of Marblehead came out with a biplane of his own manufacture, but contented himself with short leaps and bounds over the straightaway.

Grahame-White devoted the early part of his flying to taking up passengers in his Farman biplane, carrying George F. Fuller of Worcester, A. W. Lambert of St. Louis, and F. A. Hinchcliffe of Boston on several laps about the course.

Johnstone then went up for his duration, distance, and accuracy marks, in all of which he made new records. He remained in the air 3 hours 5 minutes 40 seconds, which broke the record of Clifford Harmon by one hour ten minutes and thirty seconds. On the same trip he covered ninety-seven miles 4,666 feet, which is likewise a new American record, bettering Harmon's mark by some seven miles. Descending from his long journey Johnstone planted his car almost exactly over the flag in a test for accuracy, his seat being but five feet four inches from the flag, which made a new world's record for accuracy in landing on skids.

The summary of the events of the day is as follows:

Speed—First, Glenn H. Curtiss. Time—7:00 3-5. Course, 5¼ miles.
Duration—First, Ralph Johnstone. Time—3:05:40. Second, Claude Grahame-White. Time—1:16:39.
Distance—First, Ralph Johnstone, 97 miles 4,666 feet; second, Claude Grahame White, 34 miles 4,666 feet.
Altitude—First, Claude Grahame-White, 2,120 feet; second, Walter Brookins, 1,963 feet.
Accuracy—First, Ralph Johnstone, 5 feet 4 inches.
Bomb Throwing—First, Walter Brookins, 77 points; second, Glenn H. Curtiss, 2 points.

The standing of the aviators in the first four events in which points are given to determine the disposition of the prizes is as follows:

Claude Grahame-White, 42½; Ralph Johnstone, 25; Walter Brookins, 15; Glenn H. Curtiss, 11½; Charles F. Willard, 8.

In bomb throwing Brookins has obtained 77 points, Grahame-White 75, Curtiss 27, and Willard 12.

BIPLANE HURTS TWO.

Propeller of Barton's Machine Strikes Gaskell and Phillips.

Special to The New York Times.

HEMPSTEAD, N. Y., Sept. 12.—George Phillips, head mechanic for Samuel Barton, the builder of the smallest biplane in the world, which, with its two-cylinder motor, weighs only 400 pounds, had a narrow escape from death this afternoon. Barton had brought his biplane to the field here to try it out. Gaskell advised him not to, as the large home-made propeller on the engine seemed entirely too heavy.

Barton decided to fly anyway, and as no one would start the propeller, Gaskell finally agreed to. The propeller started off with a 300-pound pull. Before Gaskell could get away the propeller jumped from the shaft, struck him in the back, and struck Phillips on the head, making a deep cut.

Dr. R. B. Watson took Phillips to the Nassau Hospital, where his injuries were attended to. He returned to the field.

Miss Todd has obtained a motor for her biplane. James Menier will install it, and Miss Todd hopes to see the biplane fly by Saturday.

NARRAGANSETT CLUB CONDEMNED BY COURT

Judge Finds W. E. Arnold, Vice President, Probably Guilty of Keeping a Gambling House.

WARRANT FOR R. M. BOHLEN

Prof. Matthews Calls Club a Joint, a Place, He Defines, Where People Are Steered to Lose Money.

Special to The New York Times.

NARRAGANSETT PIER, R. I., Sept. 12.—The trial of William E. Arnold, who is described as the Vice President of the Narragansett Club at the Pier, took place to-day in the little district Court House of the Second Judicial Court at Wakefield, R. I. Scores of cottagers motored over from the Pier to Wakefield to witness the hearing, which is an outcome of the celebrated raid made early in August by Constable John G. Cross.

The courtroom was crowded, and early in the day Sheriff John R. Wilcox had to take extreme measures to clear it of curiosity seekers in order to make way for those whose business brought them to the trial.

Many well-known people, including several members of the Summer colony, were summoned and appeared as witnesses, among them Prof. Brander Matthews of Columbia University, Dr. Charles Hitchcock of New York, Walter A. Nye, proprietor of the Hotel Imperial at the Pier; James S. Y. Ivins, and William M. Ivins of New York and Narragansett.

At the conclusion of the session late this afternoon Judge Nathan W. Lewis found that William E. Arnold, who was charged with maintaining a gambling nuisance, is "probably guilty." Arnold waived examination and gave bail in $3,000, which was furnished by J. C. Tucker of Narragansett Pier. He was also requested by the court to appear before the Grand Jury in the Superior Court of this district on the third Monday in November.

The decision was by no means a surprise, the defendant's attorneys, John B. Reid of Providence, a law partner of former Governor Higgins of Rhode Island, and Frederick C. Olney of Providence and Wakefield.

Nathan B. Littlefield of Providence conducted the case for the prosecution, assisted by William M. Ivins of New York, through the courtesy of the court.

Constable John G. Cross, the first witness, stated that on the night of the raid, Aug. 7, he was accompanied by a band of deputies, including James S. Y. Ivins, George L. Cutting, George Tennant, and Samuel Brown. He admitted when examined by Attorney Fitzgerald that he wore a long raincoat, a slouch hat, and that he was armed with a blackjack in one hand and an axe in the other. He also carried a revolver, which was concealed. At the door of the club Cross said he encountered a doorkeeper named Powers, who was held by Mr. Ivins until the rest of them could make their way up stairs.

Cross then proceeded to give a description of the gambling place, which is said to be one of the finest establishments of the kind in New England. The room is a large one, with frescoed walls, and hung with elegant tapestries. On the walls were two paintings.

"Mr. Arnold told me that he had been offered $1,000 for one of these pictures," Cross said.

When asked whom he saw there Cross testified:

"There were about thirty persons there, women and men. A part of the company were playing at the roulette wheels, some were talking, and others were at the hazard table. There were three roulette wheels, a hazard game, and a faro bank. I saw the wheel spinning and chips being used."

Cross stated that he secured about $136 in money, the bills being of various denominations, some large, others one-dollar bills. He produced a roll of bills, chips, and score cards, and five roulette balls.

When asked to describe a hazard table he said that he understood the name was a fashionable term for the game of craps, a definition which brought laughter.

Cross stated that he entered the clubhouse at 12:07, and that he remained there about nine hours.

"Just after I got the people I found there in a corner," the witness went on, "I asked for their names, and in most cases the names given were fictitious. Mr. Arnold asked to see my warrant and wanted to know why I came in without one, saying he had been at the Pier for five years and that this was the first time he had been raided. He demanded why I singled him out and what grudge I had against him."

James S. Y. Ivins, called to the stand, gave similar evidence.

"Your position is that of a reformer, is it not?" asked Mr. Fitzgerald.

"Yes."

"Did you ever play any game of chance?"

"I have played faro."

Prof. Brander Matthews testified that the reputation of the Narragansett Club was bad, and that it was a matter of common talk at the Pier. He spoke of the club as a "joint," and was asked to define what he meant by the word.

"My definition for a 'joint,'" he said, "is a place where people are steered in sober or drunk to lose money, and that definition of a 'joint' is true of every gambling place in the world."

The name of Robert M. Bohlen was then called by the court, but Mr. Bohlen, who is a Philadelphian, did not answer. He was subpoenaed by Constable Cross on Sept. 5.

Mr. Littlefield then asked permission from the court to issue a writ of attachment for Mr. Bohlen, which the court granted.

W. A. Nye testified that Mr. Bohlen had talked with him about the gambling case and that he said he would appear and testify that the Narragansett Club was a gambling place. Attorney Fitzgerald said Mr. Bohlen's non-appearance refuted the testimony of Nye.

The case of Police Chief James D. Caswell, charged with malfeasance in office, was continued to Oct. 3.

THINKS ROOSEVELT WILL BEAT SHERMAN

After a Conference at Sagamore Hill Griscom Says the Old Guard Will Lose.

A FIGHT IN CONVENTION

Conferees Discuss Gubernatorial Candidates and Prendergast's Name Comes Up.

OYSTER BAY, L. I., Sept. 12.—Col. Theodore Roosevelt meant what he said when he announced on his return from his Western trip that he was going home "to fight the bosses."

"Col. Roosevelt's name will certainly be presented to the Republican State Convention as a candidate for Temporary Chairman," said Lloyd C. Griscom, President of the New York County Republican Committee, to-night, after a conference of several hours at Sagamore Hill, in which the political situation in this State was discussed in all its aspects by Col. Roosevelt and the leaders of the progressive movement within the party.

"Moreover," he added, "we can count on a majority of the delegates."

In conference with Mr. Griscom and Col. Roosevelt on the broad veranda at Sagamore Hill were Representative Herbert Parsons, a close friend of the ex-President and Mr. Griscom's own predecessor; Representative William M. Calder of Brooklyn, Controller William A. Prendergast of New York City, F. J. H. Kracke, Naval Officer of the Port, and Postmaster E. W. Voorhis of Brooklyn.

Mr. Griscom admitted that the subject of candidates for Governor had been discussed, but not one name, he said, had been considered to the exclusion of others, as before a choice could be made the preferences of State leaders from every section must be learned.

The names of W. H. Hotchkiss, State Superintendent of Insurance, and of Clarke Williams, State Controller, which from time to time have been mentioned as in line for a possible combination, had not come up for consideration, he said, but, although he did not say so, it is known that Mr. Prendergast's name was among those discussed.

The Controller himself was asked if he was a candidate and laughingly replied that he was not.

"Could anything happen between now and Sept. 27 to change your mind?" he was asked.

"I don't know," he answered guardedly.

Neither Mr. Kracke nor Mr. Parsons would comment on the political situation as revealed at the conference with Col. Roosevelt, but Mr. Griscom was emphatic on one point.

"President Taft and Col. Roosevelt," said he, "are in perfect accord."

All that Col. Roosevelt would say was:

"These gentlemen came to discuss the State situation. They report satisfactory progress."

He was told of the Democratic victory in Maine, but had nothing to say about it.

Mr. Griscom had received no intimation, he said, that the name of Vice President Sherman would be withdrawn as a candidate for Temporary Chairman of the State Convention. The name of Col. Roosevelt will be presented, notwithstanding.

ROOSEVELT GOING UP-STATE.

He Will Speak to the Farmers at the State Fair in Syracuse.

Col. Roosevelt has accepted an invitation to speak at the State Fair in Syracuse next Saturday. This announcement was made by Lloyd C. Griscom, President of the Republican County Committee at Delmonico's last night, where he was seen by a TIMES reporter, after his return from Sagamore Hill.

On this occasion Col. Roosevelt will have an opportunity to address farmers from every section of the State who visit Syracuse in large numbers during the fair week. Mr. Griscom intimated that the speech would be an important utterance from a party point of view.

It was learned from Mr. Griscom also that there had been a general discussion of candidates during the conference. The names of Henry L. Stimson, who while United States District Attorney in this city prosecuted the Sugar Trust cases; Controller Prendergast, and Congressman William S. Bennet, Mr. Griscom said, had been discussed at some length. In reply to a question Mr. Griscom admitted that there had been some talk of State Superintendent of Insurance Hotchkiss, and that there had been some informal talk about others, whom Mr. Griscom did not specify.

"Would any significance be attached to the fact that you mentioned Mr. Stimson's name first?" Mr. Griscom was asked.

"None whatever," was the reply. "It did not mean anything; put them in any order you like."

It is known that Mr. Stimson is very close to Col. Roosevelt and that the latter thinks very highly of him.

"Is Col. Roosevelt still a candidate for temporary Chairman of the convention?" Mr. Griscom was asked.

"He certainly is," said Mr. Griscom. "When I told him that in his absence in the West Mr. Kracke, Congressman Calder, and I had taken the liberty to make a statement declaring that his name would be presented to the convention the Colonel said he was glad we knew him so well that we did not bother about consulting him before we made the statement. Col. Roosevelt is in this fight to stay."

Will Col. Roosevelt be elected temporary Chairman?"

"He will," said Mr. Griscom. "I am quite certain that we shall have a substantial majority of the delegates in the convention."

Mr. Griscom said there had been no discussion of platform or of what sort of direct primary plank should go into it. Nor, said Mr. Griscom, had the Brooklyn situation been discussed at any length.

"Did you discuss the question of Mr. Woodruff's successor as State Chairman?"

"No," said Mr. Griscom, "that is a question which will not be taken up until after the primaries."

"Are you a candidate for the place?"

"No," said Mr. Griscom, with a smile. The name of former State Supt. of Public Works N. V. V. Franchot of Niagara Falls has been talked of for the place. His name was first presented by Postmaster Greiner of Buffalo, one of the leaders in the progressive movement.

Nearly a Dozen Also Hurt in Hocking Valley Wreck Near Toledo.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Sept. 12.—George Milburn, engineer; L. C. Engler, road foreman of engines, and J. G. De Vilbiss, Superintendent of Motive Power, all of the Hocking Valley Railroad, were this morning killed in the wreck of a north-bound passenger train on that road, near Lemoyne, about eleven miles south of Toledo.

Nearly a dozen persons were injured. The entire train was derailed and turned upside down in the ditch. The wreck was caused by a broken rail. A relief train brought the injured to this city. It is believed all of the injured will recover.

PLAN BIG DINNER TO LORIMER.

His Friends Want to Rebuke Roosevelt—Taft and Cannon to be Invited.

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—United States Senator William Lorimer is to be the guest of honor at one of the biggest dinners held in Chicago for many years. The occasion is to furnish a rebuke by the friends of the Senator to Col. Roosevelt, who recently declined to sit at the same table with Senator Lorimer. They intend to ask President Taft to sit at the head of the table.

The plans for the dinner are tentative, and neither the time nor place of holding the banquet has yet been determined upon. The date will depend largely upon whether President Taft can accept the invitation, and when it will be convenient for him to come to Chicago.

Party lines, the friends of the Senator say, are not to be drawn at the dinner, and Democrats and Republicans alike will be asked to attend.

The Senator's friends also decided to ask Speaker Cannon to act as toastmaster. Other special guests who will be invited are Vice President Sherman and Senators Crane, Aldrich, and Cullom.

TEXAS AUTOS, $45,000,000.

Cost Exceeds Half the Capital of All the State's Banks.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—Statements that Western banks were loaning money too freely for luxuries, particularly automobiles, has led to the gathering of some statistics in Texas.

The bankers there estimate the value of all automobiles in the State at $45,000,000, which is more than half the combined capital of all the State's banks. They also estimate the annual depreciation, for which there is no remedy, at $15,000,000, or four times the annual fire losses of the State.

PASTOR DENOUNCES AUTOS.

Calls Them a Menace to the Church and the Country's Financial Integrity.

Special to The New York Times.

SCRANTON, Penn., Sept. 12.—Denouncing what he terms the "overinfatuation of the automobile, both from a financial and religious standpoint," the Rev. I. J. Lansing, D. D., pastor of the Green Ridge Presbyterian Church of Scranton, last night delivered a sermon which has caused a great deal of comment. He says that more money is spent for the purchase and maintenance of automobiles annually than is spent in church work, and declared that the craze, which he says has not yet reached its height, threatens not only the beneficial influences of the Church but is a grave menace to the financial integrity of the country in general.

Many people, he said, who were regular attendants at divine service before the advent of the automobile, have become so absorbed in their machines that they spend their whole time on Sundays enjoying their pleasures and devoting no time to the Church. He said the frenzied desire of those not able to afford to possess automobiles is leading them to financial excess.

DIRECT LEGISLATION WINS.

Arkansas Adopts Initiative and Referendum, as Advocated by Bryan.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Sept. 12.—Unofficial figures available at 10 o'clock to-night indicate that the Democrats are certain of a majority of the 52 delegates in the Constitutional Convention, and will name all of Maricopa County's nine delegates, the five from Gila County, and the ten of Cochise, though in each case Republicans express the hope of winning a seat here and there on scratched tickets.

The Democrats made their campaign on a pledge to incorporate the initiative and referendum and amend the State Constitution. The Republicans insisted that these questions should be decided after the constitution was adopted.

The constitutional amendment adopted will virtually place lawmaking in the hands of the people. If the Legislature passes an objectionable measure, the people, by petition, can have it suspended until a referendum vote is had at the next general State election. For the last five days William J. Bryan has stumped the State in the interest of the amendment, making from five to six speeches a day.

The successful candidate for Governor is George W. Donaghey. His opponents were Andrew L. Rowland, Republican, and Daniel Hogan, Socialist.

DEMOCRATS WIN MAINE BY 9,000

Governor, Three Congressmen, and a Majority in Legislature Carried in Sweep.

DEMOCRAT FOR HALE'S SEAT

Mayor Plaisted of Augusta to be First Democratic Governor Since His Father in 80's.

WASHINGTON IS ASTONISHED

Apparently Predictions of Republican Defeat Were Not Fully Believed Even by Those Who Made Them.

Special to The New York Times.

AUGUSTA, Me., Sept. 12.—For the first time in thirty years the Democrats made a clean sweep of the State of Maine in the election to-day. Not only did they elect Col. Frederick M. Plaisted Governor, but they also elected 21 out of 31 members of the State Senate, and a small majority in the House of Representatives, thereby insuring the election of a Democratic Executive Council and a Democratic United States Senator to succeed Eugene Hale.

In addition to having complete control of the State Government they have elected three and possibly all four of the members of Congress. The only district in doubt at midnight is the Fourth, represented by Frank A. Guernsey of Dover. The returns at this hour indicate his defeat, however.

Returns from 580 out of 628 election districts in the State give Plaisted, Democrat, 72,708; Fernald, Republican, 63,715.

The corresponding vote in 1906, also an off year, was: Cobb, Republican, 68,087; Davis, Democrat, 60,784. The missing districts in 1906 gave Cobb 1,149; Davis, 608. It is believed that the complete returns will show a plurality for Plaisted in the neighborhood of 9,000.

The Congressmen elected, unless later returns change the apparent result in the Fourth District, are as follows:

First District—William M. Pennell, Dem., over Asher C. Hinds.
Second District—Daniel J. McGillicuddy, Dem., over John P. Swasey.
Third District—Samuel W. Gould, Dem., over Edwin C. Burleigh.
Fourth District—Frank E. Guernsey, Rep., over George M. Hanson.

Causes of the Overturn.

While the election of Col. Plaisted might be traced to some one particular cause the complete sweep of the state can be attributed only to a combination of conditions. First, was the general feeling of unrest which is found all over the country; second, the anti-pathy manifested to the so-called Sturgis Law for the enforcement of Maine's liquor laws; third, the feeling that State expenditures had grown to an excessive figure, and fourth the feeling in many parts of the state against the Ricker family of Poland Springs, who are apposed to the Hale faction.

Since the Civil War but two anti-Republicans have been elected Governors of Maine. In 1878 the total vote for Governor was 128,160. Selden Conners, Republican, received 54,555 votes; Alonzo Garcelon, Democrat, 22,268, and Joseph L. Smith, National Greenbacker, 41,371, with 68 scattering. No candidate received a majority of the votes cast, as was then required by the Constitution, and Garcelon, Democrat, was chosen Governor by the Legislature.

In 1880 Gen. Harris M. Plaisted of Bangor, father of the man elected to-day, was chosen Governor by a fusion of the Greenbackers and Democrats. The total vote was 147,802, which was divided as follows: Plaisted, Fusion, 73,713; Daniel Davis, Republican, 73,544.

The Democratic landslide to-day has started speculation to-night as to who will be the United States Senator from Maine. The name most prominently mentioned is that of Charles F. Johnson of Waterville, one of the leading lawyers of the State, who has been Mayor of that city three times, member of the Legislature, and twice Democratic candidate for Governor. Another candidate mentioned is Judge William Putnam of the United States Circuit Court for Maine, a Democrat of long standing and an able lawyer. George F. Haley of Saco is also mentioned. Judge William H. Newall of Lewiston might also be a factor in the contest.

Col. Frederick M. Plaisted, the Governor-elect, goes up to the capitol with a plurality larger than that given two years ago to his defeated Republican opponent, Gov. Bert M. Fernald of Poland.

Defeat Puzzles Republicans.

The Republican leaders as a rule were at a loss to-night to account for their overwhelming defeat. The weather was perfect and they offered no excuse on that line. The issues were well understood, and most of the speakers had confined themselves to State matters, scarcely mentioning National affairs.

Gov. Fernald's administration was stoutly defended against Democratic criticism of extravagance, and most of the voters had an opportunity of seeing and hearing the candidate, while a few speakers from outside the State, including Congressman McKinlay of California, came here to help.

Close political observers heard mutterings, not loud, but deep, during the campaign. The so-called Old Guard had to stand a lot of party criticism, and even the leaders were out of harmony with a new element which had begun to manifest itself, especially in the western part of the State. It was hoped among the backers of the administration of Gov. Fernald that this unrest would subside, and much dependence was placed on the old-time loyalty of the farming vote in the back counties.

But insurgency was in the air. The rural voter had been absorbing ideas out of the State as well as in it, and this was particularly manifest in the Third District, where Congressman Burleigh, with an eighteen-year record at Washington, found himself to-night defeated by his old-time opponent, Samuel W. Gould of Skowhegan.

Swasey's Danger Foreseen.

The victory of Daniel W. McGillicuddy of Lewiston in the Second District was not so surprising, as Congressman John P. Swasey of Canton narrowly missed defeat in his first election two years ago. McGillicuddy served two terms as Mayor of Lewiston and has been prominent in party affairs for many years. He was Chairman of the last State convention and raised the battle cry of extravagance, which proved one of the most effective in the campaign.

In the First District Asher C. Hinds, whose talents as a parliamentarian were discovered years ago by Thomas B. Reed, and who has sat behind half a dozen Speakers, including Joseph G. Cannon, was strongly fought by former Sheriff William M. Pennell, and late to-night the latter's election was also conceded by Mr. Boyd, the Republican State Chairman.

That insurgency has spread as far as the Fourth District and up into Aroostook County, where Congressman Frank E. Guernsey of Dover was opposed by George M. Hanson of Calais, was also disclosed by the early returns, and the result late to-night was in doubt.

The election passed off without any untoward incident—in fact, it was one of the quietest in years. The vote was about an average one, and the total will run about 140,000.

Fernald Admits Defeat.

Gov. Bert M. Fernald of Poland said to-night:

"I have no doubt from the returns at hand that Mr. Plaisted has been elected by from 3,000 to 5,000. I don't understand why the vote should take such a sudden change in all parts of the State."

From the beginning the returns showed that the Democrats had won a victory, but the extent of it was not known until late. When fifty-seven election districts were in it was seen that the net Democratic gain to a district was 22, and a plurality of 5,978 was in sight. These figures included many from Augusta, where Mr. Plaisted was strongest, and there was a drop in the otners that immediately followed.

When 101 districts had been reported the ratio was down to a net gain of 19 with the probable plurality 4,100. Then came the only hope of the Republicans of the night. They believed that other returns would steadily cut down the lead gained in Augusta and that when the country districts began to show it would be found that the Democrats again had counted too much on the early figures. From that time on, however, the Democratic ratio steadily increased.

With 157 districts it had climbed to 20.7, with a possible plurality of 4,935; with 353 districts the ratio was 25.5 and the probable plurality 7,950, and with 490 districts the ratio went up to 27.3, with the probable plurality raised to 8,980. The country districts, on which the Republicans had counted, were showing a greater spirit of rebellion than the cities.

BEVERLY, Mass., Sept. 12.—No comment on the results of the Maine election was given out at the Summer White House to-night, although President Taft was informed of the general nature of the returns.

OYSTER BAY, L. I., Sept. 12.—When Theodore Roosevelt was acquainted here to-night with the result of the elections in Maine the only comment he would make was: "I have nothing to say, nothing."

GOVERNOR-ELECT AN EDITOR.

Plaisted Is the Son of the Last Democratic Governor of Maine.

Special to The New York Times.

AUGUSTA, Me., Sept. 12.—Mayor Frederick W. Plaisted of Augusta, the Governor-elect, was born at Bangor, Me., July 26, 1865. He is the son of Harris M. Plaisted, the last Democratic Governor the State has had. This fact perhaps brought him many votes from the older members of his party. His title of "Colonel" was not earned in war.

He is the publisher of The New Age, a Democratic weekly, and his father went from the editorial chair of that paper to the Executive Chamber of the State House. He is widely known as a "good fellow" and an able man.

He was educated in the common schools of Bangor and at St. Johnsbury Academy, Vermont, where he was graduated in 1884. He began his work as a newspaper man in 1885 as editor of The North Star at Presque Isle, Me. When he became of age he went to Augusta and became business manager of The New Age, which has for many years been one of the leading papers of the State.

Three years later he bought the interest of his father's partner. The New Age was established in 1867, edited first by Eben F. Pillsbury, and later by Daniel L. Pike, who had been editor of The Age, established in 1831, of which Melville W. Fuller, late Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, was editor in 1856.

In July, 1883, Gen. Plaisted bought the plant, and in 1898 was succeeded as editor and proprietor by his son, who has continued the newspaper to the present time.

Mayor Plaisted is one of the best-known men in Maine. He was the nominee of the Democratic Party for Congress at a special election in 1897 and was again the nominee in 1898, being defeated both times. He was elected Mayor of Augusta in 1906 and re-elected in 1907 and in 1908, in each election carrying six of the eight wards. He is the first Democratic Mayor with a single exception to be elected in Augusta for a period of forty years.

Under the administration of Mayor Plaisted a great deal of permanent work was done. Miles of concrete and granolithic sidewalks were built, sewers laid, and streets macadamized. He was defeated for Mayor in 1909 and re-elected in 1910.

Mayor Plaisted was elected Sheriff of Kennebec County for two years in September, 1906, the first Democratic Sheriff to be elected since the county was established in 1799. He served ten years on the village District School Board and was Chairman during the last three years.

He was delegate at large to the Democratic National Conventions of 1896 and 1900 at Chicago and Kansas City. He was for four years a member of the Democratic Congressional Committee and was Chairman of the Democratic State Convention in 1906.

Mr. Plaisted is prominent in Freemasonry. He took an active part in the erection of the Augusta Masonic Temple in 1894. He was Grand High Priest of the Grand Royal Arch Chapter of Maine in 1901, and Grand Commander of the Grand Commandery of Maine in 1902. He is also an Elk and has been Exalted Ruler of the local lodge.

He was married on Feb. 10, 1907, to Miss Frances Gulifer, daughter of the late Capt. Henry Gulifer of Millbridge.

DEMOCRATIC SENATE TIMBER.

Charles F. Johnson or Obadiah Gardiner Might Get Hale's Seat.

Special to The New York Times.

AUGUSTA, Me., Sept. 12.—If the Maine Democrats' claim that they have carried the Legislature at the election to-day is justified by the complete returns an interesting question arises as to the successor of Senator Eugene Hale after March 4. If the Legislature turns out to be Democratic this new Senator will be the first of that political faith since civil war times. Senator B. W. Bradbury, who died at a ripe old age here a few years ago, was the last of the Democratic Senatorial line from the Pine Tree State.

Probably Charles F. Johnson of Waterville would be the most likely Democratic successor of Senator Hale. He is a lawyer and has repeatedly been a Democratic candidate for office—including that of Governor. He has been recognized as a leader of the Democratic Party, is a middle-aged man of exceptional ability, and belongs to a Democratic coterie of central Maine who have been aggressive in fighting the party battles.

Undoubtedly, too, if the Legislature is Democratic there will be a strong call for the election of Obadiah Gardiner of Rockland. He is a prominent Granger, and was the Democratic candidate who came near being elected Governor two years ago. Probably others would figure in the contest, but one of these two would almost certainly be chosen.

Mr. Hale's successor will be elected, of course, for a six-year term. Moreover, since Senator Frye is now nearly 80 years old, and in such feeble health that he was able to attend only a part of the last session of Congress, it is possible that the new Legislature may have a second Senatorial seat to fill.

THREE CONGRESS SEATS LOST.

Hinds, Cannon's Adviser, Beaten—Swasey and Burleigh Lose.

Asher C. Hinds of Portland, just defeated for Congress by William M. Pennell, Democrat, has long been Parliamentarian of the House of Representatives, serving in the capacity of clerk to Speaker Cannon, and it was predicted by many Washington politicians that if he ever got the nomination for Congress from the First District of Maine he would be the logical candidate to succeed Mr. Cannon as Speaker. Mr. Hinds did get the nomination from this district—the same which sent Thomas B. Reed to Congress—after a bitter convention fight with Col. Fred Hale of Portland, a son of Senator Eugene Hale.

Mr. Hinds has compiled statistics of procedure, and the work, published in eight volumes and known as "Hinds's Precedents," is used by the National House and Senate and by State Legislatures and has been cited in the courts, notably in some recent cases in New York and Pennsylvania.

John P. Swasey of Canton, Me., just defeated for Congress by Daniel W. McGillicuddy, Democrat, was elected unanimously to fill a vacancy in the Sixtieth Congress caused by the resignation of Charles E. Littlefield. He was re-elected to the Sixty-first Congress over Mr. McGillicuddy, who now wins his seat and represents the Second Maine District, made famous by Nelson Dingley. He is 72 years of age.

Edwin C. Burleigh of Augusta, just defeated for Congress by Samuel W. Gould, Democrat, has represented the Third District of Maine in every Congress since the Fifty-fifth. He was re-elected to the Sixty-first Congress over Mr. Gould, his present successful rival, by about 3,000 plurality. He was born at Linneus, Aroostook County, in 1843, and is the publisher of The Kennebec Journal, daily and weekly. He was State Land Agent from 1876 to 1878, State Treasurer from 1885 to 1888, and Governor from 1889 to 1892. He is a member of the Census and Public Buildings and Grounds Committees.

Frank Edward Guernsey of the Fourth Maine District, whose fate is still in doubt, was elected to fill a vacancy in the Sixtieth Congress caused by the death of Llewellyn Powers and to the Sixty-first Congress over George M. Hanson, Democrat, his present rival, by a plurality of 3,500. He was born in Dover, Piscataquis County, Me., in 1866. In Congress he is a member of the Banking and Currency, the District of Columbia and Territories Committees.

WASHINGTON IS ASTONISHED.

Apparently Nobody Really Thought Maine Would Go Democratic.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—The Democratic sweep in Maine seems to have caused more excitement among politicians here than anything connected with the Roosevelt tour of the West. In spite of the persistent predictions of Democratic victory, which have now been proved correct, no one here seems really to have expected the State to desert the Republican Party. Now the politicians are simply waiting to hear how far the Democratic victory extends. As one man expressed it to-night:

"If the Democrats have got the Legislature and elect a Democrat to succeed Senator Hale the world will come to an end."

Naturally the chief interest here is in the National aspect of the case, the Congressional representatives, and the chances for a Democratic Senator. It has been years since a Democrat has been sent to Congress from Maine, and members of that party here to-night are confidently predicting that what was done to-day in that State will happen shortly in Illinois, Indiana, and many other doubtful States.

What makes Maine different from other States, however, is the kind of insurgency that has developed there under the weight of the Hale macaine. It is a state of affairs having little reference to the term insurgency as understood in Washington by Messrs. La Follette, Bristow, Cummins, Dolliver and their friends. It was an insurrection against Senator Hale, and in one district, at least, Mr. Hale is credited with direct responsibility for Republican defeat. That is the First District, where Asher C. Hinds, parliamentary clerk of the House, defeated Senator Hale's son for the nomination. This is the centre of the Hale power, and it is believed here to-night that the Senator, having determined on his own withdrawal from politics, decided to pull the temple down on his personal enemies and gave the knife to the ticket that has been put forward at his son's expense.

The fact that there were really no National insurgents in Maine had the effect, apparently, of driving straight into the Democratic fold every one not entirely satisfied with the Republican Party. Dissatisfaction with the tariff has figured in the campaign to an important extent, but the Republicans who disliked the Payne-Aldrich act found no General in their own party to lead them against the Hale following that had fostered the tariff law. The result was they took their opposition to the Democratic camp and there fought against the Republicans instead of trying, like the insurgents in the Middle West, to change the party from within. In a speech delivered in Chicago, when insurgent criticism of the tariff bill was at its height, Attorney General Wickersham said that men dissatisfied with the Republican party should get out. That is exactly what the malcontents in Maine have done, and Democrats to-night are recalling Mr. Wickersham's advice with every manifestation of glee.

Congressman Guernsey, who seems to-night to be the only Republican Representative to survive the wreck, won his place two years ago by the largest majority of the delegation, about 3,400. Next to him came Allen in the First District, with a margin of 3,200. Hinds tried to succeed him and apparently was defeated to-day. Swasey two years ago had a plurality of 1,300 and Burleigh of 2,700.

Mr. Hale is certain to retire from the Senate, and the election of a Democratic Legislature would, of course, mean that a Democrat would succeed him. This seems only to hasten Maine's loss of standing in public affairs. Mr. Hale leaves Senator Frye on guard and his term expires in 1913. He will then be 79 years old and will hardly run again. This means that the State will be represented in the Senate either by new Republicans or by Democrats, and new men proverbially are devoid of weight in the Senate.

LEADERS ON MAINE RESULT.

Griscom Draws Local Moral—Swing of Pendulum, Says Root.

President Lloyd C. Griscom of the Republican County Committee heard the news of the Republican defeat in Maine upon his return last night from Sagamore Hill, where he had been in conference with Col. Roosevelt.

"Well, it should impress us with the necessity of doing better in this State," said Mr. Griscom. "And the only way in which we can hope to win is by making it clear to the voters that there has been a complete change in the leadership of the Republican organization in this State."

In Brooklyn last night Naval Officer F. J. H. Kracke, fresh from the conference with Col. Roosevelt, seemed not a little taken aback at the news from Maine.

"It certainly is a big surprise to me," he said. "Frankly, I cannot account for it at all. I do not think, however, it will have any bearing upon the election in this State, or upon the National situation."

Norman E. Mack of Buffalo, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, said:

"All I can say now is that the expressions of sentiment which have been coming in to us from all over the country indicated the possibility of such a result. But of course it's almost too good to be true. What does it indicate? You know you don't need to ask that—it indicates a sweeping Democratic victory from coast to coast."

William F. Sheehan, formerly a Democratic Lieutenant Governor of this State, recently returned from Maine.

"I felt pretty sure from what I had seen and heard," he said, "that Maine would go Democratic, but this is more than I expected."

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—Elihu Root, United States Senator from New York, declared to-night that the Republican defeat in Maine was the result of a period of discontent usual in the middle of every National Administration.

"I have seen a similar expression in the middle of every Presidential term for years," he declared. "The pendulum has swung back from the Republican victory of two years ago, and by two years hence it will have swung again to the Republican side."

BOSTON, Sept. 12.—"I am very sorry," said United States Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, when told to-night of the result of the Maine election.

"I attribute the election of Plaisted as Governor largely to local conditions peculiar to Maine. The Sturgis liquor law and agitation of the question of resubmitting the Prohibition amendment to the people had its effect upon the vote throughout the State."

Senator Winthrop Murray Crane said:

"Oh, yes, I have heard of Mr. Plaisted's election. I have no comment to make on it. I am unwilling to say even that I do not consider it significant."

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Sept. 12.—"The result in Maine is of very great significance," said Gov. Harmon. "It indicates a Democratic Congress beyond a question of doubt. I am greatly pleased."

"What does it mean as far as Ohio is concerned?" was asked.

"Well, now, I guess I won't discuss that," was the answer.

MAINE LONG REPUBLICAN,

But Pluralities Were Heavily Cut Down in 1906 and 1908.

On two occasions since 1884, when the Republicans won the State of Maine from the Democrats, who had fused in 1881 with the old Greenback Party and carried the State, the Democrats came near electing their Gubernatorial candidate.

In 1906 the Republican plurality was cut down to 8,064 and Gov. William T. Cobb was re-elected over Cyrus W. Davis, the Democratic candidate. Although many local issues besides the main one of the liquor question contributed to the result, the vote had a strong National significance. Two years before that Gov. Cobb's plurality was more than 26,000. Again in 1908 the Democrats managed to pull down the Republican plurality to 7,653, the smallest in twenty-five years. As in 1906 the prohibition question has largely to do with the result

Except in 1881, 1906, and 1908, Maine for forty years has given the Republican candidate for Governor more than 17,000 plurality.

Maine holds its elections in September. It has always been asserted by Republican leaders there that the result of the State election is no forecast of what will happen in November in Presidential years. Consequently in 1908, when the Democratic Gubernatorial candidate was defeated by less than 8,000 in September, the Republicans pointed to the fact that Taft received a plurality of over 31,000 in November. The Democrats maintained, however, that this was no criterion, as Maine voters had already repudiated Bryan by the overwhelming plurality of 45,777 for McKinley in 1896, and as Bryan ran again in 1908 there was nothing left to do but bury him again. It is now suggested that with Bryan eliminated and a Democratic candidate who is supported by the united party in 1912 the Democrats may be able to maintain the advantage they have secured this year.

Prohibition a Big Factor.

There can be no doubt, however, that the question of prohibition, entirely a local one, has had a great deal to do with the gradual turning of the tide against the Republicans. In 1906 the prohibition question was acute. It was the chief State issue. The Democrats favored and the Republicans opposed a proposition to resubmit to popular vote the prohibitory amendment placed in the Constitution twenty years earlier. Labor disputes also entered into the campaign. Congressman Littlefield's candidacy was the subject of bitter opposition on the part of Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, who sought his defeat on the ground that he had voted against union labor measures at a previous session of Congress. The issue between Gompers and Littlefield was taken up by the Republican Congressional Committee, and for three weeks the district was the scene of a hard fight in which President Taft, then Secretary of War; Senator Lodge, and Senator Beveridge were pitted against the head of the Federation of Labor. Congressman Littlefield came near being defeated on this occasion, his previous plurality of more than 4,000 being reduced to less than 1,000.

In 1908, alarmed at the losses of 1906, the Republican National Committee again entered the field and sent prominent speakers to help out the local ticket. National issues did not figure much in the canvass. The big question was whether the prohibition law should be enforced as it had been for so long, or whether the whole prohibition question should be resubmitted to the people, according to the Democratic proposal. Many thousands of Republican voters were won over on this issue by the Democrats. Obadiah Gardner of Rockland, the Democratic candidate, lost by 7,653 plurality. The Democrats gained more than 13,000 votes over 1904, while the Republican vote fell off about 2,500. The Presidential election was held that year, and President Taft's plurality was 31,584.

The prohibition question has been a big factor in Maine for a generation. It is talked about in season and out. It has figured in practically every municipal election. It has been said that it has occupied fully 10 per cent of the time of the Legislature, and of the city and county administrations.

The Democrats of Maine have more or less consistently opposed the principle of prohibition, partly because it has always furnished them an issue which interested more people than anything else. They made no capital out of it however, until the Legislature of 1906 passed the Sturgis law. This provided for a system of State enforcement by a commission appointed by the Governor.

Republican Plurality Drops.

After Gov. Cobb signed the bill his plurality dropped from 26,816, in 1904, to 8,064, in 1906, the election following its passage. The narrowing of the large Republican pluralities of from 25,000 to 45,000 down to 7,000 or 8,000 may be ascribed, according to Maine leaders, almost wholly to the Sturgis law. It has never been popular either in the cities or towns, and the Republicans long ago wanted to repeal it, but they did not have the courage, the farming districts from which they drew their strongest support always voting in favor of it.

Many complications led to the result yesterday. While insurgency in the Republican ranks has not developed in Maine, there have been mutterings against some of the Republican State leaders, and there was considerable interest to see how far this would manifest itself yesterday. There was some dissatisfaction on account of the tariff, and the high cost of living had its effect.

One of the most important complications, aside from prohibition, was the fight for control of the party on the part of two opposing factions—the Ricker and the Hale element. Gov. Fernald was the Ricker candidate for Governor in 1904, but was defeated by Gov. Cobb, the Hale candidate. In 1908 he was successful, and this Summer he was the unanimous choice of his party. The Riker faction, however, wanted more this year than the candidate for Governor. It put up Judge Frederick Powers of Houlton as a candidate for United States Senator, driving Senator Hale from the field as an aspirant for re-election at the hands of the next Legislature.

It also played no small part in the defeat of his son for the Republican nomination for Congress in the First District, where Asher C. Hinds of Portland was nominated.

The Hale machine, still powerful, threatened to punish the Rickers by throwing its support to the Democratic candidate. How far the Hale followers carried out their threat cannot, of course, be determined at this time, but there are indications that the bolt was considerable. Plaisted, the Democratic candidate, had almost plain sailing. The only opposition within his own party was the dissatisfaction of the friends of Obadiah Gardner, the nominee of the Democrats two years ago. According to party usage his friends considered that he was entitled to a second nomination. In many cases the partisanship of the Gardner forces was bitter, but it cooled off as the election drew near. After the State Convention Col. Plaisted and Mr. Gardner patched up their differences and became close political friends, even stumping the State together.

The Republican leaders in Maine have always maintained that one of the worst things that has happened to the party in that State was the enormous majority given to McKinley in 1896. It set a false plurality mark, they maintained, which had a bad effect upon the minds of the voters especially when the plurality fell below 20,000.

BIG, CLEAN VICTORY, SAYS JUDGE PARKER

Man Who Shared Burden of the Fight Calls Maine Campaign an Inspiration.

RECALLS OLD TILDEN DAYS

Declares That the Extent of the Democratic Gain Is a Surprise, and Is Nationally Significant.

"'This reminds me of the old Tilden days,' was what I said after I had been in the Maine campaign this past month," said Judge Alton B. Parker last night. "There was an air of bracing confidence among the Democrats everywhere in Maine, but the result is a surprise, a gratifying surprise. I thought maybe the party leaders were a little bit too confident."

"Three Democratic Congressmen!" exclaimed Judge Parker when a NEW YORK TIMES reporter broke the news to him. "Why, I had hoped, just hoped, that we might get two. But three! It's too good to believe.

"It most certainly does have a National significance, and in more senses than one. The Maine victory is an inspiration, and, I want to say with conviction, an example to the Democratic Party in the other States.

"The Congressional campaigns were fought largely on the tariff. The Democratic campaigners but echoed the sentiments of the voters when they hammered home the familiar truth that the tariff was imposing too great burdens on the people. Words weren't minced in telling about the tariff. It was made plain that the Republican Party had failed to keep its pledges for a revision downward. The Republican National platform was called a trick, just a trick to get votes.

"Besides the tariff, extravagance in the National Government was an issue that the Democratic Congressional nominees used to good advantage. The two-billion-dollar Congress! The two-billion-dollar Congress! That was dinned into the ears of the people. It struck home.

"Senator Aldrich's admission that as a business man he could run the National Government for $300,000,000 less a year than the National budget—that was used. The 100,000 more office holders who were put on the Federal payroll under Roosevelt's Administration and who are now kept there—the orators marched them by in front of the voters and the people could see the tax eaters and the whole system of Republican extravagance.

"It reminded me, as I said, of the old Tilden campaigns of '74 and '76. It was a campaign for kept pledges against wastefulness and extravagance—for clean, straightforward, honest, above-board government.

"The kind of campaign that was made, the kind of candidates who were nominated were an example as well as an inspiration to Democrats. They put up a strong, popular man for Governor, a good speaker, a man of high character who had fulfilled his pledges when he held office before—Plaisted. And the people elected him, the first Democratic Governor in thirty years—yes, the first one since his own father was Governor.

"And they took the largest men they could find for all the State offices. They got the men of standing to take nominations and make the fight. It all told.

"And they made the whole ticket of one cloth. The men who were nominated as State Senators and Representatives to the lower house of the Legislature were powerful men in their communities by force of character, by known honesty. The very character of the men was so well established that there could be no criticism. There was absolute confidence on the part of the voters that these men meant what they said on the platform. There was no sneaking fear that they would go and do no better than the Republicans.

"There was Daniel J. McGillicuddy, elected in Dingley's old place, beating Swazey. He is in the very front rank of the bar of the State, if not its very leader. He is a great debator and fitted to maintain high rank in Congress. The people felt that he could make himself heard effectively to get what they wanted, what had been promised and not fulfilled. McGillicuddy as a Mayor of his native city had shown what manner of man he was.

"And William M. Pennell, elected in Tom Reed's old district, beating Asher C. Hinds, the parliamentarian of the House, who bolstered up Reed and Cannon. He is a very popular man. He had held the office of Sheriff for the territory in which Portland is included. Sheriff there is a very important office, and Pennell had done so well that he was talked of for Governor.

"The Democratic Party in Maine has been gaining since 1904, but this is a great stride. It has been gaining local city governments and administering them in a way to attract attention and approval. The best men in the party have taken the responsibilities of party leadership and won the popular confidence, which enabled them to achieve this great victory when the people were sick of Republican faithlessness and extravagance.

"Mr. Plaisted told me he had visited every county in the State. I spoke with him at Lewiston, Rockland, and Berwick. I saw the tremendous receptions he got. The Democrats for the first time in their history succeeded in filling the large hall at Lewiston. A third of the audience were Republicans. I spoke for an hour and fifty minutes and they stayed. And you know they go to bed early in Maine. McGillicuddy, too, received wonderful receptions. He has been rising on the horizon of Maine politics for some years. He is the man who cut Congressman Littlefield's majority, which ran into the thousands, down to 1,400 a few years ago.

"It's wonderful to think of an old New England State, an almost impregnable stronghold of the Republican Party, electing a Democratic Governor and three out of four Democratic Congressmen. It is a sign of the times. The Democratic Party in Maine presented no new issues and made no demagogic appeals, but pleaded simply for the abolition of dictatorial and corrupt bosses, and for an honest, economical, and just administration of the affairs of the State. The battle for Congressmen was grounded upon the reckless extravagance of the Federal Government, its attempts to seize by usurpation the home rule powers of the States, and the failure of the Republican Party to keep its pledges to the people to relieve them of the burden imposed by exorbitant taxes—a burden retained in obedience to the demand of the beneficiaries that their party contributions should be compensated for as promised."

AS THE NEWSPAPERS SEE IT.

Editorial Conclusions Drawn from the Result in Maine.

Following are the comments of this morning's papers in various parts of the country on the result of yesterday's election in Maine:

REPUBLICAN.

The Bangor (Me.) NEWS.—Not one sane voter in a hundred believed half the Democrats told them. The Democrats did not believe it themselves. It was a game of bluff from the start. But the bluff passed for more than its face value. The misrepresentations about extravagance were so childlike and so senseless that the Democrats grew weary of the repetition and were ready to give up without a test. As a movement for the uplift of Maine, a case in behalf of better roads, for the conservation of natural resources, for better schools, for good morals, and decency, the Maine Republicans had the better of the argument in every way. The schools, the churches, the best people in Maine favored the election of Gov. Fernald. The argument was overwhelming. All this has been the argument since June, when the conventions were held.

But to-day the Maine Democrats may have anything they want. The new State House addition was apparently enlarged and improved to be filled with Democratic officeholders.

The Portland (Me.) PRESS—The Republican Party was up against a combination of untoward circumstances. It made no difference how excellent an administration it had given the State or how progressive a record it had made. Discontent, unrest, insurgency, dissatisfaction on account of increased cost of living, on account of tariff, on account of the prohibitory law, on account of "Sturgis's"—all these were factors.

More than that, the Democratic charges of Republican extravagance, financial mismanagement, and increased taxation, however unfounded, doubtless made an impression. Besides, and quite as serious, was the factional feeling within the party. It was a combination too hard to overcome. Well, the State has made her bed and now she must lie in it for the next two years. It approaches a clean sweep for the Democrats, and perhaps on all accounts it is better so than have any half-way business. If the party has the Legislature it will have to accept full responsibility for the government.

The Cincinnati COMMERCIAL TRIBUNE—While the contest was fought out almost entirely on State issues, the fact that Plaisted's popularity seems to have carried to success several Democratic candidates for Congress indicates the serious condition which confronts the Republican leaders in the campaign now under way.

The St. Louis GLOBE-DEMOCRAT—Weakened by factional quarrels in many States, the Republican Party is losing some of its easy ascendancy throughout the country. The Maine setback yesterday gives an imperative summons to the Republican campaign managers to put a little more earnestness into the canvass, and it calls upon the insurgents of to-day to fall into line, just as did the insurgents of thirty years ago, when that State swung back to the Democracy.

The St. Paul PIONEER PRESS.—This is the first general victory for the Democrats in Maine for 30 years and has not only paralyzed the Republicans but has gone so far beyond the expectations of the Democrats that they can scarcely realize their good fortune. The press of the State had given no intimation of the possibility of such an overturning. If there is such a subsurface of things generally throughout the country the Danville contributor to the result need not trouble himself to reassert his probable candidacy for re-election to the Speakership.

The San Francisco CHRONICLE.—There are strong indications that the experiences of 1890 and the years following are to be repeated. The falling off of the vote in Vermont, the result of the primaries in this and several other States, and now the Democratic victory in Maine indicate the same desire for a change that manifested itself in that year, and it is not at all unlikely that the outcome will be a big Democratic majority in the lower house of Congress.

DEMOCRATIC.

The New York WORLD—This is the most tremendous political upheaval that has taken place in any distinctively New England State since Abraham Lincoln was nominated for President. It foreshadows overwhelming Republican disaster throughout the country on Nov. 8.

If the Republicans cannot hold Maine, what can they do in Ohio? What can they do in Indiana? What can they do in New York! What can they do in New Jersey and Connecticut? What can they do in any State where there is a strong, aggressive Democratic Party?

It is a new measure of growing discontent with Republican administration. There is a new order of things. Republican extravagance, Republican corruption, Republican partnership with corporations, Republican jingoism, Rooseveltism, and all the evils that have come out of long-established Republican domination are finally bearing their ripe fruit. Maine read the Osawatomie speech with its declaration of the New Nationalism—and voted the Democratic ticket.

For this year at least, "As Maine goes, so goes the Union."

The Portland (Me.) ARGUS—The dimensions of yesterday's victory are so great that they almost stun the victors, to say nothing of the vanquished. The Republican Party of Maine has gone to wreck. The turning of the people against it is not a revolt, it is a revolution. It is a revolution which all the forces of standpatism and special interests will do well to take to heart. It means that this old-time stronghold of Bourbon protectionism is a stronghold no longer.

The Boston GLOBE—Dissatisfaction with the tariff, and high prices make the path of the Republicans a thorny one. Evidently the trend against them is irresistible. Unless all signs fail, Ohio will astound the country as much as Maine has.

The Cleveland PLAIN DEALER—If doubters have hesitated to recognize the complete awakening of the American people in this remarkable year of 1910, the results in Maine are sufficient to afford satisfying proofs for the skeptical. The days of hide-bound partisanism are at an end. Maine has blazed the way. The State of Hale, the sneering standpatter, stands as the unexpected pioneer of the Commonwealths.

The Buffalo COURIER—To pretend longer that National issues were not factors in the campaign is idle. The rising that first appeared in Missouri and Massachusetts and then in New York, at the special district elections, spreads as fast as opportunity comes for action. The failure of the pledge of tariff revision downward and Mr. Taft's fatuous approval and defense of the iniquitous Aldrich law are bearing bountiful fruit. The results in Maine give unmistakable assurance that the next House will be Democratic, that the November elections will bring Democratic victory nearly all along the line.

INDEPENDENT.

The New York AMERICAN.—The traditional saying that the Union goes as Maine goes is only a tradition.

Maine has long ceased to be a "pivotal" State, and its "safety" as a Republican stronghold has almost passed into a proverb.

All the more significant is the news of yesterday's election. For it trumpets through the country the good tidings that no State is any longer to be counted upon as the fixed asset of a party.

The meaning of the news is that the independent vote is abroad in the land. The old party lines run and flow. There is no longer a refuge for cowardice, cunning, or ineptitude behind the fences of the "organization."

By the event of yesterday it is pointed across the sky of American politics that nobody is politically safe who is not politically sound.

There is not a State or a county between the two oceans that is not good fighting ground for the champions of political independence.

As Maine has gone against the traditions of "regularity" and the calculations of slate makers, so most assuredly the whole country will go in the November elections.

GAYNOR WORKS ALL DAY.

Helps Colored Orphan Boys Pull Turnips for Neighbor Smith.

ST. JAMES, L. I., Sept. 12.—Mayor Gaynor put in a hard day's work to-day. He labored in the fields morning and afternoon. There is a great scarcity of farm labor in this section just now.

One of those who has been searching for help for a week or ten days is "Mayor" Melville Smith. He has a big turnip field, which was ready for thinning out and weeding, preparatory to the last tilling before the turnips finish their Fall growth. He could not find men to do the work, and finally appealed to the Howard Colored Orphan Asylum. He thus obtained the services of eight of the largest boys in that institution.

They were working away this morning when Mayor Gaynor spied them and went out into the field. It was not long before he was weeding and thinning the turnips with the boys. The scene drew so well that there were enough men and women looking on after a while to have weeded the Smith field in a couple of hours. The Mayor worked on until noon, when he quit and went home. He was much taken with the boys and the way they worked.

This afternoon at 2 o'clock the Mayor joined his own men, who were cutting and shucking corn. He worked until 5:30.

The Mayor's youngest daughter, Ruth, celebrated her eighth anniversary to-day, and a number of the St. James children helped her have a good time.

EIGHT PRIZE HORSES PERISH IN A FIRE

George Munson's Stable at Hempstead Destroyed, Causing $40,000 Loss.

OWNER IS BADLY KICKED

Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr.'s, Polo Ponies Escape and So Does Accountant, the Famous Stake Winner.

One of the two large boarding stables run by George Munson on the Barnum estate, near Hempstead, L. I., burned to the ground in less than twenty minutes yesterday noon, causing a loss estimated at more than $40,000, and leading to the death of eight horses of fine breed intrusted to Mr. Munson's care by their New York owners. Thirteen horses were taken out in safety.

The Munsons were at luncheon in the fine old mansion, just up the hillside, when a servant fan breathless to the dining room, calling out that the stable was on fire. Mr. Munson hurried out, gained the main passageway, and found smoke pouring down from the mows.

Making his way to the inner row of stalls he opened the first, which held a $3,000 mare, the property of Bird S. Coler. She was balky, and he could not move her, nor did he have better success with the horse of Jeremiah Sachs in the next stall, nor in the next, where he was kicked in the face by the restive occupant. The alarm was spreading, the smoke was dense, and the flames were eating their way down into the stalls. From the line that opened into the court he could hear the grooms crying out as they worked to free the horses.

He succeeded in turning out the two polo ponies belonging to Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., and then made his way to the stall of his own horse, Accountant, for which "Diamond Jim" Brady paid $33,000, winner of $87,000 in purses, with the Brighton Cup, the Lawrence Realization, and other honors to his credit.

Munson scaled the stall-wall, crawled on his hands and knees, forced the outer-door, and, still bending beneath the wall of smoke, ducked out into the courtyard. "Accountant," perfectly quiet until his master was through, himself ducked down below the smoke and crawled out, unruffled.

The Munsons traced the fire to spontaneous combustion, started in the newly packed hay, and fanned by the draught of the feed-hole. Besides the eight horses, there was the loss of 100 tons of hay, 50 tons of straw, and much grain and equipment. Only the fortunate direction of the wind saved the other stable, for there is no fire protection there. Some of the polo ponies were out of it all by their attendance at the match between the Meadowbrook and English teams at Westbury.

It was not long before a thousand people had gathered to see the smoldering aftermath of the fire. First to arrive, with a tremendous rattle, was Charles Steele, dragging after his automobile his big chemical extinguisher.

Three of the horses killed belonged to Jeremiah Beall. Gray Friar, a jumper, had been the property of Allan Pinkerton. In a fruitless attempt to rescue Mr. Beall's Come In one groom nearly lost his own life.

The Barnum estate adjoins those of Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont and Arthur Brisbane. It is leased by Mr. Munson, whose father was John Munson, the Virginian aid de camp of Col. Mosby during the civil war.

AUTOISTS TELL OF HOLD UP.

New Yorkers' Story of Being Robbed by Bandits Doubted by Police.

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, Sept. 12.—A story told by four New York men of having been held up, robbed, and shot at by highwaymen on the New York and Albany post road last night is to-night regarded with suspicion by the Dutchess County authorities on account of conflicting elements in their story.

After the report of the hold-up was received here Assistant District Attorney Edward Conger hurried to Hudson, where he met the New Yorkers, who gave their names as James C. Deery, paper dealer, of 50 Pine Street; Harry Hollister, insurance, of 56 Pine Street; Charles W. Townsley, no business, of 1 West Eighty-first Street, and John Norton, chauffeur. They went on to Albany to-day, but Mr. Conger expected them to meet him in Poughkeepsie to-night. He telephoned to Albany and was informed that they had gone west from there.

They were touring to Albany in a big French car, said to be owned by Mr. Deery. According to their story they were climbing a hill, two miles south of Rhinebeck, at 11:30 last night, when a red light ahead caused them to stop. Two highwaymen, one a youth of about 18, unmasked, and the other an older man, with a home-made mask over his face, confronted them. The masked man covered them with a revolver and ordered them to throw up their hands and get out of the car, which they did. Then, while the older man covered them with his pistol the youth, who was nervous and trembling, searched the tourists in turn, taking $150 from Deery, $5 and an Ingersoll watch from Hollister, and $19.65 from the chauffeur.

As he was about to search Townsley, the story goes, Townsley struck the robber in the neck, which caused him to stagger, and the elder highwayman fired, but hit no one. Then, obeying the latter's command, the tourists got into the car and went their way, with a parting shot from his revolver.

At Rhinebeck they told their story to Officers Ellsworth and Sleight, who returned with them to the scene without finding any trace of the robbers. Sheriff Townsend and deputies also made a fruitless search in the neighborhood to-day. A band of gypsies encamped near the scene said that they heard no pistol firing in the night. The tourists showed a bullet hole in the front seat of the car. They said there was no weapon in their party.

The description they give of the highwaymen fits that of the two men who held up and robbed Horatio Nelson of this city and his guests in a car near Hudson, 15 miles from Rhinebeck, some six weeks ago.

Warships Off for Drill Ground.

NORFOLK, Va., Sept. 12.—The battleships Idaho, Mississippi, Michigan, Connecticut, Delaware, and North Dakota passed out the Capes at noon, bound for the southern drill grounds for battle practice. Auxiliaries towed out six targets. Several ships of the Atlantic Fleet steamed out to the drill grounds late yesterday afternoon.

OLD GUARD WON'T MAKE PRIMARY FIGHT

Threatened Campaign Against All Griscom Leaders To-day Is Apparently Abandoned.

POLICE TO BE ON GUARD

After a Conference at Sagamore Hill a Hot Fight Begins Against State Chairman Woodruff.

On the eve of the primary elections the threatened fight by the Old Guard all along the line on the Republican district leaders loyal to President Lloyd C. Griscom of the Republican County Committee and therefore to the cause of the Progressives has not materialized.

While there will be a good many primary fights on the Republican side as there will be on the Democratic side in Manhattan and the Bronx, it was said last night at the headquarters of the Republican County Committee that they were all local in character.

In connection with this it was learned that while William Barnes, Jr., of Albany, boss of the Old Guard forces had approached several of the so-called Odell leaders in Mr. Griscom's bailiwick with a view of breaking the solid Roosevelt delegation Mr. Griscom expects to go with him to the Saratoga Convention, but that in every instance they had been rebuffed.

The polling places will open at 3 o'clock in the afternoon and stay open until 9 in the evening. At the primaries, voters of the different parties do not as at the general election vote at the same polling places. Two election districts form a unit, the Republicans voting in the polling place in one district and the Democrats and minor parties at the polling place in the other district. Only voters who, when they registered prior to the election last year, enrolled as Republicans, Democrats, or members of one of the other parties are entitled to vote at primary elections. The Captain of their party in the election district where they live should have informed them by postal card of the location of their polling place. If this notice has not been received the information can be obtained from the headquarters of any of the parties in a given district.

While the primary fights this year are few compared to other years and with few exceptions less bitter, the most elaborate precautions are being taken by the police to guard against frauds. Last week Acting Mayor Mitchel directed that four policemen should be on duty at every polling place.

Yesterday the Acting Mayor supplemented this order with another directing Police Commissioner Baker to detail at all polling places in districts where there is a contest one Sergeant with extraordinary responsibility. Here is what the Acting Mayor wrote to the Police Commissioner on the subject:

> I fear fraud in the coming election. Let me again remind you that it is the duty of the Police Department to take every possible preventive precaution. To that end and supplementing my suggestions of last Saturday, I further request that a Sergeant or senior patrolman be assigned to each polling place in contested districts to act as one of the four police officers referred to in my letter of Saturday, and that he be given clearly to understand that he will be held responsible for the commission of patent frauds and in particular if more ballots are found in the ballot box on the close of the polls than corresponds in number with the registered voters who appear at the polls. By this I mean that any such Sergeant will be placed on trial if such a state of fact appears. Election thievery in this city must be stopped.

Commissioner Baker said yesterday that he did not anticipate any serious trouble, but that ample police arrangements had been made to prevent any outbreak, especially in districts where there were contests. In addition to the police assigned to the polling places, there will be a sufficient number of reserves at all stations in the city to quell any disorder. Patrol wagons and automobiles will be kept in readiness to facilitate the dispatch of squads to any place where trouble may occur.

There will be no Deputy Sheriffs on duty to-day at the primaries, Under Sheriff Cartwright announced yesterday. This is the first primary day in years at which there have been no representatives of the Sheriff's office at the polls. It has been the custom to assign Deputy Sheriffs to assist the police in keeping the peace and in supplementing them.

It has been charged that under the régime of some Sheriffs the actions of the Deputies could not always be characterized as neutral. Voters are on record as having complained to Magistrates that they were assaulted by Deputy Sheriffs on primary day because they held different views as to the qualifications of contestants for the leaderships in various districts in which the Sheriff at that time had an interest.

Sheriff Shea, his subordinate said yesterday, would not send any Deputies to to-day's primaries, because no complaints had been made to him that violence was to be anticipated. There is a contest for the Tammany leadership of the district in which Sheriff Shea is Republican leader, but it was denied yesterday that this circumstance had any relation to the altered policy of the Sheriff's office.

On the Republican side, the warmest fight will occur in the Fifteenth Assembly District, where Assemblyman William M. Bennett is the leader. He brought on this fight by seeking to prevent the renomination of J. Van Vechten Olcott for Congress and get the nomination for himself. The friends of Mr. Olcott placed in the field John H. Taylor, a lawyer, to make a fight on him for the leadership. The dead Quigg issue has been revived by the Taylorites, and charges and counter-charges have been made.

Last week the Taylor ticket was indorsed by the district organization, and yesterday Chairman Griscom of the Republican County Committee declared in a letter to Harry W. Mack, who represents the district on the Republican State Committee, that under the circumstances it must be regarded as the regular organization ticket.

On the Tammany side there is a bitter war in the Thirty-fifth Assembly District in the Bronx, where ex-Alderman Edward V. Handy has begun a fight against William E. Morris. Morris is supposed to have Tammany backing, while Handy is closely affiliated with ex-Borough President Haffen, who aspires to succeed Joseph Goulden as Representative in Congress.

Deputy Attorney General Prentice said last night that gossip had reached him to the effect that in some contested districts it is planned to have the Inspectors of Election refuse to permit watchers within the guard rail, where they can see what is going on. 'The Election law, he said, specifically provides for the presence of the watchers within the guard rail, and an Inspector would be guilty of a misdemeanor in preventing it.

In all cases of such interference Mr. Prentice urges the watchers to go to the nearest Magistrate's court for a warrant. In each of these Mr. Prentice will have a special Deputy, and District Attorney Whitman has assigned to each a member of his staff. Judging by their appointments to the Harlem Court, it was assumed last night that Mr. Prentice and Mr. Whitman anticipate trouble in the Nineteenth and Twenty-sixth Assembly Districts.

Mindful of his experiences of the last year in trying primary cases, Mr. Prentice warns the watcher to watch the Inspector, to learn his name and address, to be able to identify him later, and to be sure that every time he writes the name "voted" it is after the name of a man who has actually been to the polls.

Mr. Prentice showed the reporters a letter he had sent on Saturday to the Board of Elections calling attention to the fact that it has been the custom for those contemplating ballot box stuffing to procure immediately before or after primary day the removal of the regularly appointed officers and the substitution of Inspectors who will fraudulently enter the word "voted," without which all the stuffed ballots are so much waste paper.

He took occasion to remind the board that the Election law calls for an examination of the Inspector before appointment, and he intimated that to a certain extent it lay within its power to weed out the undesirables.

On his arrival here last night, after the conference at Sagamore Hill, Chairman Griscom of the Republican County Committee said:

> I sincerely hope all Republicans will come out and vote at the primaries tomorrow. As Chairman of the Republican County Committee I wish to express my gratification that Acting Mayor Mitchel is taking such great pains to see that we have fair primaries. It was reported to me that guerillas would be put to work in the First and Fourth Districts, where we generally have fights, and I have received every assurance that there will be adequate police arrangements, so that persons entitled to vote may have fair play."

Following the announcement of the conference at Sagamore Hill interest in the primaries suddenly shifted to Brooklyn where the fight against Woodruff has begun openly among the Republican leaders. Five of the seven conferees that went to see Col. Roosevelt were Brooklyn men, and this was regarded as an indicatoin that the primaries to-day will mark the opening of an organized hostility to the State Chairman as leader of the Kings County Republicans.

It was pointed out that Woodruff's defeat will be first sought in Kings County, and from to-day until the date of the Republican State Convention the object of the anti-Woodruff district leaders will be to get a majority of the county delegates.

The call of the Brooklyn Republicans to a conference with Col. Roosevelt, following so close upon Controller Prendergast's declaration that he was for the "progressives and Roosevelt in the county and State from beginning to end," has discouraged Woodruff's friends.

The only Assembly district in Brooklyn where the outcome of the primaries appears to be uncertain is the First, where Col. "Mike" J. Dady, a strong Woodruff adherent, is being assailed by Morris U. Ely for the leadership. The situation there took a different aspect when Assemblyman Henry S. Goodspeed flopped over from the Woodruff side to the Ely forces. Ely's men feel jubilant over Goodspeed's turn, and last night they were confident that Woodruff's man would be defeated. Ely, as well as Goodspeed, stands for the Roosevelt and Hughes ideals.

LAKE LIKELY TO WIN.

Mrs. Lilley Working for Goodwin in Connecticut Contest.

Special to The New York Times.

WINSTED, Conn., Sept. 12.—The Republican Gubernatorial contest between Everett J. Lake and Charles A. Goodwin, both young men and residents of Hartford, will be decided by the Republican State Convention, which begins in Hartford to-morrow night. Although Lake, the former Harvard football player, is credited with only two delegates from Litchfield County, he is expected to win the nomination by a narrow margin. The rest of the ticket will probably be as follows:

Lieutenant Governor—D. A. BLAKESLEE of New Haven.
Secretary of State—MATTHEW H. ROGERS of Bridgeport.
Controller—WILLIAM H. HALL of Millington.
Treasurer—COSTELLO LIPPITT of Norwich.
Attorney General—HARRY BACK of Killingly.
Congressman at Large—JOHN Q. TILSON of New Haven.

Mrs. George Lilley of Waterbury, widow of the late Governor, has exerted her influence for Mr. Goodwin, who was her husband's private secretary. She said to-day:

"I am actuated in this by the great friendship which existed between Mr. Goodwin and Mr. Lilley. During his last sickness Mr. Lilley remarked that he earnestly hoped Mr. Goodwin would some day occupy the Governor's chair, and I have reason to believe that in many things of special State interest he and Mr. Lilley were of the same mind. Please do not confuse my attitude with any suffragist idea. I am not working along those lines. I am not advocating anything but Mr. Goodwin's candidacy."

QUEENS INSURGENTS DRAW UP A TICKET

Will Make a Hard Fight Against the Harvey-Cassidy Machine at To-day's Primaries.

THEY BLAME CHAIRMAN DIX

Say He Failed to Comprehend the Real Sentiment of the Borough—Gresser Keeping Hands Off.

By staying in continuous session through yesterday afternoon and last night the leaders of the insurgent movement in Queens County, having for its object the wresting of the control of the Democratic Party machinery from the political ring, were able to put a complete ticket in the field for to-day's primaries.

The new movement, which has taken form as a revolt against the announced alliance of Herbert S. Harvey, the north shore boss, and Joseph Cassidy, the south shore boss, was spread through yesterday's work from the Third and Fourth Assembly Districts into the First and Second, which have heretofore been personally dominated by Cassidy and Harvey, respectively.

The insurgents were not overconfident on the final day of their campaign. They felt that if they had received ten more days of warning about the Harvey-Cassidy alliance they would have been able to make a fight whose decision could be fairly counted upon as decisive.

The talk yesterday was that if the bosses succeed in winning the primaries, the next move of the insurgents will be a revolt from the established party. As a part of this revolt a county ticket will be put up in opposition to the "regular" ticket, and it will probably be frankly called an "Insurgent" ticket instead of a factional Democratic ticket.

The basis on which the two warring factions of professional politicians "got together" became known yesterday through messages passed around to district workers telling them what they might count on as patronage.

Cassidy is to control, in the event of the combination's winning, the Congressional nomination, the State Senator and Assemblymen, and whatever State and National patronage comes to the borough. Harvey is to have charge of the county. He will retain his position as "The Little Boss," dictating all county appointees, but in the event of the removal of President Gresser he is to work for Cassidy as his successor and turn what Aldermen he can control to that way of thinking. In the meantime, before the question of the Borough Presidency comes to an issue, Cassidy is to be made State Committeeman from Queens.

Democratic State Chairman John A. Dix was blamed by many yesterday for the slow start of the insurgent movement, necessitating so much concentrated work at the eleventh hour. It was said that Mr. Dix failed to comprehend the real sentiment in the borough, and considered all of its troubles merely a dispute between Cassidy and Harvey. He is said to have assured them that if they brought a solid delegation to the State Convention, able to vote harmoniously, it could carry off a plum in the form of a place on the general State ticket. The post of Lieutenant Governor was mentioned, and a candidate, Denis J. Harte, at present a State Senator, was brought forward for discussion.

From what was gathered when the State Chairman's visit to Queens was over it was thought that there would be a bowing to public sentiment and a ticket placed in the field that would appeal to citizens rather than to the well known politicians. The insurgent element rested on this feeling of security and it was not until the facts of the Harvey-Gresser alliance became known a few days ago that an organized revolt was started.

County Clerk Martin Mager, leader of the insurgents, said last night that he was placing his chief reliance on the "quiet" vote of those who want new conditions in the borough. If the insurgent committeemen are elected Mr. Mager will be chosen County Chairman.

Police Magistrate Maurice Connolly of Corona, came out openly yesterday in support of the insurgent cause.

Borough President Gresser, it was said yesterday, would leave the borough to-day so that no one could accuse him of partisanship in the primary fight. His pledge to allow the city employes to vote as they pleased was quoted widely yesterday, and it was thought it would affect the votes controlled by borough employes.

The printing of ballots for the primaries continued through the night until an early hour this morning, when the required number were ready for distribution.

DELAY TENNESSEE HARMONY.

Independents Suspicious—Talk of Luke a. Wright as Union Candidate.

Special to The New York Times.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 12.—Since Gov. Patterson's withdrawal from the Gubernatorial race in Tennessee the cry in Memphis and in the State generally has been "Get together." Yet the independents are so far very cautious in their harmony movements. Despite Patterson's frank letter many do not trust his utterance. Up to to-night neither the regulars nor the insurgents have put forward a definite candidate for Governor, though the names of Luke E. Wright, Joseph E. Washington, a former Congressional representative; Chief Justice Beard of the Supreme Court, who has just handed over his office to Justice Shields; Judge Horace Palmer of Murfreesboro, and L. N. H. White of Giles County have been talked of.

It seems safe to say, in spite of the theory held by some that the independents are committed to Hooper, the Republican candidate, that Luke E. Wright would carry the State with a rush. No expression as to acceptance in case the nomination is offered him could be obtained from the ex-Secretary of War, who is not in Memphis, but a canvass of Patterson and anti-Patterson men indicated that both wings of the split Democracy could easily unite on Wright.

There is no question that both the regulars and the independents of Tennessee are puzzled. Cates, Riddick, and other independent leaders, declare that the withdrawal comes too late, that they will be forced to support Hooper regardless of the nominee. But the voters themselves, it seems clear, do not so consider the matter. Indications are all for a Democratic victory regardless of any trade the leaders of the independents may now make.

TAFT GOING TO OHIO, WILL SEE LEADERS

Off to Cincinnati Next Week to Spend Several Days with His Brother.

HE MAY NOT GO TO PANAMA

President Receives News of Republican Defeat in Maine Over Special Wire, but Refuses to Comment.

Special to The New York Times.

BEVERLY, Mass., Sept. 12.—President Taft's itinerary for an extended journey in late September was announced to-day. He will leave Boston Sunday evening, attending a meeting of the Yale Corporation on Monday in New Haven. On the same day he will start for Cincinnati, but probably will not reach that city until Wednesday morning. He will remain there till Saturday evening, when he expects to start for Washington, where he is due to arrive a week from next Sunday morning, Sept. 25.

A special Cabinet meeting has been called for the following Monday, and the sessions will continue almost daily till the following Friday evening. On Saturday Oct. 1, the President will be in New York to make an address before the New York League of Republican Clubs. He will then return to Beverly to remain till about the middle of next month. He is uncertain whether he will take the November voyage to Panama, which he has had in mind for some weeks. It is understood that several of the Republican leaders have urged upon him that the political situation at home required his presence in this country.

During his visit in Cincinnati the President will stay with his brother, Charles P. Taft. Notwithstanding his announced purpose to devote much of his time to personal affairs, the President will undoubtedly be sought by many Ohio politicians. Ohio Republicans are badly demoralized, and the prospect of the re-election of Gov. Harmon, if not of a Democratic majority in the Legislature, has been giving them much uneasiness. While the President is in his home State, therefore, there will be many appeals to him to do everything in his power to help the party out of its plight.

After he returned from the funeral of Solicitor General Lloyd W. Bowers in Boston to-day the President received a number of visitors, and in the early evening heard the returns from the election in Maine. A special telegraph wire had been strung to the cottage, and he had the benefit of through service from Portland and Augusta. The returns, showing the choice of a Democratic Governor for the first time in thirty years, were not at all cheering to him, although he had been apprised in advance of the likelihood of a Republican defeat by ex-Gov. John F. Hill of Augusta, National Chairman, who was in Beverly about ten days ago, as well as other prominent Republicans who had visited the State of late. President Taft declined to make any comment on the matter.

The most notable political visitor at the cottage this afternoon was Senator Charles Curtis of Kansas, who belongs to the regular wing of the party, which was overwhelmingly defeated recently in the Kansas primaries. He stated that his errand had to do chiefly with Federal appointments, including the retention of a prominent Treasury official.

The President has let it be known that he will tolerate no interference on the part of this Government in the election for a President of the Republic of Panama. He is interested chiefly in seeing that the Panama election is a fair one, and that the man elected as Executive of the Isthmian republic is constitutionally qualified to hold the office.

John R. Mott, prominent in Young Men's Christian Association work, called to ask the President to make an address at a meeting to be held in Washington in the interest of the extension of the association's activities in foreign countries.

Edgar R. Lovett, President of the William M. Rice College of Houston, Texas, was another caller. He asked the President to lay the cornerstone of that institution next November. The President, owing to important business, had to decline the request. Rice University was established through a $10,000,000 bequest of the late William Marsh Rice, for whose murder Lawyer Albert T. Patrick is now serving a life term in Sing Sing Prison.

Capt. Scott of a New London (Conn.) wrecking company paid a visit to discuss plans about raising the wreck of the battleship Maine, in Havana Harbor, but the President will take no action authorizing the beginning of the task till a special board has reported. M. M. Mulhall saw him on an errand in behalf of the Association of Manufacturers of New York. The President, at 2 o'clock, pressed a button that electrically opened the Appalachian Exposition at Knoxville, Tenn.

CIRCULARS AGAINST BARNES.

Albany Flooded with Them, but Nobody Will Tell Their Origin.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Sept. 12.—All parts of the city were flooded to-day with two circulars, which bore the label of Allied Printing Trades Council No. 154 of New York City.

One was headed, "Please read carefully," and contained the letter of President Taft, written from Beverly on Aug. 20 to Lloyd C. Griscom, with certain questions following, and concluding: "Are you for Taft, Roosevelt, and progressive leadership? Send the right delegates to Saratoga."

The other said:

> Do you realize that both President Taft and ex-President Roosevelt are opposed to William Barnes, Jr., and the kind of politics that he stands for?
>
> Do you realize that Barnes boasts that Albany is so thoroughly controlled by him that not even the wishes of Taft, Roosevelt, and Hughes are of any importance?
>
> Do you know that Barnes feels so secure about your support that he is spending his time in New York City issuing daily statements that are opposed to the progressive views of Taft, Roosevelt, and Hughes?
>
> Do you realize that in these statements he neglects no opportunity to be as insulting as possible to Theodore Roosevelt?

Nobody has been found here who can say where the circulars came from. The persons who took them into stores and other places would not reveal their identity or by whom they were employed.

In his leading editorial in The Evening Journal to-night Mr. Barnes said:

> New York cannot afford to take her stand with Kansas and Iowa in opposition to the Administration of President Taft. A ringing declaration will serve notice to the Republicans throughout the Nation that at this crisis in the affairs of the party, when influences are endeavoring to lead it from its time-honored paths into the jungles of radicalism, New York is firm and steadfast.
>
> There should be no time-serving at Saratoga, no conciliation with the element which, in the hope of victory, would seek to secure it with treachery to the party name.
>
> President Taft is not unmindful of the conspiracy, which has gained some headway, to Bryanize the Republican Party. In his position as he conceives it, and rightly, it is not his function to do more than to indicate, as he did at St. Paul, his attitude upon public matters.

Piles. Candidates for three seats in Congress and candidates for the State Legislature will also be nominated.

The principal Republican candidates for United States Senator are James A. Ashton of Tacoma, regular; Thomas Burke of Seattle, regular, and Miles Poindexter of Spokane, insurgent. The Democratic candidates for Senator are George H. Cotterill of Seattle and Patrick S. Byrne of Spokane.

Grays and browns divide honors in the new Fall Suits for Men.

It is difficult to displace a favorite when that favorite has most substantial reasons for its existence.

Gray is a grateful coloring—restful to the eye and rarely tiring its beholders. Brown, too, is an unobtrusive coloring—lending itself to many varieties of shading and forms of pattern.

Both these colorings are liberally sprinkled through our Fall assortments of men's apparel, but in no single instance will you find a commonplace example of either.

Just as our models are exclusive, so, too, will you find the same characteristic distinction in the materials we use.

"Always in Good Humor"

At My Stetson Hat Store

Stetson Hats keep my customers cheered up, too.

I never could figure out why people say "mad as a hatter."

Anyhow, I don't believe any of my customers ever saw me mad.

Nor any of my clerks mad, either.

Maybe it's because I sell Stetson Hats. They never cause any grouches.

And because every man who comes into either of my stores gets courteous treatment and a square deal.

So no one ever has occasion to get "huffy" or "sore."

Everybody—on both sides of the counter—is always in good humor.

If any hat bought of me isn't as good as it ought to be, I want the purchaser to let me know, so I can give him a new hat or his money back.

We don't get much practice at refunding money, but we give it back just as cheerfully as we take it.

My store in the Metropolitan Life Building is the only one in New York with a complete line of Stetsons always in stock—and nothing but Stetsons—every style of hat the John B. Stetson Co. makes—$3.50 to $12.

CAVALIERI'S BROTHER GOES TO HER DEFENSE

Admits She Had a Prenuptial Agreement with Chanler, but Didn't Get All His Fortune.

SINGER SOON TO BE HERE

Her Equity in Her Husband's Property Not Worth Very Much, the Brother Thinks.

Oreste Cavalieri, brother of Mme. Lina Cavalieri, the opera singer, who is in New York looking after her interests, went to the defense of his sister yesterday. He denied the story that Robert Winthrop Chanler had made a prenuptial agreement by which he deeded over to his bride, Mme. Cavalieri, all his fortune, getting an allowance of only $20 a month from her.

It was admitted, however, by Mr. Cavalieri, his sister's lawyers, and Mr. Chanler's attorney that a prenuptial settlement had been made. Just what the terms of the settlement are only Mr. Cavalieri would tell, and he wasn't very explicit. He said the amount settled upon Mme. Cavalieri was only in the nature of a regular marriage settlement. Mr. Chanler, he said, wished to make some provision for his wife, and gave her an income sufficient for her support and certain parcels of real estate.

The equity in these properties, said Mr. Cavalieri, is very small, and by reason of incumbrances it is doubtful if they are worth much. The income, he said, was in the same position, and it is doubtful if any ready money will be forthcoming at present. Out of this income, he said, must come the necessary expenses in caring for the real estate.

Mr. Cavalieri also denied that his sister and Mr. Chanler are estranged. She is ill in Paris, he said, and her husband was forced to leave her and come to this country because of business engagements. She will soon come to this country, he said, and will then join him. Mr. Cavalieri denied that he had come here as a messenger from his sister to get the income from her husband's estate.

No explanation was forthcoming from Mr. Chanler. He kept in seclusion and couldn't be found at his apartment, his studio, or any of his clubs. His lawyer, Sidney Harris, of 6 Wall Street, did a little talking for him, however. While admitting that a prenuptial agreement between the singer and the former Sheriff of Dutchess County had been entered into, he wouldn't go into details. He denied emphatically that there was a conference of the various members of the Chanler family over the reported marriage settlement or that such a conference was in contemplation.

Mr. Cavalieri arrived in New York yesterday and registered at the Savoy Hotel. He seemed to be much wrought up over the sensational reports which followed so soon upon the marriage of his sister and Mr. Chanler, and after a conference with his sister's attorney, William Russell Osborne of the firm of King & Osborne, 165 Broadway, this statement was made:

> The recent newspaper reports concerning the affairs of my sister, Mrs. Chanler, (nee Cavalieri,) and her husband, Robert W. Chanler, seem to have been designed to place my sister in a wholly false light before the public.
> Before his marriage Mr. Chanler wished to make some provision for my sister and made the usual marriage settlement by which she got an income for her support, and certain parcels of real estate. The equities in these properties are very small, and their value, by reason of incumbrances, is problematical. The income provided for my sister is in the same position, and it is doubtful what if any money will be available for her use. If any income is paid it will be required to pay necessary expenses in caring for the real estate.
>
> The marriage settlement was prepared by Mr. Chanler's lawyers in Paris and in the usual way witnessed by the American Consul there and given to my sister by Mr. Chanler.
>
> The sensational stories which have had so much prominence of late are untrue, and I wish to deny them emphatically. My sister is recovering from a severe illness, which has compelled her to remain in France, and Mr. Chanler, because of his business engagements, has been obliged to come to this country to attend to them. When my sister is able to travel she will join him in this country. The entire story is nothing more than an attempt to make a sensational story out of an everyday and commonplace occurrence, which concerns no one but Mrs. Chanler and her husband.

A copy of the original pre-nuptial agreement is in the possession of Mr. Osborne, and he intimated that it would be made public within a few days. When it is made public, he said, the stories about Mr. Chanler giving away his entire fortune to his wife will be disproved.

"The story that Mr. Chanler stripped himself bare to provide for his wife and that she is allowing him only a small sum of money a week is utterly untrue," declared a close friend of Mr. Chanler. "He is not saying anything just at present, as he considers it much more dignified to keep silent. The truth will come out soon enough, and then it will be time enough for Mr. Chanler to take action."

It was said yesterday that Mme Cavalieri will return to New York within a week. Her brother, it was said, came expressly to deny the reports about her. Another story, however, was to the effect that he had come to look after his sister's interests in the Chanler estate and to see that she was fully protected.

"A pre-nuptial agreement between Mr. Chanler and Mme. Cavalieri was entered into," said Mr. Harris, "but Mr. Chanler is not willing to have the details known at this time. It is also true that Mr. Chanler sent his wife the cable message which read as follows: 'Not true. I have seen no one. Work begun. Devotedly, Robert.'"

Mr. Harris was asked to explain the meaning of the message, but he said he was not at liberty to do so at this time. He thought that it spoke for itself and did not need much explanation.

"Will you say whether or not trouble over money matters has arisen between Mr. and Mrs. Chanler?" Mr. Harris was asked.

"That is a subject I cannot discuss," replied the lawyer.

"Is there to be any conference between members of the Chanler family and counsel relating to legal action or anything else connected with Robert Chanler's marriage?" was the next question.

"There has been no conference, and, so far as I know, there is to be none," was the reply.

Lewis Stuyvesant Chanler, the ex-Sheriff's brother, was in town yesterday. He remained at his Liberty Street office only a short time during the morning, however, and went to his home at Tarrytown. William Astor Chanler is in Europe, and Winthrop Chanler is out of town.

CALLED A FUGITIVE LEPER.

Greek Detained In Hospital Since His Capture by the Police.

Under observation at the Hudson Street Hospital is a Greek, who is supposed to be a leper. He left Salt Lake City with the intention of taking passage for Greece from this port. He was arrested yesterday afternoon in the railroad and steamship ticket office of John Booras, 5 Battery Place, on suspicion of being an escaped leper for whom the police of a dozen cities have been looking.

In the report from Salt Lake City the leper's name was given as John Kekas. The man taken into custody here gave the name of Peter Coropulas. He said he came from Salt Lake City, but denied vigorously the charge made against him.

Dr. Zimmerman of the Hudson Street Hospital was of the opinion that the man detained had leprosy. He said the man would be kept there until to-morrow and then sent to Bellevue. Dr. Zimmerman said the patient told him that he had been held up in several Western cities, but that he had been discharged each time, after investigation. He said he was on his way home to Greece.

AUTO KNOCKS OUT A BULL.

Red Car He Took Offense at Throws Him Against a Fence.

Special to The New York Times.

BRANCHVILLE, N. J., Sept. 12.—To ex-Mayor N. H. Hopkins of this place belongs the honor of being the first on record to officiate at an encounter between an automobile and a bull, and being able to register the fact that the bull was only second best. The ex-Mayor is the owner of the car, and was himself driving when the bull essayed to test his strength against that of the 60-horse energy stored in the engines in front of the car.

It happened a few days ago on the road to Hamburg, near Augusta. The bull sighted the red car from a distance, and anger possessed him. He charged head-on, and before Hopkins could avoid it the crash came. The bull was knocked against the fence at the side of the road and the car kept on.

The only damage, except to the bull, was a broken lamp.

WILKESBARRE, Penn., Sept. 12.—William M. Stockbridge and his 10-year-old daughter Betty had a miraculous escape from death in a wild dash down the Wilkesbarre Mountain in an automobile last night. They had reached the top when the transmission gear broke, and in order to get back into this city to have it repaired Stockbridge started to coast the machine down the Ashley Boulevard, a magnificent road, whose grade is deceptive. Stockbridge soon found that the brakes did not hold, and the machine dashed on from twenty to thirty to forty, and finally to fifty miles an hour. At this speed Stockbridge was unable to make the turns and the strain on the wheels was so great that they collapsed.

Stockbridge and his daughter were thrown out and slid along the road, while the machine, jumping over them, went down an embankment and was dashed to pieces. They were brought here late last night. They are covered with cuts and bruises, but no bones were broken.

LAWYER FORCED TO REFUND.

Woman Gave Kahn $5 by Mistake—He Said She Had Retained Him.

Aaron Kahn, a Harlem police court lawyer, was summoned before Magistrate O'Connor yesterday and compelled to refund $5 to Hattie Johnson, a colored woman, who said she had given Kahn the money on Saturday, believing him to be former Assemblyman Louis Cuvillier, who had represented her in an assault case. She said she formerly was employed by the Rev. Percy Stickney Grant.

The woman said she owed Cuvillier $5 on a former bill, and that when she went to the Harlem Court to pay it on Saturday she saw Kahn sitting on the steps.

"Are you Mr. Cuvillier?" she swore she asked.

"Yes," was the lawyer's reply.

"Well, here is the rest of that money," she said she told him.

Yesterday she soon found Cuvillier, and realizing she had given the money to the wrong man, told Magistrate O'Connor, who sent for Kahn.

Kahn said the woman had retained him as counsel, but the Magistrate ordered him to refund the money.

SANG HIMSELF INTO PRISON.

Young Italian's Serenades to Women Send Him to the Workhouse.

Antonio Martello, a Neapolitan, who lives at 581 Robbins Avenue, the Bronx, went to the workhouse yesterday for serenading women at 149th Street and Robbins Avenue late on Sunday night.

On complaint of several women Patrolman Larkin of the Alexander Avenue Station investigated, and saw Martello playing a guitar and singing Italian serenades. He watched him for fifteen or twenty minutes, and saw him address passing women. The singer finally approached a young woman and spoke to her. When she repulsed the troubadour Larkin arrested him.

In the Yorkville Court yesterday morning Martello said he was a city lamplighter, and told Magistrate Corrigan he meant no harm. The Magistrate sent him to the workhouse for twenty days.

"GOPHERS" STEAL A CAB.

"Humpty" Logan and Valentine Munn, Gangsters, Are Sent to the Workhouse.

Patrolman Cash was at Fifty-first Street and Tenth Avenue at midnight Sunday, when a hansom stopped at the corner and "Humpty" Logan, a notorious member of the "Gopher Gang," descended from the driver's seat. The door opened and Valentine Munn, another "Gopher," emerged.

A moment after a man ran up and said the men had taken his cab from Forty-second Street and Eighth Avenue. Cash arrested the two. In Yorkville Court yesterday the hackman refused to make a complaint, and Cash told Magistrate Corrigan that he was afraid to do so. So the Magistrate sent them to the Workhouse for six months.

CHANGES TRACTION DECREE.

Judge Lacombe Orders Supplementary Foreclosure of Metropolitan Mortgage.

The Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, as trustee, recently applied to United States Judge Lacombe for a supplementary decree in foreclosure against the Metropolitan Street Railway Company and others, questioning whether or not Lots 13 to 18 inclusive in the original decree were covered by the mortgage.

These items consisted of claims against individuals, bonds of the Twenty-third Street Railway for $50,0000, and bonds of the Forty-second and Grand Street Ferry Railroad for $36,000, bought after the execution of the mortgage.

Disposing of the application yesterday, Judge Lacombe made corrections as to Lots 14 to 17 inclusive, and directed that Lots 13 and 18 be withdrawn from the sale. A supplementary decree conforming to the court's views was ordered prepared.

Not Enough New Sittings Provided—One Little Girl Comes to School in a Bathing Suit.

New York's army of public school children, 705,000 strong, trooped back to school yesterday, the vacation days behind them and a long period of work ahead. But the resumption of study seemed to have no terrors for the majority of girls and boys. In fact most of them appeared glad to get back to school, glad to meet their old playmates again; at least that is what the teachers said about it.

Of course there were some hundreds of youngsters, boys predominating, who were not altogether pleased at the prospect of having to spend five hours a day in the classrooms while such ideal baseball weather prevails. But that is the same old story, as old as school days themselves.

It was a very bright-faced army on the whole which stormed the school doors yesterday morning at 9 o'clock or a few minutes before. The younger children, especially, had been scrubbed until their cheeks shone, and thousands of mothers accompanied their children to school to see them safely in charge of the teachers.

Here and there was confusion. At Public School 137, Grand and Essex Streets, on the lower east side, for instance, many mothers smuggled their little ones into the classrooms and left them without the formality of registering. Parents were expected to bring certificates of birth when entering their children. But some of the east side mothers appeared with doctor's bills instead, or gas bills, or marriage license, and in a few instances peddler's licenses.

Just before the school hour Rufina A. Carls, Principal of Public School 42, at Hester and Ludlow Streets, was astonished to see a Turk leading a little girl, dressed in a bathing suit of gaudy hue. The Turk asked to have the child registered Mr. Carls, through an interpreter, explained to the Turk that the school was not a public bathhouse, and that if he desired his little girl admitted he would have to have her dressed in suitable attire. The Turk went sadly away and did not return.

While the estimate of 705,000 children is not official, this is just 24,132 more than started in on the opening day last Fall. But the number and capacity of school buildings is still inadequate to the growing population. This was seen quite plainly yesterday, when it was discovered that 57,850 pupils had to be placed on half time. The Board of Education hopes to reduce this number to 53,377 by Sept. 30. But the outlook is not especially promising for the schoolrooms are inclined to fill out rather than decrease as the school year goes by, and no new sittings will be available between the last of the present month and Jan. 1.

Brooklyn still has the largest number of part-time children—28,000 in all—which is a slight decrease of the number last September. In the Bronx there are about 65,000 school children. About 15,000 of these were placed on part time yesterday. Two years ago the number of Bronx children on part time was only 1,500.

Only 2,897 new sittings have been provided since the ending of school early in the Summer. In Manhattan the new Public School 101, at 111th Street near Lexington Avenue, was opened yesterday for the first time. It has forty-four classrooms, one kindergarten, a roof playground, assembly room, and District Superintendent's office. The second half of School 114, at Oliver, Oak, and James Streets, was also opened, adding sixteen new classrooms and an assembly room. At 140 West Twentieth Street an annex to Washington Irving High School was opened with eight rooms in old Public School 55.

Those and the quarters for the Manhattan Trade School for Girls, in leased premises in Twenty-third Street, near Third Avenue, complete the list of additional quarters provided so far for the year. The Manhattan Trade School for Girls has recently been taken in charge by the Board of Education.

Several other school buildings in each of the boroughs have been contracted for and plans approved, but few will be available during the present school year.

The conditions of the public schools as shown by statistics compiled yesterday from figures made available by the Board of Education, show the following:

	Yesterday.	Last Year.
Total enrollment	705,000	680,868
Pupils on part time	57,850	53,783
New sittings opened	2,897	14,500
Part time, Bronx	15,000	8,573
Part time, Brooklyn	28,000	28,425
Part time, Manhattan	8,750	11,788
Part time, Queens	5,750	3,928
Part time, Richmond	350	99

These figures do not include the pupils of parochial schools nor of the corporate schools. There are estimated to be about 125,000 pupils of parochial schools who began their studies for the year yesterday. Of corporate schools there are forty-nine in the city. They swell the total of school children who began study yesterday to close to 850,000.

Nor were the day pupils the only ones who began to prepare for study yesterday after vacations of several months. Last night fifteen evening high schools, three of them new ones, were opened for registration by the Board of Education. From 7 to 9.30 P. M. they remained open and will remain open each evening until Friday. On Monday morning next the regular evening sessions will begin, the schedule fixed upon being from 7.45 until 9.45 P. M. for women and from 8 until 10 o'clock for men.

In many of these night schools women and young girls are taught to cook and to make dresses or trim hats. German is also taught and special attention is given to foreigners for instruction in English.

MORE CHILDREN'S AID PUPILS.

Enrollment 500 Above Last Year—Funds Needed for Roof Classes.

Fifty-five hundred children are enrolled in the day classes of the fourteen schools of the Children's Aid Society, which opened yesterday morning. This is an increase of about 500 over last year. As always, the enrollment shows a vast preponderance of pupils of foreign birth or parentage. Nearly half of them are Italians, three of the schools—those in Worth, Mott, and Sullivan Streets—having scarcely any pupils of other nationalities. The Russian Jews are second in numbers, with Bohemians, negroes, and Irish following in the order given.

The Board of Health's requirement of birth certificates made trouble for some of the little foreigners, but when these were not forthcoming the school authorities accepted passports, or even a statement from their parents, to be substantiated later by documents sent from the old country.

The Children's Aid Society schools, which have previously given much attention in their dental clinics to the care of their pupils' teeth, are this year making a special effort to prevent deterioration of their eyes.

The common drinking cup has been banished from all the society's schools, each of which is equipped with bubbling fountains of the type approved by up-to-date sanitarians. As the child drinks his lips touch nothing but the water at the top of the bubble, and all danger of infection by way of the mouth is obviated.

The increase in the number of pupils makes it necessary to establish several new grade classes. It is hoped that in the course of the next school year the society will receive contributions enabling it to start several open-air classes for the benefit of pupils who are anaemic and predisposed to tuberculosis. These will be established on the roofs of the school buildings or in upper rooms of which the side walls have been torn out. The expense of installing and maintaining these classes is from $4,000 to $5,000 a year each.

RUNS AWAY TO AVOID SCHOOL.

Young Jesse Dewe Leaves a Clue in a Railroad Time Table.

One youngster in Brooklyn, at least, did not return to school yesterday. He is Jesse Dewe, Jr., 13 years old, of 157 Prospect Park West.

According to his parents, Jesse has been having a bully time all Summer, but as the melancholy days of September, "the saddest of the year," began to approach, Jesse became despondent, and last Saturday night, after he was supposed to be tucked snugly in bed, he packed his entire wardrobe in his mother's valise, took his savings, amounting to $7, and quietly stole away. He has not been seen since.

Yesterday his father, Jesse Dewe, Sr., who is the local superintendent of an insurance company, asked the police to institute a search for the missing boy. The only clue to his whereabouts is a time table of the Boston branch of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad which was found in his room.

RESPITE FOR SUGAR MEN.

Judge Martin Hears Arguments Against Conviction of Heike and Gerbracht.

A further respite was granted yesterday to Charles R. Heike, the former Secretary and Treasurer of the American Sugar Refining Company, and Ernst W. Gerbracht, ex-Superintendent of the Williamsburg refinery, who were convicted on June 10 of conspiracy to defraud the Government of sugar duties by underweighing.

Judge Martin, who presided during the six weeks' trial, heard arguments of counsel in the United States Circuit Court.

John B. Stanchfield, counsel for Heike, asked for an arrest of judgment, a setting aside of the jury's verdict and a new trial. He set forth fifteen grounds, including errors of judgment in admitting the so-called "pink books," immunity because Heike had testified before the Grand Jury, and because the acts of which he was convicted occurred three years prior to the indictment, and because Count 6 of the indictment, of which he was convicted, did not set forth facts sufficient to constitute a crime.

Mr. Stanchfield said that the count failed to state that the Government had been defrauded of duties, and further, that Heike was not accused in this count of having conspired to commit any overt act.

George M. Mackellar, counsel for Gerbracht, said Mr. Stanchfield's argument set forth his idea, and asked until next Wednesday morning to file briefs. This was granted.

Judge Martin, after observing that he was not prepared to dispose of the question of immunity, set Heike's case down for next Monday morning.

Heike and Gerbracht were released on their present bonds.

A letter received from Washington this morning informed Lawyer Henry F. Cochrane that his appeal for a pardon for the four sugar weighers sentenced to one year's imprisonment last November, has been denied by President Taft. The four men are Edward Boyle, John R. Coyle, Patrick Hennessy, and Thomas Kehoe.

They will be released on Oct. 1, but were anxious to start with a clean slate.

GOT LAST OF HOLD-UP GANG.

Five Were Under Arrest When the Sixth Was Caught In a Crap Game.

Policeman Lotterhos interrupted a crap game at First Avenue and 101st Street yesterday and seized 18-year-old George Nunn of 1,949 Second Avenue, whose photograph he held in his hand.

Lotterhos took his prisoner to the Harlem Court, where Harris Wax identified him as one of six youths, all alleged members of the "Car Barn Gang," who beat him and robbed him of $55 in front of his home a few nights ago. The five others are now locked up awaiting trial.

Wax declared that the day after the robbery Nunn entered his place and told him that if he did not "let up" on three of the boys already arrested he would be beaten again. Wax noticed that Nunn had his picture pinned to his cap, and he grabbed the cap and tossed the lad into the street.

Magistrate O'Connor held Nunn in $2,000 bail for trial.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY WARNS MR. BACHE

Will Order His Arrest If Firm's Books Are Not Handed to Legislative Committee.

ADMITS OF NO DELAY

Prosecution to be Under Section 1,330 of the Penal Code In Case of Further Refusal.

District Attorney Whitman last night declared that if the books of the banking firm of J. S. Bache & Co. were not submitted to the legislative graft investigating committee by 10 o'clock this morning he would have Leopold S. Bache of the firm arrested on the charge of violating Section 1,330 of the penal law. This statement was made after a long conference in the District Attorney's office yesterday afternoon at which former Assistant District Attorney Kresel, assistant-counsel to the legislative investigating committee, and William J. Wollman of the firm of Henry Wollman, counsel for Leopold S. Bache, were present, and at which it was practically agreed that a list of the names of the customers of J. S. Bache & Co. would be submitted to the counsel of the committee, and that all the books containing the names of the men the committee wanted would be turned in for inspection. Mr. Bache refused, at the last minute to submit to any such proceeding, and has thereby made himself liable to arrest at any moment, the District Attorney says.

It was then after 6 o'clock and all the Magistrates' courts were closed. Mr. Whitman said that if Mr. Bache had reached this decision earlier in the day he would have had him arrested at once, but he did not wish to have him brought to night court.

Mr. Woolman promised that his client would not have to be sent for, but that he would go to court if necessary by himself. "And if he isn't there," said Mr. Whitman, "we will have an officer go and bring him." He said that he expected to see Mr. Bache in the Tombs Court this morning at 10 o'clock.

Section 1,330 of the Penal Code reads:

> A person who being present before either house of the Legislature or any committee thereof authorized to summon witnesses willfully refuses to be sworn or to affirm or to answer any proper question or to produce upon reasonable notice any material or proper books, papers, or documents in his possession or under his control is guilty of a misdemeanor.

Mr. Bache has refused to produce the books of the company and has defied the subpoena on the grounds that it was too sweeping and would entail the disclosure of the names of private customers of the company. The counsel for the committee has insisted on the original demand for a full list of the customers, but has agreed to use only those which appertain to the inquiry.

William J. Wollman of J. S. Bache & Co. said last night that he did not think the committee had authority to ask for all of his firm's accounts. He stated to Mr. Kresel, he declared, when the original demands were made, that the firm would surrender any account that the committee would specify under subpoena. Mr. Wollman said that it was not fair to his firm's customers or to the customers of any firm in Wall Street that accounts should be indiscriminately looked over by political commissions. He stated that the firm has all of the books for the past ten years covered under the subpoena, and that they would be surrendered promptly if the court so directed.

Mr. Wollman said in conclusion that the firm had no intention of blocking the procedure of the Legislative Committee, but had stood its ground in the matter simply for the protection of customers with whom the State had no concern.

PAY OF WOMEN WORKERS.

Average $250 a Year and One Woman In Four Here Works.

The Sub-Committee on Labor and Wages of the Committee on the Congestion of Population held a hearing yesterday at which the wages paid women workers in the city was considered and some surprising facts disclosed. Miss Mary Van Kleeck, Secretary of the Committee on Women's Work of the Russell Sage Foundation, read some statistics from the last census from which she figured that one out of every ten women in the city works in a factory, and that 47 per cent. of the women factory workers of the city earn less than $6 a week. She gave the average wage received by women in different kinds of factory work as follows: Men's clothing, $6.47; women's clothing, $7.68; fancy and paper boxes, $5.65; millinery and lace goods, $7.63; tobacco, cigars, and cigarettes, $7.36.

Miss Van Kleeck also explained that 31 per cent. of the women factory workers of the city work forty-eight hours or less a week, while 50 per cent. work from forty-two to sixty hours a week. She said that one out of every four wage earners in the city was a woman, and that one out of every four women in the city was a wage earner. Only one in every five women factory workers worked an entire year. Half of them lose from one to four months' time in a year. The average pay was reckoned at not more than $250 a year.

P. J. Quinn of the Central Labor Union of Brooklyn argued for a better enforcement of the labor law and more Inspectors to see that the Health Department and Tenement House Department regulations are enforced.

James L. Cowles, Secretary of the Postal Progress League, made an academic discussion of the general causes of congestion, and declared that the principal reasons for it are the discrimination in freight rates and the high passenger and freight rates.

Continual and abnormal indulgence in whisky, beer or wine eats away the stomach lining and creates a morbid craving for a stimulant. No amount of "will power" can restore the tissues burned and seared by alcohol.

OFFER NEW DEFENSE FOR RATE INCREASE

Railroads Seek Now to Justify Them Irrespective of Comparison with Higher Wages.

HARD PRESSED BY SHIPPERS

Interests Opposing Carriers Showed Increase Was Fixed Before Wage Demands Were Made.

Under the lead of the Pennsylvania, the railroads concerned in the freight rate investigation before the Inter-State Commerce Commission began to shift their position yesterday and undertake the justification of the proposed rate increases in and of themselves. The first line of defense was that wage increases necessitated increases in freight rates, but this contention became rather uncomfortable when the attorneys for the shippers started to show that the rate increases had been determined upon in advance of the wage demands.

What disturbed the roads even more was the demonstration the lawyers made by analysis of their detailed figures, establishing that the burden of the increased rates had fallen very largely upon the class freights, and as distributed among the classes were imposed on the higher class freights more severely than on the lower. The attorneys for the shippers have pointed out that trust products, which come for the most part under the commodity schedules and under the lower class schedules, have, therefore, escaped the proposed rate increase.

To combat this proposition, and in general to justify the distribution of the rates as proposed, as well as to back up the proposal to increase the rates in the first instance, the Pennsylvania Railroad sent yesterday Third Vice President J. H. Thayer as a witness. He declared that as long as two years ago the officials of his roads came to the conclusion that the rates on through class freight, as distinguished on the one hand from local class freight and on the other hand from commodity freight, were too low and ought to be raised.

Therefore Mr. Thayer accepted the verdict of the analysis of the figures put in by all the railroads that have thus far gone into details, namely that the rate increases under investigation skipped the commodities almost all together, bore with practically their entire weight on the class freights, and most heavily of all on the higher classes, which represent the less than carload lots and in general the production of the small shippers.

Forced to Reduce Steel Rates.

When it came to cross-examination by Frank Lyon, counsel for the Inter-State Commerce Commission, Mr. Thayer said that increases in commodity rates had been made at various times in the last ten years, such as increases in coal rates in 1902 and 1903 and increases in iron and steel rates, stone and sand rates, and others. In considering the treatment of manufactures of iron and steel, Mr. Lyon developed the fact that so far as business east from Pittsburg is concerned, the actual rates on such manufactures had been reduced by taking these products out of the class freights and putting them among the commodities.

"Mr. Carnegie," Vice President Thayer explained, "threatened to build another railroad because he thought the rates on iron and steel were too high from Pittsburg. In order to lower them we had to take these Pittsburg rates out of the classes and put them into the commodities, but we kept iron and steel manufactures on a class basis between New York and Chicago."

"Then the local rates on iron and steel were lowered," commented Mr. Lyon.

"Yes," replied the witness, "it was an ideal equalization."

The witness explained that there was no complaint about the fairness of the commodity rates and so he assumed they were all right. It was clear to his mind, however, that the class rates must be increased as too low.

Getting Close to the Point.

Next the attorney for the Inter-State Commerce Commission tried to get the witness to state when the wage increases had been made prior to the recent one, and Mr. Thayer replied in 1902 and 1906, aggregating 33 1-3 per cent. altogether. Mr. Thayer was disposed at this point to lay great stress upon the decrease in net operating income of $2,500,000 during April, May, June, and July of 1910, which he attributed to the Pennsylvania's increased wage schedules of the present year, whereupon Mr. Lyon made note that the rate increases, on his own admission, were determined prior to the inception of the wage increases, and during a period that included the year 1909, when the Pennsylvania's net operating income increased $8,300,000 over 1908.

Mr. Thayer's reply was that it was not fair to take a comparison with 1908, which was a poverty stricken year for the railroads, but he did not explain further the pressing necessity which moved the railroads to determine upon the rate increases during a period in which net earnings were increasing so fast, except on the ground of the desire to readjust and equalize the class freights. A moment later Mr. Thayer told how following the abolition of rebates on the Pennsylvania in 1900, there had been a reduction of the commodity rates from the old basis, which represented the net rate to the favored shipper plus the rebate, to a new basis, which eliminated that part of the old rate representing the rebate itself.

"Were rebates paid on class business to the large shippers?" asked Mr. Lyon.

"Oh yes," the witness replied.

"Were reductions made in these class rates after 1900?"

"I don't recall."

Explains the Class Rate.

Mr. Thayer then explained further his idea that the class rates on through business were too low in comparison with the local class rates from Pennsylvania points and the commodity rates, and contributed this suggestion:

"The through class rate increases amount to infinitesimal sums anyway, and don't cut any ice. What is 15 cents, say, on a case of goods from New York to Chicago? A salesman would give that away with a cigar."

On the Pennsylvania lines east of Pittsburg the proposed increases are expected to produce $3,000,000 additional revenue, and on the lines west, namely those of the Pennsylvania Company, and the Pan Handle, and the Vandalia, something in excess of that sum.

When Mr. Lyon was through with Mr. Thayer, Mr. Brandeis addressed an argument to Chief Examiner Brown, who represents the Inter-State Commerce Commission, to the effect that if the railroads were not coming to the question of the justification of the rates themselves the investigation was brought to its proper focus, namely the reasonableness of the rates and each of them. This, Mr. Brandeis declared, was a matter that could not be dealt with in generalities, but according to the specific cases. Examiner Brown interrupted to suggest that provided the commission found the rate increases on the whole justified that would not prevent any individual shipper from seeking specific relief from a given rate which he considered excessive.

"But that," declared Mr. Brandeis, "would put the burden of proof just where it ought not to be—on the shipper—instead of keeping it as at present, just where it ought to be—on the railroads."

Anticipated Wage Demands.

Vice President Charles F. Daly of the New York Central was the witness of the afternoon. He declared that the New York Central was prompted to its rate increases by the imminence of the wage demands of the men, concerning the results of which it could form a definite idea, even before the demands themselves were granted. This, according to Mr. Daly, explained the adoption of the new freight rates in advance of the wage increases and the attempt to justify them on the basis of the increase in wages.

As to the distribution between class and commodity traffic, Mr. Daly pointed out that the development of the higher class traffic had been an element of additional expense to the railroads by reason of the necessity of faster freight service and a considerable number of partly loaded cars. This he contrasted with the car load basis of the lower classes of freight and the ability of the roads to fill their cars in running freight on a local and slower basis.

Mr. Lyon for the commission immediately inquired whether the greater tractive power of the modern engines and 40 per cent. increase in unit of car capacity did not operate to offset these developments of recent years, whereupon Mr. Daly admitted that he was making his comparisons only on the basis of the same factors of engine power and car capacity. Mr. Lyon also asked if the saving in the time of train crews and other employes incidental to the faster movement of freight in the later years of railroading was not another compensatory element. Mr. Daly admitted there might be some saving due to this, but did not think it would offset the elements of increased cost that he had enumerated.

The hearing will be continued this morning.

ESTRADA ASKS US TO SEND AN ENVOY

Wants a Commissioner with Power to Arrange Settlement of All Our Claims.

WOULD NEGOTIATE A LOAN

And Set Aside 1 Per Cent. of Customs Receipts as Guarantee—To Call Constitutional Convention.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—A definite programme for the establishment of a stable government in Nicaragua and for the financial rejuvenation of the country was set before the American Government to-day for its approval in a long cable dispatch from Provisional President Estrada, which Salvatore Castrillo, the Nicaraguan representative in Washington, presented to Assistant Secretary of State Wilson.

First of all President Estrada wishes to re-establish friendly relations with the United States, which have been severed for so long. He suggests that the American Government appoint a High Commissioner to visit Nicaragua. This representative, he adds, should be one with full powers to negotiate if necessary a treaty covering all the claims of the United States against Nicaragua. These include, among others, the claim for indemnity for the execution by order of ex-President Zelaya of the two Americans, Groce and Cannon, and the Emery claim.

The Nicaraguan Government desires to settle these claims without entering into any formal convention, but if the matter cannot be arranged informally the Nicaraguan President asks that a Commissioner clothed with power to negotiate a treaty be sent to Managua.

To obtain money for the payment of these claims, President Estrada expressed his desire to negotiate a loan, which would be guaranteed by the setting aside of 1 per cent. of the customs receipts of the country.

A very important preliminary would be the careful examination and probable scaling down of the apparent indebtedness, for it is believed that many of the claims have been grossly inflated and are more or less tinctured with fraud.

In the matter of re-establishing the Government of Nicaragua upon a firm basis, the Provisional President stated that a Constitutional Convention will be called, probably in the latter part of this month or early in October, to recognize him as Provisional President and to fix a date upon which a national election shall be held.

Señor Castrillo had a long conference to-day with Mr. Dawson, the retiring chief of the Latin-American Bureau, regarding Nicaraguan affairs generally.

Judging from the experience of the Cubans, it might fairly be expected that the election of an Assembly and the enactment of laws by that body providing for the Presidential election would consume a period of six months, and that an equal length of time would be required for the election itself and the inauguration of the new permanent President. It is expected that within a few days Acting President Estrada will issue decrees providing for the election of the Constituent Assembly as the initial step.

THOUGHT AMERICAN A SPY.

Germans Arrested E. G. Claassen, Who Was Visiting His Old Home.

DANZIG, Sept. 12.—It is learned that in the course of the recent imperial army manoeuvres E. G. Claassen, a German-American who lives in the United States, was arrested on suspicion of being a spy. Claassen satisfied the authorities of his innocence and subsequently was released.

The man came here to visit his old home and took the opportunity to witness the operations. His many questions regarding the movements of the combatants excited the suspicion of the military authorities, and, though the visitor exhibited a letter of credit and gave first-class references in Elbing, the officers refused to telephone to that city for information, but detained Claassen and summoned military police officials from Danzig.

These on arriving at Preussisch-Holland examined the prisoner, and, soon reaching the conclusion that he was a harmless observer, ordered his release.

STRIKERS PLANNED MURDER.

Havre Police Say Slaying of a Strikebreaker Was Deliberate.

HAVRE, Sept. 12.—The police assert that the murder of a strikebreaker named Donge, who was kicked to death in a street brawl on Saturday, was planned deliberately by the Coal Carriers' Union, which engineered the recently declared strike of coal handlers.

It is charged that the union, in solemn conclave, voted to cause the death of Donge and two other coal handlers who had refused to join the strike, and at the same time agreed to care for the families of the assassins if the latter were detected and punished.

FRENCH MANOEUVRES BEGUN.

80,000 Men Engaged—Dangerous Aeroplane Feats Forbidden.

GRANDVILLIERS, France, Sept. 12.—The French Army, with the new auxiliary of aviation added, to-day began a practical demonstration of what may be expected to happen if a hostile force landed on the southern coast of the British Channel.

The scene of this year's manoeuvres is the Plains of Picardy, the old province in the North of France, bordered on the north and northwest by "the sleeve," which separates the republic from Great Britain.

The 80,000 troops engaged are divided into opposing armies, one designated as the Blue and representing an invading force, under the command of Gen. Picquart, ex-Minister of War, and the other the Red, forming the army of defence, under Gen. Meunier. Gen. Michel has the supreme direction of the manoeuvres.

The operations opened at daylight, Gen. Picquart's men having effected, theoretically, a landing on French soil, advancing from the River Seine at Rouen. At the same time the Red Army concentrated near Amiens. An interesting feature of the tactics was the employment of the 120 guns with which each army is equipped. Gen. Picquart, trained in infantry evolutions, scattered his cannon in support of the new open-order formation of his infantry, while Gen. Meunier, the artillerist, massed his batteries.

Gen. Michel has strictly forbidden any feats of prowess on the part of the aeroplanes which might result in interference and collision, and the work of the machines is restricted to a test of their capabilities, as swift dispatch bearers and for reconnoitring purposes.

The dirigible balloons participating are equipped with light wireless outfits and are in constant communication with the earth. In this way they perform the double mission of aerial scouting and of transmitting instructions from the commanders to their officers.

Major T. Bentley Mott, the American Military Attaché at Paris, is attached to the staff of Gen. Michel and is watching the operations for the United States War Department.

Accused Persons' Solicitor Suggests Mix-Up in Bodies at Mortuary.

LONDON, Sept. 12.—The inquest on the supposed remains of Cora Belle Crippen (Belle Elmore) was resumed to-day, but little that had not been already recited in the Bow Street Magistrate proceedings was brought out.

Mrs. Adeline Harrison amplified her court testimony concerning the operation which had been performed upon Mrs. Crippen and described the purpose of it.

Neither Dr. Hawley H. Crippen nor Ethel Clara Leneve, who are charged with the murder of the doctor's wife, was present at to-day's proceedings, nor was Prof. Pepper or Dr. Willcox, who examined the dismembered body found in the Crippen home.

Arthur Newton, the solicitor, who has undertaken the defense for both Crippen and Miss Leneve, asked a few questions of the mortuary keeper, suggesting that the body in question might have been confused with two others upon which post mortems had been made at the same time.

The inquest was adjourned to Sept. 19.

CHOLERA IN NAPLES?

A Strange Telegram from Paris—Epidemic in Southeast Decreases.

PARIS, Sept. 12.—A telephone message from Rome to-day describes the cholera situation at Naples as growing more serious.

There were, it is stated, twelve new cases and eight deaths from the disease in Naples yesterday.

ROME, Sept. 12.—Only three new cases and four deaths from cholera have been reported in the past twenty-four hours—at Andria, Trinitapoli, and Cerignola.

The foregoing telegram from Paris is the first intimation that the cholera has extended to Naples. Hitherto it has been supposed that the infected district was confined to a comparatively small part of Southeastern Italy.

So far, apparently, the Italian officials have rendered frank statements in regard to cholera statistics. Naples has never been mentioned as coming within the affected zone, which is a part of the country very little visited by tourists.

ABRUZZI BROKE OFF MATCH?

Semi-Official Agency Declares Engagement Reports Baseless.

ROME, Sept. 12.—A semi-official communication issued by an Italian news agency to-day declares that the reports printed in Italy and abroad of the approaching marriage of the Duke of the Abruzzi and Miss Katherine Elkins are absolutely baseless.

The Tribuna, referring to this statement, declares, "without fear of contradiction," that the King gave full consent to the marriage, but that the Duke of the Abruzzi himself broke off the match for personal reasons.

Notes of Foreign Affairs.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Sept. 12.—The first shipment of corn and flour to this colony from the Argentine Republic is being landed. It is believed that this is the beginning of a serious competition with American products, as it is reported that several local business houses are negotiating for extensive imports from South America.

BUENOS AYRES, Sept. 12.—The Minister of Finance, Manuel de Irlonda, has resigned in order to accept the position of President of the Banque de la Nation Argentine. Charles H. Sherrill, the American Minister, will sail for the United States on Sept. 16. He paid a farewell visit to-day to President Alcorta, at which cordial greetings were exchanged.

EXPORTERS UNITE FOR MUTUAL HELP

They Are Organizing an Association to Protect Their Common Interests.

BIG INDUSTRIES CONCERNED

Club to be Formed in This City for the Benefit of the Foreign Buyers.

An organization was perfected at the Hotel Imperial yesterday afternoon, the object of which is to bring the export managers of the leading American manufacturing corporations into closer touch for the benefit of all concerned. It was said that 160 of the leading corporations of this country had signified their intention of becoming identified with the new association.

When I. S. Betts of the National Cash Register Company called the meeting to order more than fifty of the export managers of the corporations concerned were present and more were arriving. At the meeting to-day practically all of the 160 corporations, it was stated, will be represented by the men who are in charge of their export business.

Some of the corporations represented at the meeting were the Westinghouse Electric Manufacturing Company, the Du Pont-de Nemours Powder Company, the Studebaker Brothers Company, the Eastman Kodak Company, the International Harvester Company, the Herring-Hall-Marvin Safe Company, the Victor Talking Machine Company, the N. K. Fairbanks Company, the Yale & Towne Company, the Welsbach Company, the American Laundry Machinery Company, the Oliver Typewriter Company, and several of the subsidiaries of the United Gas Improvement Company of Philadelphia.

Mr. Betts in his opening address said that the proposed organization was designed not only to bring the export managers together for their mutual benefit but also for the benefit of the various concerns they represent in the foreign trade.

The chief objects the association will endeavor to accomplish were stated to be as follows:

1. To bring united influence to bear on the State Department and Department of Commerce and Labor in Washington looking to the advancement of our foreign trade interests.
2. To bring similar pressure to bear on transportation companies looking to the establishment of equitable freight rates and better service.
3. To protect trade marks of American manufacturers by combating the common practice of unscrupulous foreign firms or individuals in registering and doing business under trade marks not rightfully their own.
4. To look out for those members who get into the meshes of customs authorities, aiding them in reaching an equitable adjustment of their difficulties.
5. To combat the many evils now existing in the field—evils which thrive on the general ignorance of business conditions—and to take steps toward the elimination of concerns whose crooked export methods are reflecting discredit on the entire Nation, and who now operate with little or no fear of interference. United action by members would speedily reform these conditions.
6. To enhance the dignity and standing of the manufacturers making up this association in the eyes of foreign importers and large foreign buyers generally, to whom membership in the proposed association will be an indication of good general standing in the business world.
7. To dignify, broaden, and render more effective the great work that is now being done by individual export managers by bringing them together periodically for their own good and for the good of the houses they represent.
8. To investigate, for the benefit of members, organizations purporting to exist for the purpose of aiding the American manufacturers, such as publications and bureaus.
9. To secure the proper interpretation of foreign customs regulations, resisting unfair or ignorant constructions thereof which an individual shipper could not afford to fight, but which the association could resist as matters of precedent and principle.

One of the exporters, in discussing the objects of the association, said:

"The real importance of the movement is to effect a combination of the great manufacturing interests to do concrete things for the benefit of the export business of the United States. To make this possible we want the men who handle this business to meet and know each other and to draw from one another's experience lessons that will make them of more value in the field in which they work."

It was also stated that it was the purpose of those in the association to establish in New York City a club for foreign buyers.

These officers were elected in the permanent organization:

President, W. B. Campbell, Cincinnati; First Vice President, J. K. Rodgers, Newburg, N. Y.; Second Vice President, D. P. Mitchell, Camden, N. J.; Third Vice President, D. E. Delgado, New Haven, Conn.

Board of Directors—I. S. Betts, Dayton, Ohio; E. H. Allen, Shirley, Mass.; S. S. Weart, Canton, Ohio; Alfred F. Howe, Warren, Ohio; L. A. Kimball, Fitchburg, Mass.;

Capital of more than $250,000,000 was represented at the meeting.

PIRATES HOLD UP STEAMER.

Kill Russian Owners of a Sungari Vessel and Rob Passengers.

HARBIN, Sept. 12.—A band of brigands disguised as passengers held up a Russian steamer plying on the Sungari River, twenty miles out of this port to-day, and, after a desperate fight, overcame the crew and robbed the passengers.

In attempting to defend their vessel the owners, two Russians, were killed and many of the Chinese crew were wounded, as were many of the eighty Chinese passengers who offered resistance.

When the pirates were in control of the situation they bound the passengers, the crew, a Russian sailor, and two Russian women, and took the valuables of the captives at their leisure.

A boatload of hunters who happened to be in the vicinity gave the alarm and a Russian gunboat was sent in pursuit of the outlaws.

British Steamer Albertville Lost.

BRUSSELS, Sept. 12.—It is reported that the British steamer Albertville, from the Congo for Antwerp, has been wrecked on the rocks at the mouth of the Congo River. The vessel and cargo were lost. All on board escaped.

FOUGHT FIRE TWELVE DAYS.

Crew of the California, from New York, Exhausted on Reaching Havre.

HAVRE, Sept. 12.—The French freight and passenger steamer California arrived from New York to-day with a fire that had been fought for twelve days still burning briskly in her hold. The crew were pretty well exhausted and called upon the city firemen to finish the work. The latter proceeded to flood the craft and hope to save part of the cargo.

The California carried sixteen passengers, who were glad to get ashore unharmed.

The steamer, which carries only a few second-class passengers, is owned by the Compagnie Générale Transatlantique. She sailed from New York for Havre on Aug. 27 with a load of merchandise. On Sept. 1 a puff of smoke rose from one of the hatchways and warned the master of trouble below. A hurried investigation uncovered a blaze that had been working its way into the cargo until it got a start that was too much for the crew. From the moment of discovery until the California drew into the harbor to-day her sailors had little rest. They were successful, however, in keeping the flames below deck.

CARDINALS VISIT TRAPPISTS.

Gibbons and Logue, with Papal Envoy, Spend the Day at Their Monastery.

MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 12.—Cardinals Vannutelli, Gibbons, and Logue, accompanied by Archbishop Bruchesi and half a dozen Bishops, spent to-day at Oka, the Trappist Monastery, 30 miles from Montreal.

Neither the venerable Papal Legate nor his equally venerable associates experienced the slightest ill-effect from the strain of walking in yesterday's parade, which was the closing feature of the Eucharistic Congress.

To-morrow Cardinal Vannutelli will officiate at the canonization of Mother Bourgeois, founder of the Institution of the Congregation of Notre Dame in Montreal.

HIGGINBOTHAM UP AGAIN.

Sister, Who Says He Has Not Paid Her Inheritance, Goes to Court.

Magistrate Gaston Higginbotham of Brooklyn, for the second time in a week, figured yesterday as a defendant in court proceedings. This time the complainant against Higginbotham was his sister, Mrs. Rita S. Halligan of 287 McDonough Street, Brooklyn, who charges her brother with failing to turn over her share of the estate left by her mother, Mrs. Mary V. A. Higginbotham.

On application of Mrs. Halligan, Surrogate Ketcham signed an order commanding Higginbotham to appear before him on Sept. 20 to show why proceedings recently instituted to punish him for contempt of court should not be reopened.

Mrs. Halligan swore she was entitled to $212.66, her share of her mother's estate. When her brother, as administrator, failed to obey the court order to pay her this sum she caused contempt proceedings to be instituted on Nov. 9, 1909.

These proceedings, she alleges, were discontinued when her brother paid her $100 and promised to pay the balance on Feb. 1, 1910. The remaining $122.66, she asserts, is still due her.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Sept. 12.—The Yankees and the Red Sox hooked up in a double-header here this afternoon, and, in spite of some peppery work in each game by the Stallings tribe the home team took both. The opening battle was a shut-out for the Yanks, who were able to collect only three scattered hits off Collins, while the Red Sox were gathering ten off Jim Vaughn. The second game went into an extra inning, and was decided in Boston's favor in the tenth, through the generosity of Ray Fisher. In this one inning the Yankee flinger gave two passes, made a wide throw which spoiled a chance for a double play, followed up with a balk, and finally hit a batsman and forced the winning run over the plate. The double defeat, with Detroit's victory over Cleveland, forced the Yanks from second place back to fourth.

New York had few chances to break into the run column. In the opening inning a double by Daniels, a pass to Chase, and Knight's sacrifice put runners on second and third bases, but two were out when the opportunity was offered and Collins threw Gardner out. In the second inning Austin reached third base on a pass, his steal, and Kleinow's poor throw to second, but again two outs had been registered, and Vaughn ended the inning with a fly to Speaker. From that time to the end of the game only two Yankees saw first base, both in the fifth inning. With one down Criger singled to right and Vaughn scratched a hit past Purtell. Daniels lined to Purtell and Criger was doubled off second base.

The Red Sox won the game in the third inning. Hooper drew a pass and was chased along to second on Wagner's sacrifice, Vaughn to Chase. Speaker singled to left and Hooper made third, Speaker reaching second on the throw-in. He registered while Earl Gardner was throwing Stahl out at first. Speaker went to third on the same play, but was left when Lewis grounded to Gardner and was an easy out at first. Three more runs were chalked up in the fourth. Purtell singled over second and moved around to third when Vaughn picked up Gardner's bunt and made a poor peg to second. Kleinow's safe wallop to centre chased Purtell in and put Gardner on third. Collins and Hooper fell victims to Vaughn's slants, but Wagner was there strong, and his double to left scored Gardner and Kleinow. Poor base running killed Boston's two chances to score during the remainder of the game. Aside from Collins's pitching, the features of the game were the fielding of the Red Sox and the batting of Wagner.

The second section of the double bill was a free-hitting contest, in which Karger, for the home team, failed to go the route, being driven from the rubber in the eighth inning, when the Yankees overcame an apparently safe lead and tied up the game on two singles, a double, and an error. Fisher worked the whole game for the Yanks, and finally gave the game away in the tenth by his wildness.

Boston went into the lead in the opening inning on Hooper's infield hit, Wagner's out, and Speaker's slam to centre. The Yanks got the run back in their half of the third on a pass to Sweeney, an infield out, and Wolter's triple to left. In the sixth, after the Yankees had gained a one-run lead on a home-run drive by Jack Knight, the Red Sox came back strong and got four runs on three singles, a double, and a triple. With one down, Hooper singled past short, and he completed the circuit on Wagner's double to right. Wagner reached third on the throw-in to catch Hooper, and he ambled across when Tris Speaker planted a single in right. Engle put Speaker on third with a single to right, and Purtell scored the pair with a long triple to the same section.

The Yanks overcame the three-run lead in the eighth. Daniels singled to right. Wolter hit safely to short centre and Daniels reached third. Knight's double scored Daniels and put Wolter on third. At this stage Joe Wood replaced Karger. He began by fanning Gardner, but Cree followed with a grounder to Stahl, and both runners scored when Jake failed to stop the ball. In the tenth Fisher walked Kleinow, and threw poorly to second on Wood's roller. A balk advanced both men, a pass to Hooper filled the bases, and Wagner hit to Knight, forcing Kleinow at the plate. With the corners still choked, Fisher hit Speaker and forced Wood home with the winning run.

Detroit in Third Place Now.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 12.—Detroit defeated Cleveland to-day, 5 to 1, by bunching hits off Dennett in the fourth and seventh innings. Lajoie failed to get a hit, being deprived of his only chance by Bush's great stop and throw. The victory puts Detroit in third place. Score:

Andy Coakley Under the Ban.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 12.—Pitcher Andy Coakley, formerly of the Philadelphia Americans, Chicago Nationals, Louisville, Elmira, N. Y., and other professional baseball teams, was today placed on the ineligible list of organized baseball by the National Commission. The ban is extended to include the Paterson (N. J.) team, of which Coakley is a member. The action followed complaints that the New York American and National League teams had played exhibition games with Paterson, an examination of the records showing that Coakley had been suspended by the National Association of Minor League Clubs. Whether he will be restored to good standing is for this body to decide, according to to-day's findings.

MOORE STRIKES OUT THIRTEEN BATSMEN

Philadelphia Pitcher Mows Down Superbas Easily and Shuts Them Out, 3 to 0.

Much valuable time was wasted last Winter by the club owners of the National League in a long and tiresome fight as to whether the League should play 154 games or 168 games this season. Those who favored the longer schedule won the fight. Among these were Charles Ebbets of the Brooklyn Club and Horace Fogel of the Philadelphia Club. Yesterday these club Presidents decided to curtail the playing season, and consequently the Brooklyn and Philadelphia clubs played a game that was scheduled for Oct. 15.

The most notable point in yesterday's game at Washington Park was Earl Moore's pitching. Brooklyn is defeated very frequently these days, but it seldom happens that any pitcher strikes out thirteen of Brooklyn's batsmen. That's what Moore did yesterday, and he gave so few hits—half a dozen—that they could not be manufactured into even one run. The Phillies got three, due to the heavy stick work of Magee, Grant, Bransfield, and Doolan, all of whom got two hits each, most of these being off Bell. The only thing that marred Moore's pitching was lack of control at times, four batsmen getting bases on balls.

The run getting was of short duration, the Phillies scoring twice in the second inning, and once in the fourth. Magee started the second with a three-base drive, and Grant followed with a single, which brought Magee home. After Wheat took Bransfield's sky lift, Grant stole second base, and then Doolan rapped out a single that permitted Grant to score. Daubert nailed Dooin's liner, stepped on first base and made a double play on Doolan.

Magee's next turn at bat came in the fourth inning, when he poked up a short outfield fly, which fell safe among three players, and he reached second base. Grant advanced Magee on a sacrifice, and Bransfield singled, scoring Magee. Doolan forced Bransfield at second base, and Mike, a moment later, was nailed stealing second.

The Cincinnati club jumped from Pittsburg last night to play a postponed game this afternoon with Brooklyn. The score:

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 12.—Pitcher Finlayson of the Lawrence baseball team of the New England League, reported to Manager Collins of the Providence Eastern League team to-day, and was given a chance against Jersey City. Elston, the Providence left fielder, has been sold to the Boston Americans, but will not play there this Fall.

Sloop Crescent Wins Cup.

The Handicapper's Cup of 1909, emblematic of last year's championship of the Handicap Yacht Racing Association of Long Island Sound, was won yesterday by the P class sloop Crescent, owned by Rear Commodore A. G. Hill of the Staten Island Yacht Club. This trophy was put up at the closing of the season of 1909 for a series of three races between the Crescent and the Bobtail, owned by George Clark of the New York Athletic Club, which had proved the fastest boats of the year. Unfortunately no suitable dates could be arranged for last Fall, and the races were postponed until this season. The first was held a week ago over a five-mile course, to windward and return, between Echo Bay and Glen Cove, the second over a triangular course from Echo Bay around marks off Execution Light and Matinnecock Point and back. Crescent won the first by 3 minutes 21 seconds and the second by 2 minutes 11 seconds, gaining absolute possession of the cup and title. At the tiller of the Crescent was L. de B. Handley, Captain of the New York A. C.'s water polo team, while Jerome Monks, former owner of the Bobtail, sailed the latter.

Old Captains to Help Coach Navy.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Sept. 12.—Three former Captains of the Naval Academy football team are under orders to report at the academy, and they will assist with the eleven this Fall. They are Soule, Captain of the 1903 team; Howard, Captain of the 1905 eleven, and Meyer, who led the team last year. Soule will probably take charge of the fourth class team, and Howard and Meyer have been designated as assistant coaches of the regular team. Capt. Clay returned to-day, giving up most of his leave in order to help coach the new men.

RAPID TRANSIT RIGHTS AND WRONGS.

The Public Service Commission's engineers publish figures giving precision to the statement that the subway for which bids have been invited is double the size of the present Subway. Nine million yards of excavation will be necessary for forty-four miles of route. For the existing Subway four million yards of excavation gave twenty-five miles of route. In other words, the cost will be larger and the accommodation relatively less. The excess of cost comes from making the tunnel two feet higher and seven feet wider than the existing Subway in order to admit cars of regular size. This increase of size is obtained at an increase of 30 per cent. in cost, and there are other increases due to higher costs of labor and materials and to greater quantities in everything because of the enlarged dimensions.

This is a fundamental defect in an enterprise undertaken on the theory of competition. If the triborough route is not an independent competing subway it loses its excuse for existence. Its route is fundamentally defective and incapable of amendment. It affords no accommodation for the lower west side, and it parallels existing routes of travel elsewhere. It cannot exchange transfers with the existing Subway, both because it is planned as a competing subway and because of inconsistent dimensions, forbidding exchange of equipment. And its fixed charges and operating costs must be larger because of the reasons given above. The enterprise will be solvent as long as the city is solvent, but if any private railway operator were to undertake a like adventure his sanity as well as solvency would be questioned.

These considerations are independent of the fact that the best authorities condemn the principle of competition in public utilities which are under regulation by law. This general principle of engineering and finance has just been reaffirmed by the experts employed to advise Toronto, where a subway is under consideration to remedy evils analogous to our own. Messrs. JACOBS and DAVIES, whose advice loses no weight here because they are well-known New Yorkers, find that "a system of subway railway in opposition to the existing street railway system would not be self-sustaining." They advise the unification of the old and new systems, under private operation, because public operation, "even with the best will in the world, is usually incompetent, wasteful, and unsatisfactory to the public." One of the differences between the conditions here and in Toronto is that here the competition would be between two city-owned subways. New York is providing a competitor for itself, proceeding upon the theory condemned by experts that competition is better than co-operation.

Toronto still has time for taking a wise course, and its newspapers give evidences of sanity in weighing the advice procured for the city. We are perilously near taking an unwise course in deference to prejudice rather than prudence and contrary to expert advice. The motive is asserted to be that there exists a popular mandate for public construction. There is just the same mandate for completing the route of the existing Subway substantially as it was originally planned. There is no definite mandate for construction of such a subway as has been planned. The route now in operation was designed to have easterly routes north of Forty-second Street and westerly routes south of Forty-second Street. This would give the city a symmetrical system, with tickets good throughout its extent. It would give maximum accommodation at minimum cost. There is not an instant's doubt that it would be self-sustaining at a five-cent fare from the beginning. No estimate of relative costs and income from this $125,000,000 adventure has been made. It is even in contemplation to build it without providing for an operator, although there are the best reasons and authority against contracting for construction without a concurrent contract for operation. It would not be possible for this to be true unless there existed a general impression that municipal undertakings are independent of the considerations which control private enterprises. It is necessary to hold judgment in suspense until the figures of the bids is known, but it is almost certain that disappointment—near or distant—awaits the city.

DEMOCRATIC MAINE.

After thirty years of defeat the Democrats of Maine have elected FREDERICK W. PLAISTED Governor—he is the son of Maine's last Democratic Governor—effecting a change of 17,000 votes from the Governorship election of 1908, and of 40,000 to 55,000 votes as compared with most of the elections from 1872 to 1904. They have elected Democratic Congressmen in the First, Second, and Third Districts, and, at this writing, "claim" the election of their candidate in the Fourth District as well as a Democratic Legislature. With the earlier elections of the Democratic Congressmen, Foss and HAYENS, in hitherto strong Republican districts of Massachusetts and New York, and with the reduction below the safety line of 20,000 in Vermont's Republican plurality last week, this election in Maine may be considered as foreshadowing a Democratic sweep of the country in the Congressional elections this Fall.

The elections in Maine seem to embody a protest against paternalism in the State and Nation. Gov. PLAISTED is pledged to work for the repeal of the Sturgis Commission statute, which empowers appointees of the State Executive to send deputies into every city and county to enforce the prohibition law over the heads of the local officers, against the sentiment of the communities, and at local expense. He is pledged to resubmit to the people the Constitutional amendment establishing Statewide prohibition.

Candidate SWASEY, the "standpat" CANNON man in the Second District, which NELSON DINGLEY represented when the Dingley tariff was enacted, is defeated for Congress by the Democrat MCGILLICUDDY. In the First District ASHER C. HINDS, Parliamentary Clerk of the National House, has been defeated because of the split in his party from the regular Hale machine. His successful Democratic opponent, PENNELL, has overcome the Republican district plurality of 3,272 in 1908. In both districts the Democratic candidates owe their election to the revolt against Senator HALE and Speaker CANNON, arch defenders of a high protective tariff and of the paternalistic Government at Washington.

CONSISTENCY IN MORALS.

The comments of the newspapers of the country upon the Lorimer incident, which we quoted liberally yesterday, show that the press views the matter in its true light. The high moral aspects of the transaction have not been obscured by petty and negligible considerations of the etiquette of clubs and dinner tables. Politeness, it must be remembered, is "minor morals." To shun bad society and to rebuke corruption wherever it shows its head is an act of major virtue.

The Worcester Gazette states the case with perfect propriety when it says that Mr. ROOSEVELT'S refusal to sit at meat with Senator LORIMER proves "that there is a power at work in this land and that that power is more potent than that of the courts and of the organized Government itself. It is the power of public opinion."

It is all the more to be regretted, therefore, that the Cox incident followed after so brief an interval upon the Lorimer incident. Boss COX of Cincinnati is very much tarred with the Lorimer brush. There is not the slightest moral distinction between the two men. If one was shunned, the other ought to have been shunned. After having disfellowshipped LORIMER, Mr. ROOSEVELT ought to have seen that, in extending the right hand of fellowship to Cox he made it possible for critics and scoffers to say with much plausibility that, while he was willing to make a stern example of a boss from whom he had nothing to expect, he stooped to suavity with a boss who has great potentialities of usefulness to his son-in-law. Mr. ROOSEVELT knows, of course, that no such ignoble thought entered his mind. But an exemplar in morals ought not to put himself in such an equivocal position. It may have availed nothing to cite against him his former association on the best of terms with PLATT and other Republican bosses of his own State, and with those of other States, but the Lorimer incident and the Cox incident were too nearly simultaneous to escape contrasting attention. The inconsistency between the two is flagrant. Sincere morality is never inconsistent with itself.

"FIFTY CENTS' WORTH."

We are glad that Mr. DRISCOLL, our efficient Commissioner of Weights and Measures, has taken to sealing the "adjustment screws" upon a certain type of scale that cheating grocers and provisioners use, and that he has placed on his proscribed list most of the types of computing scales, which register in a way to give the dealers a chance to short-weight their customers. This reform is added to the many he has instituted in this city, all tending to provide a uniform basis for sales by weight and measure.

But housewives will still be cheated unless they make their orders more specific. When an order is given for "a medium pail of lard," or for "a large bottle of milk," or for "thirty cents' worth of potatoes," "a package of oatmeal," "a piece of beef," or "fifty cents' worth of sugar," the provisioner has carte blanche in determining what measures and weights he shall use in filling such an order. Orders for five pounds of lard, a quart of milk, a peck of potatoes, ten pounds of sugar, a pound of oatmeal, and three pounds of beef could be construed only in the accurate terms in which they are couched, and the filled orders could be tested from time to time with the dry and liquid measures and scales which should be in the kitchen of every well-regulated household.

The purchasers of groceries and provisions can do more than Commissioner DRISCOLL can begin to accomplish in the way of securing honest service.

THE CHOLERA.

The incubation period of Asiatic cholera never exceeds six days. Therefore immigrants arriving on these shores would betray symptoms of the disease on shipboard, if infected prior to their departure from European ports. But the Health Officer of the Port is taking no chances. As in the recent case upon the Lusitania, that turned out to be seasickness, every doubtful illness is scrutinized with unusual care, not only by ships' doctors, but by the American quarantine officers, who are no longer satisfied with the presentation of the ordinary bills of health. This scrutiny sometimes occasions hardship. It should be submitted to with resignation.

Every person can guard against an attack of cholera as against typhoid, from which latter disease there is in this country a hundredfold the danger of infection. He can see that the water he drinks is pure, that the food he eats is uncontaminated. These simple precautions shut off every danger. If in addition he observes the rule of moderation in his diet and in the use of alcoholic beverages he is practically immune from any infectious disease.

The people should not depend upon the public authorities to do everything in guarding against threatened infection. The cases of immune and healthy cholera "carriers" are happily very rare. The importation of germs of the disease upon goods and clothing from infected countries is guarded against. The sanitary conditions in all American cities, and notably in this city, are such that it is extremely unlikely that cholera could become epidemic even if it gained a slight foothold here. But each individual can make infection in his case impossible.

TAFT AND ROOSEVELT.

Some commentators upon the Colonel's recent speeches doubt the good faith toward the Administration of the Colonel himself. It is suggested that the recent President damns with faint praise the legislative record of the present President, and promises many things about which Mr. TAFT is silent. But why should this inspire any doubt about the loyalty toward Mr. TAFT of the friend who said, "If they don't take TAFT they will get me"? Is it not altogether likely that he is so conducting himself because his feeling is unaltered, and he now means, "If you do not keep TAFT you will get me"?

The country has had a recent opportunity to judge whether it wants the Taft brand of safe and sane and reasonable conservation or the other sort. Mr. ROOSEVELT evidently intends to afford as many other opportunities for similar comparisons between efficiency in the execution of existing laws, and neglect of existing laws, in order to enact the Ten Commandments as a preliminary to the millennium. Those who think that new laws will reduce the cost of living and raise wages will vote for the millennium. Those who think that the enactment of too many laws, and neglect to enforce existing laws, are responsible for the mess which was left for President TAFT to clean up will naturally prefer a continuance of the housecleaning to the building of a new nationalism.

THE ALCHEMIST.

Dr. F. W. LANGE of Scranton, Penn., in whose uncouth laboratory the New York banker DICKINSON inhaled the fumes that were said to have occasioned his death, lives up to his reputation as an alchemist of the old school. Dr. LANGE last May announced that he needed the help of capitalists to cultivate a crop of silver from his magic "matrix." He would fertilize it with the baser metals, but an intermixture of silver bought with currency of the United States was indispensable to the growth of the precious plant. The reports published yesterday described the action of the Sheriff in seizing the laboratory, office building, and residence of the learned doctor for the settlement of debts upon which the matrix could not be successfully grafted.

Dr. LANGE is a solemn and self-duped man, we fear. When it flashed upon his mind that he was the discoverer of the quintessence sought for centuries, of the magnum opus which PARACELSUS and JEROME CARDAN pretended to have found, he tells us that he passed through a period of very critical self-examination. "I spent many months overcoming in my mind," he said, "in the most crucial way, the things that startle and tend to disprove the intrinsic substance of things as they have been long established." We don't know exactly what that means. But if it passed muster with Dr. LANGE all doubts should have been dispelled as to the sweet reasonableness of making silver reproduce itself like garden vegetables and trees.

He was a good doctor until he neglected his practice for a more lucrative calling. He is still regarded as a reasonable man. Possibly he was fooled by the appearance in his crucible of one of the allotropic forms of silver that chemists have for some years had under observation. But when it came to making it "multiply and replenish the earth" and the pocketbooks of his cerditors, he failed miserably. His example may be followed with profit by other men less honest than he.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Distinction with a Difference.

Many as have been the complaints—reasonable and other, especially other—about the way in which the customs laws have been enforced of late, nobody has yet mentioned, so far as we have noticed, one grievance that is, if not very great, at least very real. It is the system under which friends of arriving travelers are admitted or not admitted to wharves when a steamer comes in.

This system is fair enough in theory, since under it, nominally, anybody who makes application to the proper official can get a ticket passing him through the guarded gate near the land end of the wharf, the only limit being that no more tickets are issued after the number of those holding them for any steamer threatens to interfere with the rapid, convenient, and effective examination of baggage by the Inspectors. In practice, however, this works out into giving the passes to a favored class—people who, in addition to knowing how to get them, have more or less of influence, or what is vulgarly called "pull."

As anybody who stands at the gate can see, the result is a division of the public on lines most distinctly undemocratic, most of those who go through belonging to one social grade, and practically all of those barred out belonging to another. Yet it is the excluded ones who most often have really good excuses for meeting and helping their friends through the difficulties and perils of landing in a strange land, and it is they who are most eager to take the trouble involved in performing the task.

A way to avoid the drawing of this obviously improper distinction is not easy to find. To let everybody on the wharves would result in intolerable crowding and confusion, and it would hardly be practicable to let through the gate anybody who could offer a plausible excuse for his admission, since that is something anybody could do. Perhaps the best plan would be to exclude all except passengers from the wharves, by a rule about as rigid as that nowadays enforced at most of the larger railway stations. Intelligently enforced, that would be to the advantage of the stay-at-home as well as to the traveling public, for to both a great part of the meeting and farewelling is tiresome and a nuisance, though nobody likes to say so.

Reflections on the Bear Fight.

One cannot help feeling a good deal of sympathy for the poor, stupid polar bear that struggled so desperately against going into the cage prepared for him at the Bronx Zoo. The men who succeeded in getting him there at last did not have a good time, of course, and during all the hours that the fight lasted they were in considerable danger from a captive both fierce and strong. Their troubles were as nothing, however, compared with his, and though it is improbable that he felt much pain while the long battle was going on, since rage and excitement are the best of all anæsthetics, still he was a severely hammered and bruised animal before he yielded to the inevitable. Even a polar bear cannot tear to pieces heavy oak planks and dash himself against iron bars for the better part of a day without feeling the results of it afterward.

Far from docile on shipboard, the Silver King seemed instinctively to realise that his one chance for liberty was vanishing—that once in the new cage it would be for life. At any rate, his frantic resistance to the transfer will be taken by anthropomorphizing observers as fully explicable on that theory. The fact is, no doubt, that the bear did not realize anything whatever, except that his natural enemies were disturbing him, and this aroused in his dull mind a savage inclination to get at them if he could and to get away from them if he had to.

The episode raises anew the question whether it is quite nice, whether it is even justifiable, for civilized people to keep wild animals in captivity as objects of little more than idle curiosity. They are, to be sure, subjected to some scientific study—with results, usually, of dubious value, owing to unnatural environment—and little is learned from looking at them as the general public does it. But in both respects the outcome is meagre. Of course the horrors of imprisonment for animals are grotesquely exaggerated by sentimentalists who ascribe to them the emotions they would themselves feel if shut up in a cage. That must be kept in mind, else would the ordinary menagerie, and to some extent an institution as well conducted as our own Zoological Garden, give bad dreams to the sensitive—or rather would give worse dreams than they do.

Cigarettes and Superstition.

On reading in The Medical Journal that "nothing is more singular than the persistence in the United States of the cigarette superstition," the natural expectation—delayed only by a wondering glance at the phrase "more singular"—is that there will come next another familiar denunciation of those who, against abundant advice, go on burning the "filthy weed" in that particular shape.

But natural expectation is for once deceived. On the contrary, what The Medical Journal proceeds to say is that "the cigarette is by long odds the most innocuous form in which tobacco can be used, and it declares that this is "the opinion of the medical profession."

The "most" before "innocuous" is almost as disturbing as the "more" before "singular"—for those whom the comparing of incomparables disturbs; fortunately they are not many—but even a fuss-budgeting purist could understand what the defender of the cigarette meant to say by what he did say, and, if wise, the purist will hastily step away from that bold person, for fear of the half bricks that will immediately be flying in his general direction from many quarters.

Any apologist for the cigarette is in for trouble, and yet—but there! we will leave The Medical Journal man to fight his own battles.

Riley's Poem, of Course.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In Sunday's editorial article on Eugene Field, which I inclose, you brought in James Whitcomb Riley's "Old Sweetheart." I have always loved Eugene Field's verses, but Mr. Riley's, better, and since you admire "That Old Sweetheart of Mine," by Mr. Riley, it shows you, too, have very good taste. (from my standpoint.) Perhaps if you looked over some more of James Whitcomb Riley's work and should inquire what the people of the United States think of him, you might come to the conclusion, as I have, that Mr. Riley, though still in the land of the living, should not be so easily forgotten, and that after Poe has settled comfortably in the Hall of Fame, Riley will be "next in line," living or dead. I think he is the dearest poet we have yet had.

LORIMER AND COX.

Passing Final Judgment on Them a Grave Responsibility.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is the writer's belief that the editorial articles of THE TIMES universally command respect and serious consideration. To this belief the leading article in to-day's issue, on "Ostracizing and Politics," is no exception.

It is noted on the first page of to-day's TIMES, however, that "Roosevelt greets Boss Cox warmly," and it appears from the article that Mr. Hynicka and Mr. Hermann, Mr. Cox's lieutenants, were also included in the warm greeting. The relation between these articles is obvious, but the incident is not out of keeping with your editorial.

As to the righteousness of the cause which Mr. Roosevelt at the moment advocates, there can be little difference of opinion. It is one thing to preach, however, and quite another to practice. It seems to be the general impression that Mr. Lorimer's reputation does not suffer much by comparison with that of Mr. Cox, and it is easily within the recollection of all that not long ago Mr. Roosevelt sent an emissary to Ohio for the express purpose of denouncing Mr. Cox. Just what reforms have since taken place in Mr. Cox's character, justifying this radically changed attitude, the writer cannot guess, though obviously some important consideration must have arisen.

Events of this kind, and others, have occurred in Mr. Roosevelt's more recent career, which tend to raise the question whether he is by character and habit of mind equipped to lead a great moral campaign. The writer has no interest whatever in seeing Mr. Roosevelt discredited by instances like those referred to in the two articles indicated, but I have a great interest in seeing full credit done to the American people. It is not reassuring, from the standpoint of the honesty which Mr. Roosevelt preaches so constantly, to witness, within forty-eight hours, the utter denunciation of Senator Lorimer and the warm greeting of Mr. Cox. It seems, further, a reflection on public intelligence.

If honesty in the broad sense is to prevail, let us have it from Mr. Roosevelt as well as from the others of our ninety-million population.

To say the least, the thinking public will find it difficult to reconcile Mr. Roosevelt's preachments with his attitude toward Mr. Lorimer and Mr. Cox.

I have no interest whatever in either Mr. Lorimer or Mr. Cox. Whether they are innocent or guilty is not the question. There are certain well-defined standards of right and wrong, but the question does arise as to Mr. Roosevelt's authority to sit in final judgment upon these matters, or in the absence of express authority from some source, what special equipment is the public justified in according him, judged from the standpoint of the Lorimer-Cox instances and others of the same nature in Mr. Roosevelt's practice? It seems to the writer a grave responsibility for any man to assume. C. T. ELLIOTT.

New York, Sept. 10, 1910.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

THE TIMES seems to think that Col. Roosevelt has done the public a real service in his attitude toward Senator Lorimer. Had it been the President of the United States instead of Roosevelt who refused to meet Lorimer at the Hamilton Club dinner, the action might have carried some weight with the public. But the actions of this moralist, who one day refuses the society of a political boss in one city and the next day embraces the political scum of another city, will not not appeal to thinking people. EX-PRESIDENT AND PRESIDENT.

Thinks Dangerous Utterances Call for Reply from the Latter.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

While there has been much interest and some amusement at the extraordinary performances of the ex-President, and while his wild and tempestuous utterances have caused discussion and expressions of satisfaction or disgust, yet the danger, the positive danger, to the community, the State, the Nation, does not seem to have been appreciated.

The seeds he has been sowing may bear fruit and we may find too late that we have been permitting an unscrupulous demagogue under the mask of providing for our welfare to stab us in our very vitals and then jeer at us for our incompetency.

President Taft has been anxious to have the people properly instructed, anxious to lead them in the right direction. Let him continue in that mind and lead them. He gave one inspiring utterance at St. Paul.

But more is needed now that the air is filled with clouds. He is strangely silent. Is he always to be an imitator?

The people have confidence in his sincerity, his honesty, his statesmanship, when he relies on himself. They need some words from him. Let him give them. E. T. W.

No Place for a Dictator.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

This talk about Col. Roosevelt becoming a future dictator is too absurd to be taken seriously. Mr. Roosevelt is undoubtedly as good an American and citizen as those who indulge in these foolish brainstorms. However, admitting for argument that the opportunity should present itself that the Colonel or any other man should be so disposed, do they think that the spirit that made this country great and respected among the nations, a republic in fact as well as in name, would be found wanting in such a crisis? Do they think that the American people would submit to such infamy; that their patriotism or independence would not assert itself and knock into smithereens the diadem and the presumptious hopes centered in it? The Constitution is the bulwark of the Republic, of its liberty and equality, and any attempt to change or override it will meet with the just condemnation and defiance of all true Americans. "Liberty or death," the slogan of Patrick Henry, still and will always live in the hearts of his countrymen.

The Weight of the Earth.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

There appears to be a mistake in the article on the weight of the earth which I find in your paper this morning. Here is a rough calculation which shows a very much larger weight than seven trillion tons:

In round numbers the earth's radius is 4,000 miles; a mile equals 1,600 meters. The volume of a sphere is 4-3 rx3 1-7. The weight of a cubic meter of water is one metric ton, equal to 2,204.6 pounds, or more than 2,000 and less than 2,240 pounds.

4,000x1,600=6,400,000, radius in meters. The cube of 6,400,000=262,164x(10)15.* But as 4,000 miles is a little too much, let us take 256x(10)18. Multiplying by 3 1-7 (nearly) equals 795x(10)18. Multiplying by 4-3 we get 1,060x(10)18.†

The textbooks give the specific gravity of the earth to be about 5 2-3—1,060x(10)18. 5 2-3= a little more than 6x(10)21; that is to say, 6,000,000,000,000,000,000,000 tons of 2,204.6 American pounds.

†1,060x(10)18 means 1,060,000,000,000,000,000,000,000.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

There would be no necessity for the Federal control of the trusts if there were uniform laws regulating them throughout the different States. Although such regulation would practically amount to the same thing as Federal control, each State would preserve its rights and would probably be the means of helping to arouse a spirit of patriotism in all colossal institutions of wealth.

Since there are many reasons why the States are not likely to join hands in such a movement, it is only proper that the Government should be invested with the power to control all shameless and unfaithful trusts. Then one of the causes for a coming crisis would be removed and then the corporate interests of the country would enjoy about as much importance as the remains of the East India Company.

JOHN LYNCH.

FOR JOINT RATE CONTROL.

Commissioners of Canada and United States to Hold Another Meeting.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—A further conference between Chairman Martin A. Knapp of the Inter-State Commerce Commission and J. P. Mabee, Chief of the Railway Commission of Canada, with respect to the international regulation of railways, will be held in this city within a few weeks, probably before Congress convenes.

The two officials, each designated by his Government, held a conference in New York City in August, and a tentative agreement was reached as to certain phases, though there was no attempt to frame a formal proposal to be presented to the two Governments.

It was agreed that existing legislation in both the United States and Canada was inadequate for the effective control of international freight rates or for the establishment of through routes; and that such control would be advantageous to the interests of both countries. As to whether the objects might better be accomplished by a special treaty or by concurrent legislation the Commissioners reached no conclusion. They favored, however, an international tribunal, with authority over international rates similar to that possessed over the respective rates in each country by the Inter-State Commerce Commission and the Board of Railway Commissioners of Canada. It is understood that the Commissioners' idea is that water lines, only when they are operated as a part of a through route, will be brought under the proposed international regulations, and that the powers of the proposed international tribunal should cover telephone, telegraph, and express traffic, as well as railway and steamship traffic.

Chairman Knapp says the members of the Inter-State Commerce Commission will personally hear the essential testimony in the great freight rate cases now in progress. The case of the Western trunk lines, when resumed Monday, Sept. 19, in Chicago, and the final hearing of the Eastern case at New York, will probably be conducted by members of the commission in person. The oral arguments and analysis of testimony presented will be heard by the full commission, probably in Washington.

CHICAGO PASSES NEW YORK.

Her Postal Receipts for August Exceed Ours by $55,699.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—During August, for the first time in the history of the Post Office Department, the City of Chicago surpassed the City of New York in the gross amount of postal receipts. Its revenues aggregated $1,666,484, and those of New York City were $55,699 less. The percentage of increase in the revenues at New York was 11.64, compared with the corresponding month of last year, against 18.16 at Chicago.

Post Office officials say the increased revenue at Chicago is due to the very large mail order business there, much larger, proportionately, than the mail order business of New York.

The increase of postal business at the fifty largest Post Offices in the country was 13 per cent. better during August than it was for the same month last year. Only four of the fifty cities showed decreases for the month. They were Buffalo, N. Y., 7.48 per cent.; Seattle, Washington, 7.28 per cent.; Des Moines, Iowa, 1.89 per cent., and Salt Lake City, Utah, .61 per cent. The greatest gains were shown by Los Angeles, 24.48 per cent.; Detroit, 24.19 per cent.; Dayton, Ohio, 23.94 per cent., and Portland, Ore., 28.28 per cent.

CARDS FOR SAVINGS ORDERED

Will Furnish Basis for Small Accounts in Postal Banks.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—An arrangement was concluded between the Post Office Department and the Treasury Department to-day by which the latter directs the Bureau of Engraving and Printing to prepare 1,500,000 postal savings stamp cards for the use of the Post Office Department.

The cards will be sold for 10 cents each. Stamps, sold at 10 cents each, by the Post Office Department, may be affixed to the cards, and when the stamps and the card represent $1, the card may be deposited at a postal savings bank station to the credit of the depositor.

The idea of this system is to encourage small savings by children. The sum deposited in this way is expected to be very large.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I was greatly annoyed by being an hour late on the Long Island Railroad yesterday. I was guided by the local time table marked "Taking effect June 23, 1910," whereas there is a time table subsequently issued marked also "Taking effect June 23, 1910," with parenthetical item in smaller type, as follows: ("Corrected to July 12, 1910.") Commuting daily from Woodmere, I have been following a local time table similarly marked June 23, 1910. A new time table, as you know, goes into effect to-day on all branches, and the natural conclusion was that until to-day the time table as issued on June 23 was still in force. Of course, the railroad reserves the right to make changes without notice, but the point I bring to your attention is that elimination of trains, such as encountered yesterday, should be placarded at all stations. If, for instance, the Long Island Railroad had posted at all stations a list of cities in alphabetical order with trains affected, I might have noticed at a glance as I daily pass in and out of the station at Woodmere that such and such train which I have been accustomed to taking had been withdrawn. The train that I was misled into thinking was still in force is the one leaving East Thirty-fourth Street at 2 P. M. and Long Island City at 2:14 P. M. COMMUTER.

Skylarks of Hawaii.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The recent discussion of skylarks has brought to my mind an experience which I had some years ago in the Hawaiian Islands. Some skylarks were brought to Honolulu by a prominent citizen and were let loose on the plains near that city, where they throve and multiplied until the later introduction into the islands of the mongoose.

I was at that time living on a sugar plantation in that vicinity and was out on horseback every morning before sunrise. I shall never forget the songs of those skylarks in the gray of the dawn. Many times I could not see the singer, but it seemed as if that marvelous melody floated down from the very sky. Then the song would cease and the little warbler plunge swiftly to the earth.

It may be, as your editorial article of this morning suggests, that America has birds of sweeter song than that of the skylark, but, if so, I have yet to hear them. ALOHA NUI.

What matters Taft or Cannon?
Who cares where Theodore's gone?
Affairs of state will have to wait—
The up-State fairs are on.

Big skeeters down in Jersey
To calves may do their worst;
The point is now, whose Jersey cow
Will be awarded "first"?

Oldfield may smash a record,

What stumps Sy Foss is, why that hoss
Fell of his training gait.

The Worshipful Grange Master
Last year's address will fake,

OUR ARMY UNREADY FOR FIELD SERVICE

SAYS TROOPS CAN'T MARCH

Points Out That Details Leave Line Sadly Underofficered, and Transportation Is Quite Out of Date.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—In the annual report of Inspector General Garlington, just made public, it is pointed out that a whole battalion of artillery started for Philippine service without a single field officer, with one of the batteries commanded by a Second Lieutenant of less than two years' service, and declared that this absence of Captains from their commands is "the most fruitful source of professional disease in the line of the army to-day."

In one department nearly a third of the line officers were absent from duty with their commands under detail, and altogether the situation, according to the Inspector General, warrants the prediction that results of a disastrous nature must sooner or later be realised. The remedy suggested is the provision of a sufficient number of supernumerary officers to replace those on detail.

"We try to crowd too much upon the officer and enlisted man of the line," says one Inspector General. "That is, we try to teach all of them everything, instead of specializing and only teaching each as much as he can learn well with ordinary application, which, however much we may expect, is all we can ever obtain."

Another statement is that the field army is wholly unprepared for field service. The new regulations, it is said, are almost entirely theoretical or dependent upon the experience of European armies. Our transportation is the same as at the beginning of the civil war, for our army has so far failed to make use of automobiles, traction engines, and other modern appliances in the field. The weaknesses would be quickly apparent, the report says, if the present annual manoeuvres could be replaced at least once by the march of a complete army corps. Very few of our officers have ever marched with more than a regiment. Major Bell says: "While our infantry is composed of the best material in the world, and is probably as well, if not better, trained in the use of rifle than that of any other army, its marching capacity is below mediocrity, and yet it is admitted to-day that the fate of the battles of the future depends, as it has in the past, upon the marching capacity of the infantry."

To remedy these conditions Major Gen. Wood, Chief of Staff, to-day issued orders which will change materially the training of the army. All Inspectors General will be required to submit the troops to an annual inspection in the field, in addition to the present inspection, which is described in some quarters as being little less than an inquiry into the accounts and garrison work of the troops. The new inspection will be designed to show the efficiency of the troops in the theoretical work taught army officers at the various schools and provided for in the various drill regulations.

FOR JOINT BANK SUPERVISION

Controller Murray Suggests Plan to Congress of State Bank Supervisors.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—The National Association of Supervisors of State Banks began a three days' convention in Washington to-day. They gathered at the Treasury Department and were addressed by Lawrence O. Murray, Controller of the Currency.

Mr. Murray proposed to the State Supervisors a working co-operation with the National Bank Examiners. He declared he had in his office a list of men who as officers of National banks had proved incompetent and had been removed from office and said that if any of them should make application to organize State banks their names would be furnished to the State banking authorities. In turn, he proposed that the State Supervisors should furnish to the National system the names of men who had been driven out of the State banks.

During the last eighteen months, the Controller said, he had refused one hundred and eight applications to form National banks because the men behind them had been found incompetent or dishonest; that there was not enough business to make the proposed institutions profitable, or that the applicants were men without standing within their communities.

Weak banks and failures, said Mr. Murray, almost always come from banks which should never have been chartered. The practice of concealing liabilities was growing fast, he said, and he described a system which he believed was quite general and which he intended to investigate.

The Controller said that the June call for condition of National banks showed $26,000,000 in overdrafts, and there was no statute which allowed his office to control such a condition. There are, however, some State laws prohibiting overdrafts, and he urged co-operation from the Supervisors on that point.

Weak banks should be forced into liquidation, Mr. Murray declared, and he said he would use every power conferred on his office to force unsteady institutions to discontinue business before they fail. He asked the State officials to urge such a practice in their home territory.

Clark Williams, State Superintendent of Banks of New York, is President of the Supervisors' Association. Mr. Murray entertained President Williams and about fifty delegates at luncheon.

NAGEL FOR SUPREME COURT.

Following Death of Bowers His Name Is Much Discussed.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—The name of Charles Nagel, Secretary of Commerce and Labor, has replaced that of the late Solicitor General Lloyd W. Bowers in discussions here regarding the present and prospective vacancies in the Supreme Court.

Mr. Nagel comes from the Eighth Circuit, which, although it embraces thirteen States west of the Mississippi, has been without a representative on the Supreme Bench since the death of Justice Brewer, who was from Kansas. With the death of Mr. Bowers, and the supposed impracticability in existing circumstances of the elevation of Judges Sanborn, Van Devanter, Hook, or Adams, of the Circuit Court, all of whom have passed upon the pending Standard Oil case, the rumors regarding Mr. Nagel are attracting attention.

Mr. Nagel's selection would be to fill the vacancy to be created by the expected resignation of Justice Moody. It would still leave vacant the Chief Justiceship, for which the President is said to have in mind Gov. Hughes of New York, who has already been confirmed as an Associate Justice to succeed Justice Brewer. In the event of the selection of Gov. Hughes for Chief Justice, still another Associate Justice must be named.

GOOD PROGRESS ON CANAL.

2,813,462 Cubic Yards Excavated in August, 146,553 of Concrete Laid.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—Excellent progress was made during the month of August by the canal diggers on the Isthmus. The total amount of excavation was 2,813,462 cubic yards, place measurement, against 2,406,288 yards in the preceding month. The increase is accounted for by the fact that there were two more working days in August than in July, with two inches less rainfall.

Concrete laying in the great dams and locks also steadily increased, 146,553 cubic yards being laid in August against 131,000 yards in July.

BIJOU'S NEW PLAY THE SILLIEST YET

"Welcome to Our City" a Mass of Incomprehensible Rubbish —Puzzle, but Not Drama.

GEO. V. HOBART THE AUTHOR

Maclyn Arbuckle, an Admirable Character Actor, Could Not Make Adapted Play Seem Anything but Hopeless.

WELCOME TO OUR CITY, a farcical play, in three acts, adapted from the German by George V. Hobart. Bijou Theatre.

Col. Jim Scott	Maclyn Arbuckle
Richard Harrington	James Durkin
Luigi Toscanini	Guinio Socola
Paul Deloro	William W. Jefferson
George Greenway	Wayland Trask
Capt. Torrington	Carleton Macy
Doolin, a policeman	Charles Mylott
Dorothy Wise	Maidel Turner
Eleanor Harrington	Bernice Golden
Geraldine Scott	Susanne Westford
Aleda Scott	Louise White
Teresa Toscanini	Rosalie de Veaux
Josepha Jones	Mary Duncan
Margaret	Reita Lambert
Lola	Caroline Oden
Rosie	Grace Gibbons

Even in this city of many trials it has been a long time since such a mass of incomprehensible and puerile rubbish as "Welcome to Our City" was projected in the guise of a play. The thing produced at the Bijou Theatre last night is a puzzle, rather, and how it ever got past the first rehearsal is a mystery.

Mr. George V. Hobart confesses himself as the author, with the chief guilt shifted to a German original. However, Mr. Joseph Brooks, who "presents" it, should bear his share of the responsibility.

In cases of this kind one can sympathize with the actors, for they are often obliged to take what they can get. Mr. Maclyn Arbuckle, in fact, is an admirable character actor, but no effort of his or any one else could make "Welcome to Our City" seem anything but a hopelessly silly mess. The people in the cast ranged from fair professional to rank amateur. But a cast of geniuses could do nothing under the circumstances. Of those besides Mr. Arbuckle who succeeded in conveying a moderately agreeable impression under trying circumstances Miss Maidel Turner may be mentioned as having a very pleasant personality, while Guinio Socola, Carlton Macy, Susanne Westford, and Louise White did all that was possible.

The highly interesting fact may be mentioned that the Bijou Theatre has a nice new coat of paint on its outside. That, at any rate, shows enterprise.

FEATURES IN VAUDEVILLE.

Mme. de Swirsky and "La Pia," Dancers, and Rose Pitonof, Swimmer.

Mme. de Swirsky, a Russian dancer, who is called on the programme a Countess, made her first appearance in vaudeville at Hammerstein's Victoria Theatre yesterday and found the audience ready to receive her really graceful performance. She was first seen in New York at the Metropolitan Opera House last season as a member of Lole Fuller's company, and during the Summer she has been giving special dances at Newport and other social centres. Her "turn" yesterday included a piano number and several dances, in which she wore light draperies of gauze.

Other offerings on the bill were Pat Rooney and Marion Bent, Barney Barnard and Lee Harrison, Edwards, Van and Tierney, Jones and Deely, Hays and Johnson, Quail and Tow, Sam Dody, and Ward and Simms.

Keith & Proctor's Fifth Avenue Theatre also had a novelty in Rose Pitonof, the girl who recently swam through Boston Harbor to Boston Light, establishing a record. She gave an exhibition of fancy diving and swimming that was very much liked by the house. Others who appeared were Della Fox, Clayton White and Marie Stuart, Mathews and Ashley, Stuart, "the male Patti"; Ed. F. Reynard, James and Sadie Leonard, Brown Harris and Brown, and the Wood brothers.

At the Colonial Theatre "La Pia," a dancer from London, made her first American appearance. She gave several dances, concluding with an elaborate scenic number called "The Spirit of the Wave," in which she appeared dancing on the crest of a wave. Among the other features of the Colonial bill were Homer B. Mason and Marguerite Keeler in "In and Out," Charles Leonard Fletcher and company, Jack Wilson and company, Elsie Faye, Melville and Higgins, Howard, the Avon Comedy Four, and the Musical Johnstones.

Several special features were offered at the American Music Hall, including the reappearance of Edna Aug with some original songs and characterizations, and an impersonation of Laura Jean Libbey. "Venus on Wheels," a bicycle act, performed by a young woman in tights, was given for the first time in vaudeville, and Alva Yorke, an English eccentric comedienne, was welcomed as an old friend. Steve Bartle, an English concertina player, made his first American appearance, and others on the programme were Charles Sweet, the Georgia Campers, Bartholdi's cockatoos, Dow and Dow, Louise Gatto, and Clivette.

Harry Kelly in "Deacon and the Lady"

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 12.—"The Deacon and the Lady," a new musical comedy in which Alfred E. Aarons and Louis F. Werba are starring Harry Kelly, was presented at Ford's Opera House to-night for the first time on any stage. Mr. Kelly appeared in the rôle of a country deacon, who becomes entangled in the net of New York City. Other people in the company included Fletcher Norton, Ed Wynn, Percy Jennings, Clara Palmer, Mayme Gerdue, Madelyn Marshall, and Dorothy Homer. The book of the play is by George Totten Smith and the music by Alfred E. Aarons.

WEEK'S BILLS AT THE THEATRES

"Blue Jeans," Joseph Arthur's rural play, is the attraction at the Academy of Music this week. Edward Lynch is playing the hero and Priscilla Knowles has the role of the heroine, June. The sawmill scene is being given in all its realism.

De Wolf Hopper and Louise Dresser in "A Matinee Idol," returned to New York yesterday for a week's engagement at the West End Theatre. The cast is practically the same as that seen during the run downtown last Spring. Miss Dresser has some new songs and Mr. Hopper has added verses to his lyric offerings.

At the City Theatre the week's offering is "Three Twins," with Clifton Crawford in the role of the principal twin. The rest of the company has been on tour in the play.

"Girlies," with Joseph Cawthorn and Maud Raymond, is at the Grand Opera House this week. All of the girls and the rest of the cast from the New Amsterdam Theatre are in the company.

At the Alhambra Theatre Carrie De Mar headed the bill with her new songs and costumes. Others on the programme were Claude and Fanny Usher in "Fagan's Decision," Macart and Bradford in "A Legitimate Hold-Up," Wilbur Mack and Nella Walker in "The Girl and the Pearl," Charles Gill and company in "The Devil, the Servant, and the Man," Fiddler and Shelton, and Harry B. Lester.

Nora Bayes and Jack Norworth were the principal feature at the Bronx Theatre, offering a new series of songs of their own composition. E. F. Hawley and company appeared in "The Bandit," and among the other entertainers were Roy Barnes and Bessie Crawford in "The Fakir and the Lady," the Farrell-Taylor trio, Irene Dillon, Fairman, Furman and Fairman, Laddie Cliff, De Renzo and La Duc, and Watson's Farmyard.

"The Third Degree" is the week's offering at the Montauk Theatre, Brooklyn. Fernanda Eliscu is appearing in the leading role, and other people in the company are Alfred Moore, William Herbert, Ralph Ramsay, Earle Williams, James Seeley, Walter Craven, James Cody, and Lida McMillan.

At the Columbia Theatre "The Queen of the Jardin de Paris" began a week's engagement yesterday afternoon, with Ida Crispi as the principal member of the cast. The vaudeville bill between the acts included the Olivetta Troubadours, the Orpheus Comedy four, Adelaide Roatini, a Parisian ballet, and a pantomime called "The Slums of Paris."

The attraction at the Metropolis Theatre is the "Star and Garter" show, at Hurtig & Seamon's Music Hall the "Parisian Widows" company, at Miner's Bowery Pat White's "Gaiety Girls," at Miner's Eighth Avenue the [illegible] company, at Miner's Bronx "The [illegible]

CLARA MORRIS STILL IN HOME.

Friends' Efforts to Raise $20,000 to Pay Mortgage May Have Succeeded.

No action has been taken as yet by the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company to dispossess Clara Morris, the actress, and her husband, Frederick C. Harriott, from their home in Riverdale Avenue, Yonkers. This may be taken as a sign that the efforts of Thomas L. Feitner, a lawyer of 67 Wall Street, and a number of old-time friends and admirers of Mrs. Harriott to raise $20,000 to pay the interest, taxes, and principal of the mortgage has been successful and that the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company is holding off.

Clara Morris is too ill to be acquainted with the facts of the case. Her husband refused to discuss the matter when a reporter for THE TIMES called upon him yesterday.

Mr. Feitner could not be found at his office yesterday, and none of those who have been interested in the outcome of the effort to save Miss Morris's home could be discovered who knew if the money had been raised.

Liebler & Co. yesterday entered into an arrangement with Harrison Grey Fiske for the services of Emily Stevens, who is to originate a rôle in a new play temporarily called "William." Miss Stevens was leading woman last season with George Arliss in "Septimus," and has been a member of Mrs. Fiske's company at different times.

The new play came to Liebler & Co. without an author's name attached, and they did not learn that it was the work of Bayard Veiller until after they had accepted it for production. Besides Miss Stevens, Charles Balsar will be in the cast of the play.

CROWD OF 100,000 AT CONEY CARNIVAL

King Mel and Queen Tess Are Crowned, with Ceremony, Then Lead Parade.

POLICE PRESERVE ORDER

Showers of Confetti Fill the Air—Some Merrymakers Become Hilarious, but Good Nature Prevents Trouble.

King Carnival reigned at Coney Island last night. King Mel and Queen Tess were crowned and later drove down Surf Avenue, acclaimed by a crowd which the police estimated at 100,000 persons. Confetti filled the air. Fluttering streamers, gay bunting, the shouts of the crowds, the dazzling light from myriads of electric bulbs, the grotesque costumes, and the spirit of good will that marks the week reign of the Cap and Bells made a hilarious carnival.

The opening night of the week of fun saw Coney Island at her best.

The police arrangements were good and the efficacy of the great force of uniformed men was shown when the crowd moved after the passing of the last float. The ceremonies of the evening started early. In the great ballroom in the Palace of Fun in Steeplechase Park King Mel, who before he donned the ermine was "Mel" Sheppard, the runner, and his Queen, who is Miss Tessie Molloy, cashier at a Bowery attraction, were crowned by Stephen E. Jackman, head of the Mardi Gras Company. The ceremony was brief, and soon after the royal pair walked down under the arch of electric lights and entered the carriage of state and were driven to the Concourse, where the paraders were awaiting their coming. Behind them trailed carriages containing the Court attendants, committees, and others of the escort.

The police arrangements were in charge of Borough Inspector George R. Holohan, District Inspector John H. Russell, and Acting Capt. Matthew Robinson of the Coney Island Station. Police Commissioner Baker went to the island in his automobile and watched the start and breaking up of the parade. Deputy Fire Chief Lally of Brooklyn had 200 extra firemen on duty, two at each hydrant, with 100 feet of hose attached and ready for business.

A policeman was stationed every five feet along the line of march from the Concourse to Twenty-second Street on Surf Avenue. The 150 regular men at the station were reinforced by 600 from other precincts, and fifty detectives circulated through the crowds.

The weather was ideal and the crowd was perhaps the largest that has ever attended the opening night of a Mardi Gras here. Everywhere bunting was flung to the breeze, and the street was arched with strings of colored lights. An old Coney Islander whose boast is that he has worked on the island since John Y. McKane's time declared it was the greatest carnival the island ever has seen. The police reported a minimum of rowdyism, and most of the objectionable features of the affair were absent.

Then Came the Monarchs.

The parade started about 7:30 o'clock, led by Lewis M. Potter, Grand Marshal. Then came the various aids and twelve flower girls preceding the royal float. Queen Tessie wore a white coronation robe covered by the royal robe of purple and ermine. King Mel was in evening clothes, with his robe draped about him. His crown was set jauntily on his head. Both had to keep bowing, as the cheering along the route was continuous. The King looked uncomfortable, but by the end of the week his royal honors, like his robe, may set better upon him.

Following the royal equipage came the floats, which were well worth going to see, and sandwiched between in solemn procession were the near-kings and queens —those who obtained enough votes to be among the also rans.

The first regular float was the "Cap and Bells." Then came "Lohengrin" and "Midsummer Night's Dream," all gorgeous and ablaze with many lights.

On the children's day the float representing "The Cow Jumped Over the Moon" will attract the most attention. The small boy to whom has fallen the honor of turning the crank that makes the cow jump is already a hero from Norton's Point to the Concourse.

The floats "Water Lilies" and "Poppies" were beautiful ideas artistically executed. "The Fairy Queen," a remarkably comely girl perched upon a cloud of canvas and surrounded by other pretty girls, came in for much applause and a running string of comments from the frivolous who lined the street.

Coney Island was typified by a gondola-like craft bucking a golden sea with a staid old man with flowing beard and long white hair. He also was greeted with much applause. Seated behind him were Miss Columbia and Uncle Sam, who viewed their surroundings from a comfortable throne.

From every float pretty girls smiled down upon the crowd. In some cases the smile was made more effective by the efforts of the young women to maintain a graceful position upon small platforms that rocked like a ship at sea.

For every greeting the fairies and queens on the brilliantly lighted, rocking floats had an answer. In few cases did the remarks shouted up pass the line dictated by the spirit of the affair. Good nature everywhere was exhibited. Most of the time while the parade was passing remarks were almost impossible. The music never ceased, and there were so many bands contributing to the joy of the occasion that tunes often clashed.

The King and Queen dismounted from their royal float at the end of the line of march and were driven back to Steeplechase Park, where they opened the coronation ball. After watching the dancers for some time they, preceded by a musical escort in rough rider uniform, went to Stubenbord's, next to Dreamland, which the King has selected for his palace.

Early this morning the gaiety was still in progress, though the police reported it an early home going crowd and an orderly one.

Metropolitan Contest to Close Sept. 15

The Metropolitan Opera Company issued a statement last night that it had not extended the time for the submission of scores in the Metropolitan Opera contest that is scheduled to close on Sept. 15. The company has no authority to extend the time, the rules providing that such action can be taken only by the jury, which is empowered to advance the date by eighteen months. Whether the jury will take such action the company could not say, but advised that all contestants submit their scores by Sept. 15, those mailed on that date being considered as having complied with the rules.

LOTTIE GILSON IN BELLEVUE.

Former Well-Known Vaudeville Actress Seriously Ill with Gastritis.

Lottie Gilson, the vaudeville actress, was taken from a furnished room at 268 West Thirty-ninth Street to Bellevue Hospital, last night, suffering from gastritis and neuritis. Her condition is said to be serious.

Charles Schwab, who conducts the furnished room house from where the actress was taken, said last night that on Friday two men who said they were from the Actors' Fund called and rented a room for Miss Gilson.

Miss Gilson was brought to the house, Schwab said, in a carriage, and was so weak that she had to be carried into the house. The men, Schwab said, promised to send a physician, but as none had appeared up to last night, he called in Policeman McConeon of the West Thirty-seventh Street Station, who got Dr. Cowan of the New York Hospital. Miss Gilson was taken at once to Bellevue.

Miss Gilson was once a favorite on the vaudeville stage. She appeared last at Fort George six weeks ago. She gave her age as 39.

WATSON HORSES WIN FOUR BLUE RIBBONS

MISS WADSWORTH A JUDGE

Horsewoman of Genesee Valley Assists in Placing Honors in Saddle-Horse Class—Women to Ride.

Special to The New York Times.

SYRACUSE, Sept. 12.—The first day of the New York State Fair Horse Show was replete with excitement. There were sharply contested classes between the animals of Alfred G. Vanderbilt, from Oakland Farm, Newport, and those of George Watson of Florham Stud Farm. Watson captured four blue ribbons during the afternoon, against one for Vanderbilt. The Vanderbilt horses, however, took a half dozen second prizes. J. H. Wilson drove Mr. Vanderbilt's Madre and Columbia to victory in the tandem class, with Mr. Watson's Leader of Fashion and Lady of Fashion second. It was the chief show event of the afternoon.

Many prominent women are attending the show, including Mrs. Belle Beach Bain, who is to ride and drive for Mr. Vanderbilt, and Miss Harriet Wadsworth of Geneseo, a member of that noted family of the Genesee Valley, attired stunningly in blue and white. Miss Wadsworth assisted in judging the hunters and jumpers.

Mr. Wilson made a trip from the Yates Hotel to the grounds in one of the Vanderbilt coaches, and there will be a coach race from the city to the grounds later in the week. There was an unexpected "class" shown in the jumps. Clifford, Sifton C., The Wasp, and Ed Warren's Miss Wasp performed sensationally at 6 feet 6 inches. There were some spills, but they resulted in no harm. The Wasp captured the blue ribbon and Miss Wasp the red.

In the class for light harness horses Ernest I. White of this city took the blue ribbon with Hope Axworthy. E. T. Stotesbury of Philadelphia was second with the bay mare Garnet, and Lieut. Gov. White of Syracuse was third with his mare Willow Belle. Lieut. Frank B. Barret of the United States Army gave a fine exhibition of military horsemanship with the famous chestnut stallion Artillery, which won ribbons at the international show in London this year. Lieut. Barret captured the blue ribbon, Gen. William Verbeck of Manlius getting second with Shelby, while his Hambrien was third.

CORD MEYER CONVALESCING.

Ex-Democratic State Chairman Now Visits His Office, His Son Declares.

George Meyer, son of Cord Meyer, ex-Chairman of the State Democratic Committee, denied yesterday that his father was dangerously ill.

"Five months ago my father was taken ill with ptomaine poisoning, and for several weeks his condition was critical. After the crisis he was a long time regaining strength, but his improvement although gradual has been uninterrupted. Last week he was at this office, and he seldom misses a day automobiling or sailing. To-day he went both automobiling and sailing, and we are confident that he soon will be restored to his former health and activity."

Mr. Meyer is living at his country home, The Cove, at Great Neck, L. I.

Rise Follows Disposition of Large Block of Preferred Shares—Banks' Loss to Government Much Reduced.

Announcement of the sale of a very large holding of Rock Island preferred to a leading copper concern, which already had substantial railroad interests in the Southwest, was followed on the Stock Exchange yesterday by a pronounced rise in Rock Island securities and strength in the general list. The Rock Island preferred which figures in this transaction is that taken over from the Pearson-Farquhar syndicate several months ago, and it is now disposed of in such fashion as to promise better things for the Rock Island system itself and a degree of stability in Western railroad affairs which will be very welcome to managers of the transcontinental lines and to the financial district. This was the only incident in an otherwise narrow and quiet stock market, which Wall Street again insisted was waiting for something to turn up. Voting in the State of Maine was under way, and the uncertainty as to the result of the election there was instanced as one of the things making for caution, but the publication of the returns to-day, whatever they may show, will probably find the financial community prepared with still further excellent reasons for continued quiet on securities markets. A rise of 4 points in Long Island shares upon trading heavier than is usually witnessed in that issue was explained by the benefits which should accrue to the property through the opening of its New York terminal. Railroad earnings coming to hand continued the tendencies of earlier reports, the Missouri Pacific statement for July being a case in point, with its increase of $135,000 in gross and its net loss of $198,000. Some attention was attracted by the statement of the Vice-President of the Pennsylvania in the current hearing on the rate matter that he looked for a very heavy decrease in net on the Pennsylvania lines east of Pittsburg this year and no compensating gain in gross returns.

To the Sub-Treasury the banks have lost very moderately since Friday, making a much better showing in this respect than was the case a week ago. The feeling is increasing in banking circles that we are nearing the crest of the crop-moving demand, and that its financing will be accomplished without disturbance to the money markets. Foreign exchange rates were firm for the first time in a fortnight, demand sterling closing 10 points above Saturday's final quotations. The gold arriving in London from South Africa, amounting to some $3,000,000 in all, was divided between the Continent and India.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Sept. 12.—The local market opened steady and prices made some advances during the early trading. The undertone continued firm, with the volume of transactions light until toward the latter part of the day, when there was some attempt to realize results, but there was only a fractional recession.

Rock Island Stock List.

Ever since an international syndicate of bankers late in July took over the bulk of the Pearson holdings of Rock Island Company stock a good deal of curiosity has been expressed in the financial district as to just what the stock list of the Rock Island Company would reveal in respect to the actual lodgment of control of the company. A mooted question was whether or not the Kuhn, Loeb & Co. syndicate had acquired enough stock to threaten the dominance in the company of the Moore-Reid interests. The interest in the matter was great enough in the financial district to lead some of the stockholders to inspect the stock list of the Rock Island Company, but the task proved unremunerative. The stock list appeared to carry less information as to the actual ownership of the stock than most other lists, and after going over it it was still all a matter of guesswork as to who was in control. It was recalled in this connection in the financial district that prior to the time that the State of Oklahoma demanded from the Rock Island, among many other items of information, a copy of its stock list, there had appeared on the books of the company some large blocks of stock. It is being surmised that the State of Oklahoma, if it did not see the list until certain large blocks of the stock had been split up into many names, as presumably it did not, got about as little satisfaction from going over the stock list as have those who have interested themselves in finding out of late who really controlled the Rock Island Company.

Stocking at Low Record.

One hundred shares of the stock of the Belmont Columbus and Hocking Coal and Iron Company appeared on the Exchange yesterday at 3, which is 1 point below the price at the last recorded sale, and makes a new low record. Some changes in the reorganization plan are being discussed, and it was suggested yesterday that a good many stockholders who thought the shares worth their last Winter's price of 92½ have only just learned that it is within the power of the receiver in Ohio to levy an assessment. The company is an Ohio corporation, and after the Hocking Valley receivership some changes were made in the State law for the protection of the creditors of corporations applying very nearly as do those for the protection of bank creditors here. Under the Ohio law the stockholders of corporations chartered in that State have the same liability for the debts of the company as have bank stockholders here. They may be called upon to make good up to the amount of $100 per share owned.

Something to Be Thankful For.

The proceedings at the rate hearings at the Waldorf are the one absorbing interest in railroad offices these days. A President of a big system west of Pittsburg was in a group of railroad men downtown yesterday who were finding deep interest in the ever-fresh subject. "I never get so impatient with fool lawmakers," he said, "that I forget my gratitude for one thing. That's the anti-pass law. Why, things got so bad out in the West before that law went through that it seemed as if nobody paid for riding. Once I remember—and it's the truth—going forward to ride in the baggage car smoker on a trip out of Chicago. I didn't need a pass, but, by George, there was only one other man in that smoker besides myself who didn't have one. I saw the man next to me flash a pass, then the next across the aisle, and then the next. After that I counted. There were nineteen deadheads on that car besides myself, and one ticket. That was handed up by an old soldier. He was on his way to a veterans' home, and if he had only known it he was entitled to free transportation, anyway."

The Hide and Leather Affair.

The first meeting of the Governing Committee of the Stock Exchange after the long Summer vacation will have a lot to occupy it in the accumulated routine, but there is some curiosity to know if any formal recognition will be taken of the recent American Hide and Leather episode. When the stock was on its way a few weeks ago, although the trading totaled less than 10,000 shares in a week, the obvious untruth of the stories concerning dividend prospects, which recurred despite repeated authoritative denials, brought forth an informal investigation. The officers of the Stock Exchange determined quickly that none of the Exchange members was responsible for the false rumors, but, though their source was beyond the limits of Exchange jurisdiction, the question remains whether a moral obligation did not remain with the officers of the American Hide and Leather Company to repudiate publicly circulars which were sent out by stock tipsters with the obvious purpose of making it appear that the company was responsible for the false statements which they contained. These circulars bore the heading "American Hide and Leather Company," and made statements about the company's earnings which were the exact opposite of the facts. Although no officer's name was signed to the statement, its wording was such as to give it an official appearance. These circulars were called to the attention of the company more than a month before the annual meeting, but no steps were taken to prevent stockholders from being deceived. The trading in the shares was so small that the whole affair was little more than a tempest in a teapot, and few of those who were deceived into buying on the false information were regular clients of Stock Exchange houses, but brokers who have been in accord with the many new safeguards thrown around their own business during last year are wondering if the Exchange authorities will turn their attention now to prevent the recurrence of such an episode as resulted from the fake American Hide and Leather circular.

PHELPS-DODGE BUY INTO ROCK ISLAND

Take Over the Block of Stock Kuhn, Loeb & Co. Got from the Pearson Syndicate.

FIXES MOORE-REID CONTROL

As the Purchasers Are Friendly to Their Interests—Assures Railroad Peace in Southwest.

The large block of Rock Island Company preferred stock which Kuhn, Loeb & Co. took over in July from the Pearson syndicate has been sold to Phelps, Dodge & Co., who control important copper and other metal interests in the Southwest, in addition to operating an extensive system of railways in Arizona and Texas.

The Rock Island stock is to be turned over to the El Paso & Southwestern, which is the corporate title of the Phelps-Dodge system of railways which has a total of nearly 1,000 miles of line. This system already connects with the Rock Island, and is one of the important customers of the Rock Island system, and at the same time forms a part of the Rock Island's through route to El Paso.

The deal fortifies the friendly relations heretofore existing between the Rock Island and the Phelps-Dodge interests, and at the same time places in the hands of a concern friendly to the Rock Island enough stock of the company to represent, along with the holdings of the Moore-Reid interests, an actual majority of the company's preferred stock, which represents control.

It is considered very likely now that F. S. Pearson and Percival Farquhar will retire from the Rock Island board, and will be succeeded by representatives of the Phelps-Dodge interests, of whom Arthur Curtiss James will probably be one.

The Phelps-Dodge interests have long talked of extending their line, which already runs to a point close to Phoenix, Ariz., through to the Pacific Coast, but a representative of Phelps, Dodge & Co. said yesterday that it is not proposed to build such an extension. In this connection interest attaches to the statement made yesterday that in the sale of this stock no understanding was entered into in respect to the future plans of the Rock Island and of the El Paso line.

It had been assumed in railroad circles that the purchase of a large block of Rock Island stock by Kuhn, Loeb & Co., recognized as the Harriman lines' bankers, meant that the stock would eventually be lodged in hands friendly to the Southern Pacific. As matters stand, however, the Phelps-Dodge interests in purchasing this stock have done so apparently free from any restrictions whatever in respect to the relations between the Rock Island and El Paso Southwestern lines and the Southern Pacific.

Whether or not there were other bidders for this Rock Island stock was not made known definitely, although the statement was made in well-informed quarters that Kuhn, Loeb & Co. had as a matter of fact a choice of buyers for their Rock Island holdings. The price at which Kuhn, Loeb & Co. sold this Rock Island stock was believed in the financial district yesterday to have represented a very substantial profit over the price at which it was purchased from the Pearson syndicate.

Close friendship has existed between representatives of the Phelps-Dodge interests and James J. Hill, Chairman of the Great Northern Railway, and this fact was noted yesterday as containing a possible suggestion that the latest change in the ownership of Rock Island stock meant that a friendly link was being established between the Rock Island system and the Hill group of roads, including the Burlington, with which the Rock Island competes at a number of points. While it was said that the deal with Phelps, Dodge & Co. made for general railroad peace in the West, it was denied that any connection with the Hill roads underlay the sale of this Rock Island stock.

THE COMMODITIES MARKETS.

There was no decided tendency to the wheat market. The opening was firm, with very little stuff on the market, largely due to the unexpected strength of the cables and the quick advance in corn on cold weather. The cables showed an improvement in Liverpool, although the world's exports by the Monday report were record breaking, amounting to 17,656,000 bushels, including 12,000,000 bushels from Russia and the Danube. The total the previous week was 15,376,000 bushels, and the previous high record 17,336,000 bushels, Nov. 15, last year. The market was fairly steady during the morning, reacting a little in the afternoon, but was firm later. The visible supply increased 1,846,000 bushels, and is 28,298,000 bushels total. The Chicago stock increased 754,000 bushels for the week. Western receipts for the day were about 50 per cent. more than last week, but this was undoubtedly due to the holiday last week. There was some selling on cables from the Argentine, reporting general rains, particularly in the west and north, where the crop has been suffering from dry weather. As the season is now equal to March, the rains are very favorable. Export wheat was neglected and no export business was reported. No. 2 red was quoted at $1.04, elevator; $1.04½, free on board; No. 1 Northern, $1.22½, nominal; No. 1 Manitoba, $1.11⅝.

Corn advanced about 1c a bushel at the opening and held most of the advance. The strength was due to killing frosts in Eastern North Dakota and in Western Minnesota. A temperature of 30 was reported at Huron and 28 at Moorehead. The prediction was for frosts Tuesday morning in Iowa and Nebraska. The frost in South Dakota was three weeks ahead of the average date. The corn crop of North Dakota is estimated this year at about 6,000,000 bushels; South Dakota, 67,000,000 bushels, and Minnesota, 52,000,000 bushels. These figures are approximately the same as last year. The crop in corn in Nebraska this year is estimated at about 210,000,000 bushels and in Iowa 310,000,000 bushels. The visible supply of corn increased 216,000 bushels. No. 2 corn was quoted at 66c, elevator, to arrive.

Oats were fairly steady, closing with a net gain for the day, partly influenced by the strength in corn and on the decreasing receipts. The Western receipts have shown a material falling off of late, while the shipments from the West have been heavy. The visible supply increased 1,458,000 bushels, which was less than was expected. Cash prices follow: Standards, 35½@; No. 2 white, 36c; No. 3 white, 38c; No. 4 white, 37½c; natural white, 38@39c; white clipped, 39@42½c.

Provisions were again very steady. There was a further advance in hogs. The hog movement was disappointingly light and prices were marked up on the disappointing movement.

COTTON.

The cotton market was very quiet most of the session, with a rather heavy tone, and final prices showed a decline. The cables were heavy, due to the uneasiness abroad regarding the labor situation and fear of a lockout. The reports from the South showed generally good weather over Sunday, and while there was a severe local storm in Texas and one in Georgia, the damage was local. Prices rallied a little on some local buying, and there was again talk of a squeeze in September cotton here and also in Liverpool. There was a further decrease in warehouse stocks of 3,000 bales, and the total is 30,000 less than on Sept. 1. Southern receipts are increasing, and Galveston receipts for Tuesday were estimated at 28,000 to 32,000 against 26,812 last year. On the other hand, Galveston is shipping out freely, the exports Monday amounting to 21,883 bales for Great Britain and 14,883 for the Continent. An estimate by a Southern firm placed the consumption of American cotton for the last year at 13,008,000 bales. The market is developing but little interest just at present. Every day of good weather is an important factor. If the weather continues good until the 25th, it is claimed the Sept. 25 report will show little deterioration. There was a little selling late, possibly on Mr. Price's statement that his picking machine in Texas succeeded in actually picking from fields that were called failures 620 pounds of seed cotton, which yielded 37½ per cent., or 232½ pounds, of lint.

COFFEE.

Official cables reported rain all sections of Sao Paulo and caused heavy selling. Opening barely steady at a decline of 5@21 points, the market closed steady at a net decline of 5@22 points. Sales were reported of 100,000 bags. Havre was unchanged to ¼f lower when business here started, but later lost ¼f more, while Hamburg closed ¼ to ½f lower. Considering the advance of ¼d in Brazilian exchange, the primary market was very steady, although Rio reported a decline of 100 reis, for Santos was 50 reis higher. Spot coffe was steady, 10⅝@10½c for Rio No. 7.

To Resume Indemnity Trading.

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—By a vote of 330 to 275 members the Chicago Board of Trade declared to-day in favor of resuming trade in indemnities, so far as is possible in view of the recent decision of Judge Mack holding the former practice illegal. The buying and selling of indemnities as proposed, it is said, will eliminate the old "put and call" feature, which was frowned on by the court.

OBJECT TO BURIAL AT SEA.

Movement Is Started in Philadelphia to Abolish the Practice.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 12.—A movement has been started here to have steamships discontinue the practice of burying at sea the bodies of persons who die on shipboard. Last week the Rev. William McLoughlin of this city died at sea, and notwithstanding that a wireless message was sent to the Captain of the liner requesting that the body be landed, it was consigned to the waves.

The Holy Name Society of the Roman Catholic Church of Our Lady of Mercy has adopted resolutions protesting against the custom. The society authorized several clergymen to correspond with steamship companies with a view to ascertaining the opinions of their officers on the subject.

GRAND PRIZE RACE ENTRIES.

Mercedes, Driven by Armstrong, the Fifteenth Car in Line.

Another entry for the Grand Prize race which is to be held on Long Island, Saturday, Oct. 15, has just been announced by William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., president of the Motor Cups Holding Company. The car is a Mercedes of 90 horse power entered by George W. Loft, of New York. It will be driven by George W. Armstrong who has competed in many contests on both road and track.

In addition to the Mercedes there are fourteen other cars of American and foreign manufacture entered in the Grand Prize race and it is expected that before the day of the contest several more cars will be added to the list. The cars and their drivers are as follows: Benz, Barney Oldfield; Benz, Victor Hemery; Benz, George Robertson; Fiat, Louis Wagner; Fiat, Ralph De Palma: Fiat, Felice Nazzaro; Marmon, Ray Harroun, Marmon, Joe Dawson; Marmon, (not named); Marquette-Buick, Louis Chevrolet; Marquette-Buick, Robert Burman; Marquette-Buick, Arthur Chevrolet; Roebling-Planche, Washington Roebling, 2d; and the Alco, to be driven by Harry F. Grant.

Young Otto Gets Cold Feet.

Jimmy Howard, the welterweight from Chicago has been substituted for Young Otto as Matt Wells's opponent to-night in the main bout of ten rounds at the Fairmont Athletic Club. Otto sent word that he has sore hands, but soon after the officials of the club heard this they learned from a more reliable source that Otto not only had sore hands, but cold feet as well. Howard is a stronger opponent for Wells. He whipped Jimmy Clabby, and the latter beat the Dixie Kid in New York last Spring. In the semi-final Willie Herman will go on for six rounds with Frank Kenny.

"Ad" Men to Play Tennis.

Advertising men and advertisers will have a chance to suspend arguments and to forget rates and circulation figures for one whole day on Wednesday, Sept. 21, when the annual lawn tennis tournament of the advertising men will be played at the West Side Tennis Club, 238th Street and Broadway.

An exhibition match between Hackett and Alexander, the American doubles champions, and Touchard and Gardner, the American indoor champions, will be a feature of the day. The West Side Club has extended the freedom of its grounds to all advertising men and their friends for the occasion. All advertising men are invited, and further information for those desiring to enter the tournament as contestants may be had from Rufus T. French, secretary of the committee, Outing Magazine, 315 Fifth Avenue.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Diminutive Fans Are Held Dutiable as "Toys"—Other Tariff Decisions.

The Board of United States General Appraisers, in sustaining a protest filed by F. W. Woolworth & Co., had made a ruling in which it is held that diminutive fans are not to be returned for duty as "fans" with a tax of 50 per cent, but instead are to be admitted as "toys" with duty at the rate of 35 per cent. The fans in question are too small for the use of adults, and Collector Loeb is accordingly directed to reliquidate the entries at the lower rate found by the Board.

Collector Loeb was reversed in his classification of china dolls and dolls' heads imported by Samstag & Hilder Bros., and the George W. Travers Co. The collector exacted a duty of 60 per cent on the goods under the provision in the tariff act of 1909 for "china." The importers' contention was for duty at the rate of 35 per cent under the specific paragraph relating to dolls and parts of dolls. This claim, General Appraiser Hay sustains.

The same General Appraiser denies a claim made by William H. Manierre for a lower rate of duty on lithographically printed tin cans containing tea. They were assessed under the provision in the new tariff providing for containers, at the rate of 4 cents a pound and 35 per cent ad valorem. The importer made several allegations for a lower tax, but they are deemed by the Board to be without merit.

Several importers set up the contention that certain liquors imported from Great Britain should be entitled to the reduced rates of duty provided in the British-American reciprocal agreement This is denied by the Board. The importers concerned in the litigation include Lunham & Moore, the International Forwarding Co., W. White, the American Express Co., the Weideman Co., and the J. C. Bernhardt's Sons Co.

Said bonds are of the denomination of one thousand dollars each, and bear interest at the rate of four per cent, (4) per annum, evidenced by interest coupons attached, payable semi-annually on the first days of January and July of each year, respectively. They are by law exempt from taxation, State, parish, and municipal.

Said bonds are payable Jan. 1, 1942, and are subject to call at the option of the City of New Orleans after Jan. 1, 1928, and will be issued under and subject to the acts aforementioned, which are referred to and made part hereof for greater certainty and particularity.

Said proposals shall be received under and subject to the following conditions, to wit:

1st. No sale shall be made of any of the said bonds unless the aggregate of the bids shall be for the full amount of said bonds, to wit: $7,000,000 in face value.

2d. Said bonds will be adjudicated to the highest bidder or bidders, provided that said bonds or any part thereof shall not be adjudicated for less than par and accrued interest, less a commission not to exceed six per centum on the principal thereof.

3d. All matured interest coupons on said bonds shall be cut from said bonds and canceled, and the successful bidder, or bidders, shall pay the interest which may have accrued on said bonds up to the date of delivery.

4th. Said bonds shall be paid for by the successful bidder, or bidders, in cash as fast as they can be signed and delivered, said deliveries to be made on twenty-four hours' notice. First delivery to be made Nov. 5, 1910.

All bonds to be delivered within a period not to exceed one hundred and twenty days from date of final acceptance of bid.

5th. No bid will be received or considered unless accompanied by a certified check on some chartered bank in the City of New Orleans for three per cent. of the amount of each bid, the check, or checks, of the successful bidder, or bidders, shall be cashed and the proceeds retained by the Board of Liquidation as a guarantee that the said bidder, or bidders, will comply with his or their bids, and said proceeds shall be applied to the payment of the bonds last delivered to said bidder, or bidders, respectively. In case of neglect or refusal to comply with any bid, the proceeds of said bidder's check shall be forfeited to the Sewerage and Water Board.

6th. Any local bank, or banks, bidding for said bonds are referred to Section 2 of Act No. 23 of 1910, and may stipulate in its or their said bid, or bids, that they desire to be awarded the custody of the Public Improvement Fund after the 5th of November, 1910, as provided for in said Act No. 23 of 1910.

7th. If any local bank, or banks, should be awarded the depository as provided in Act No. 23 of 1910, the said local bank, or banks, shall be required to pay the rate of interest on daily balances in the amount and at the time provided therein, and shall comply with all the provisions of said statutes as to security and other matters.

8th. The Board of Liquidation City Debt reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

Important Transaction in Downtown Commercial District —West 15th Street Plot Sold for Lofts—Resale in "Penn" Terminal Zone—Old Landmarks to Be Razed.

An important transaction in the downtown commercial district was the sale of the store and loft building at 27 Lispenard Street to Morris Weinstein. The deal was negotiated by E. H. Ludlow & Co. for John P. M. Richards of Spokane, Wash., while Joseph D. Cronan of the Charles F. Noyes Company represented the buyer.

The loft occupies a plot 25 by 60, about 50 feet west of Church Street and opposite the property extending from Lispenard to Walker Street, acquired a few months ago by the New York Telephone Company.

The property is in a section receiving considerable attention from builders and operators in anticipation of the Seventh Avenue extension to Canal Street and Canal Street cross-town transit improvements.

Buy West 15th St. Plot for Loft.

The Freehold Construction Company, composed of Nevins & Perelman, has purchased for immediate improvement 153, 155, 157, and 159 West Fifteenth Street, four old-fashioned three-story buildings, on a plot 80 by 103.3, near Seventh Avenue.

Bernstein & Bernstein have been instructed by the buyers to prepare plans for a seven-story office and loft building.

Resale in "Penn" Terminal Zone.

An interesting resale in the Pennsylvania terminal zone, which shows the active demand for parcels in this vicinity, was announced yesterday by Samuel H. Stone, who sold to an investor 261, 263, and 265 West Thirty-third Street, a vacant plot 60 by 98.9.

The property, which is 100 feet east of Eighth Avenue, will be improved at once with a modern business building. Mr. Stone acquired the property during the early part of 1909, and is said to have sold out at a very handsome profit.

Old Landmarks to be Razed.

Three old dwellings, 28, 30, and 32 West Thirty-sixth Street, erected in the seventies, have been sold by the Holland Holding Company, of which Judson S. Todd is President. The buildings occupy a plot 50 by 98.9, between Fifth and Sixth Avenues.

The buyer is said to be an investor who will improve the plot with a twelve-story loft building, to be ready for occupancy by May 1, 1911. The sellers acquired this plot from William T. Elliott of Philadelphia in November of last year.

The price paid by the new purchaser is something over $250,000. The new building, which is estimated to cost about $160,000, will be under the management of the Underwriters' Realty and Title Company.

Dwelling Sold for Occupancy.

John J. Cavanagh has sold to a client for occupancy 159 East Eighty-second Street, a three-story dwelling, on a lot 19.2 by 82. The same broker recently sold and resold 163 East Eighty-second Street, a similar dwelling.

Sale in Arverne.

The Lewis H. May Company has resold for Morris Walfish four lots on the southeast corner of Meredith Avenue and the Boulevard, Arverne, L. I., to Zipser Brothers, who will improve the property with stores and apartments.

Bronx Sale.

John Schaeffer has sold, through Kurz & Uren, a plot 200 by 100 at the southeast corner of College Avenue and 168th Street.

Oscar M. Arnold is the buyer of the dwelling 120 West Seventy-fifth Street, recently sold by L. J. Phillips & Co.

Leases Fine Murray Hill Home.

Walter S. Gurnee has taken a long lease of the residence 38 East Thirty-ninth Street, one of the finest houses in the Murray Hill section, at $15,000 a year. The house is a five-story American basement dwelling, completed a few years ago, occupying a plot 27 by 98.9. It adjoins the southwest corner of Park Avenue, and abutting the property in the rear is the residence of George W. Perkins, at 76 Park Avenue, purchased a year ago. Mr. Gurnee leases his new home from Joseph D. Dixon, the brokers being Henry D. Winans & May. Mr. Gurnee's recent residence was at 417 Fifth Avenue, which forms part of the Anderson plot, on the southeast corner Thirty-eighth Street, recently leased for a long term to Bonwit, Teller & Co., and where a tall commercial structure is to be erected for their occupancy.

Heavy Building in the Bronx.

While no plans for new buildings in Manhattan were filed yesterday, plans for new structures in the Bronx aggregated in cost $536,000, all but a $5,000 warehouse being for five-story apartments, indicating the activity of operations of this character. The largest individual operation included a row of eight five-story structures to be erected on the north side of Fox Street, 105 feet west of Leggett Avenue by Montgomery Maze at an estimated cost of $350,000. Each house will have a frontage of 40.7 feet. The plans are by Nast & Springenstein.

The Wales Construction Company will build a row of four five-story houses on the block front on the south side of 152d Street, between Wales and Tinton Avenues, at an estimated cost of $186,000. The corner houses will each occupy a plot 46 by 90 and the inside structures 54 by 85. C. B. Meyers is the architect.

New Jersey City Warehouse.

Plans are being prepared for Swift & Company for a cold storage warehouse, which will be erected on the northeast corner of Henderson and Ninth Streets, Jersey City. The new structure will be of brick, four stories in height, 300 feet long by 100 feet deep. The estimated cost of th ebuilding will be about $150,000.

Addition to Steel Plant.

The Crucible Steel Company of Harrison, N. J., has just secured a permit for the erection of a large addition to its plant. The new building will be of brick and steel construction, two stories in height, and will cost about $25,000.

Receiver of Rents.

Lewis Levy has been appointed receiver of the rents of an apartment hotel on the west side of Fifth Avenue, 28.6 feet north of Eighth Street, on plot 26.3 by 100, known as 12 Fifth Avenue, by Justice Hendrick of the Supreme Court, pending a suit brought by Harry D. Davis against Nash Rockwood and others to foreclose a third mortgage of $25,000 made on June 4, 1909. The prior mortgages amount to $144,000.

Notes.

Applications for permits for new buildings amounting to $205,000 were filed Saturday with the Building Bureau of Queens.

BOROUGH LEFT IN DARKNESS

Light and Power Cut Off and Trolley Lines Tied Up—Open Streets Blocked Run of the Engines.

Blazing lumber yards surrounded by flimsy frame houses made a fire last night that could be seen all over the Bronx, and brought Chief Croker from Great Jones Street on a third alarm to fight his hardest in order to save the little village of Van Nest from being wiped out. The blaze started in the power plant of the Van Nest Woodworking Company, ate through the big stacks of lumber that surround it, and, before its three-hour course was run, had demolished two houses, half-destroyed four others, and was eating up a lumber yard and seriously threatened another row of houses.

Three trolley lines were tied up, and, shutting off the light supply, left the section in darkness for the night. The damage was estimated by one of the owners of the plant that first took fire as $100,000. The damage to the houses was $10,000 more. George Thomas, a watchman at the woodworking plant, who was known to have been on duty early in the evening, cannot be accounted for, and had not been found up to shortly before midnight. It is feared that when he is found it will be buried under the ruins of the boiler room. Several persons were injured and taken to the hospital. Some horses were burned to death in the stables.

The Van Nest Woodworking Company's plant and lumber yard were located on a triangular block bounded by Van Nest Avenue, Adams Street, and Walker Avenue, a large thoroughfare on which most of the northern-bound trolley lines leave West Farms. In the centre of it is a three-story building of wood, in which are the boiler rooms and office. Across the street, which forms the northern boundary of the triangle, is a row of two-story frame houses, 1,610 to 1,620 Adams Street. On Van Buren Street, the next to the north, is another row of twelve two-story frame buildings.

Adjoining the woodworking company's plant on Adams Street are the factory and lumber yards of the Bronx Sash and Door Company. On all sides of this ideal fuel for fire are frame buildings, and for a time, owing to the difficulty experienced by the engines in getting to the blaze, nothing stood between the village and destruction but the Van Nest Volunteer Hose Company 2, and it looked as if its efforts would prove futile.

At 8:30 o'clock Sergt. Willensie and Patrolmen Cramb and Burke, just relieved from duty at the Westchester Police Station, were riding on a car in Walker Avenue, when, passing the Van Nest Woodworking Company place, they noticed a jet of flame burst out of the roof of the building. They jumped off the car, followed by some of the men passengers, and made for the plant on the Walker Avenue side. On the Walker Avenue side they found a locked door which it did not take them a minute to burst through. Making their way to the engine room, they were met with a roaring burst of flame, which convinced them they could do nothing by their own efforts. On the way back to the door they were surprised to see a man burst his way into the office part of the building. He proved to be Albert Crookshank, one of the owners of the plant. He lives near by, and had seen the flames. He rescued all the firm's books before the flames got at them.

No sooner had the proprietor saved his books than he remembered that the watchman should be about. He communicated his fears to the policemen, and they started to search for him in the burning building. They were not able to go very far. In the search they passed the stable, directed there by the noise of the frightened horses. By tying blankets over their heads they were able to get six of the horses to the street with difficulty, but had to leave others to destruction.

Several hours after the fire had started Capt. McCauley of the Westchester Station was told by some of the first spectators to arrive that they had seen a man with a bucket on the roof of the burning building. It is thought that this must have been Thomas.

The first engine to respond to the alarms was the hand-driven hose cart manned by the Van Nest volunteers in charge of Capt. Joseph McCarthy, and they got their hose into the heart of the fire in short order. The city engines, most of which had a long distance to come, got tangled up in excavated streets which have been laid open for extensive regrading.

When Deputy Chief Ahearn arrived he lost no time in sending in a third alarm, which started Chief Croker whizzing up from Great Jones Street.

It was estimated that a million feet of lumber was entirely consumed, and the blaze spread to the plant of the Bronx Sash and Door Company, and flared across Adams Street, setting on fire a row of frame houses there. These were occupied by Italian families. They were hustled into the street. Isaac Frecman, the owner of the row, occupied one of the houses. His wife and three children were alone in the back of the house and did not know there was a fire. A little boy told them of their danger and led the family to the street, he carrying the three and five year-old daughters. Of this row of houses two were entirely destroyed and the remainder had the top floors burned away. In the rear of them is another row of frame houses on Van Buren Street. Sparks carried over to the roofs of them.

While the fire was at its height Clyde Hawes, bookkeeper of the Bronx Sash and Door Company, made his way into his burning office and came away with the firm's books. On the way out he was severely burned and cut about the face and hands by a bursting window. He was taken to Fordham Hospital.

While Capt. Hughes of Engine 64 was leading a line of men with a hose up the stairs of 1,608 Adams Street he came upon the unconscious form of a woman in the hallway. He carried her to the street and she was treated by Dr. Carey of Fordham and removed to the hospital. Her name was Mary Kane. Joseph Dalton of the Van Nest Volunteer Company was on top of a lumber pile directing a hose, when it buckled and threw him to the ground. He was badly cut about the face and hands, and one of his legs was injured. He was removed to Fordham Hospital.

An immense crowd gathered attracted by the illumination, which could be seen all over the Bronx. Inspector Flood was there with the reserves from four precincts. Several thousand people on Walker Avenue were in danger when the trolley wires began to snap on account of the heat. Word was sent to the Union Railway Company and power was turned off. Three of the important trolley lines were completely laid up, including the Mount Vernon line. A shuttle service was established above the fire, but this was entirely unequal to the demand, and thousands of people were held up on their way home until after midnight.

The Bronx Electric Light and Gas Company has a big feed trunk wire on Walker Avenue, and Capt. McCauley communicated with President Butler of the company, who had the power turned off there also. This left that entire section of the Bronx in darkness, and its residents were forced to retire by candle and lantern light. The fire was not out at midnight.

Evangeline Claire O'Neill a Bankrupt.

Evangeline Claire O'Neill of 418 Central Park West filed a petition in bankruptcy yesterday with liabilities $1,570 and no assets. The debts are for dressmaking, lingerie, dry goods, dentistry, silverware, decorating china, regilding frames, and cleaning. Warrin & Son, decorators of china, obtained judgment, but the Sheriff returned it unsatisfied.

Studied Employers' Liability Abroad.

Among those who arrived from London yesterday on the Atlantic Transport liner Minnetonka was State Senator J. Mayhew Wainwright of Westchester. He has been studying European methods of dealing with men and women hurt in the pursuit of their work. Senator Wainwright is interested in legislation in connection with the Employers' Liability law.

GAS TUNNELS FROM ASTORIA.

By This Means Consolidated Hopes to Supply New York City.

Manhattan Island and the Bronx will soon be supplied with gas from Astoria through two great tunnels under Ward's Island and the East River. The gas plants along the water front of New York are to be abolished.

Supreme Court Justice Hendrick appointed William Allen yesterday to act as referee in a condemnation suit brought by the East River Gas Company, a subsidiary company of the Consolidated Gas Company, against the State and the city and the Harlem River & Port Chester Railroad to acquire title to an easement. This easement, 100 feet deep, will give a right of way to tunnels between Astoria and 110th Street, Manhattan, under Ward's Island, and from Astoria to the junction of Locust Avenue and 134th Street, in the Bronx.

Since 1894 the company has operated a gas tunnel under the East River, connecting a gas plant at Ravenswood, L. I., with the foot of East Seventy-first Street. This tunnel is now inadequate, the company declares. The assertion is made that the Court of Appeals has decided that the company has the right to construct tunnels provided it can obtain the necessary easements.

Both the Attorney General of the State and the Corporation Counsel objected to the granting of the easements on the company's terms, which provided that $775 be paid for the Manhattan easement and $115 for the Bronx easement. The company proposed to pay $215 to the Harlem River & Port Chester Railroad Company. The Attorney General contended that the tunnels are not a public necessity and the Corporation Counsel charged that the terms prescribed are not reasonable and that the company is a private enterprise for private profit.

Electric conduits for the transmission of both light and power will be installed in the tunnels, according to the plans on file. The company declares that the policy of the city has been to acquire water front gas and electric plants along the North, East, and Harlem Rivers by condemnation for dock purposes, and that the consumption of gas in Manhattan and the Bronx has increased so rapidly that soon the present supply will be utterly inadequate.

Efforts will be made, it was said yesterday, to hasten the determination of the issues before the referee, so that work on the tunnels may be begun speedily.

INVESTIGATE ERIE CAVE-IN.

Prosecutor Garven to Take the Erie Tunnel Case to the Grand Jury.

Prosecutor Garven of Hudson County, N. J., has started an investigation into the cause of the Erie tunnel cave-in at Bergen Hill, Jersey City Heights, on Sunday that resulted in the death of twelve workmen and injury to seven others. He dispatched Detective William Charlock and a score of assistants to the scene of the accident yesterday, accompanied by a photographer, for pictures are to be used when the investigation is brought to the attention of the September term of the Grand Jury, that will be sworn in on Sept. 20.

The Prosecutor is of the opinion that the Millard Construction Company, that built the new Erie cut alongside the tunnel, and whose officers were indicted by the Grand Jury for criminal negligence in connection with that work, is under cover doing the work of breaking away the western end of the Erie tunnel, where the accident occurred.

Alfred L. Moorehead, engineer in charge of the tunnel wrecking work, gave himself up to the police of Jersey City yesterday, and was paroled by a Police Magistrate for appearance in the First Criminal Court for a hearing on Sept. 22. He is charged with manslaughter. John Smith of Elizabeth and George Blass, foreman of the tunnel work, the former who is home suffering from injuries received in the cave-in and the latter a patient in the City Hospital, are both under arrest, charged with criminal negligence.

Coroner James Houghton of Jersey City will hold an inquest into the death of James Feeney of 144 St. Paul's Avenue, Jersey City, the first man whose body was carried from the tunnel ruins, on Sept. 21 at the Court House, Jersey City. Coroner Houghton, with the jurors, visited the tunnel wreckage yesterday morning.

John Lewis of Monmouth Street, Jersey City, one of the rock drillers who was crushed in the accident, died yesterday in the City Hospital.

FINDS LONG-MISSING HUSBAND

Called to Bedside of Dying Daughter, She Encounters Him.

In answer to a message to the effect that her daughter was dying, Mrs. Sarah B. Simpson of Attleboro, Mass., arrived in Newark yesterday to find that the man to whom her daughter was alleged to be married is her own husband, who deserted her about ten years ago. Simpson lives at 496 South Twelfth Street under the name of William Fenn.

The sick woman, according to Mrs. Simpson of Attleboro, is his stepdaughter. He is under arrest pending an investigation., County Physician William H. McKenzie said that the police had notified him about the woman's condition, but declared that he could not take any action unless the woman was going to die.

The Attleboro woman said she married William A. Simpson fourteen years ago in Providence, R. I., being at the time the widow of John Octon. The woman who is now living with Simpson was her daughter by her first marriage, and was then sixteen years old. Mrs. Sarah Simpson declares that Simpson eloped with her daughter when she was touring the country as one of the "Seven Sutherland Sisters."

When arrested Simpson said that he had obtained a divorce from his first wife, Mrs. Octon, and that he married her daughter five years ago in New York. He had nothing to show that they had been married or that he had obtained a divorce from the present woman's mother.

Mrs. Sarah B. Simpson said that she had been summoned to Newark through a message signed "William Fenn." Mrs. Simpson told the police that Simpson had threatened to shoot her if she said anything about him.

GRAIN EXCHANGES IN COUNCIL

Sixteen Delegates Meet In Produce Exchange—Favor Stevens Bill.

The three-day convention of the Council of North American Grain Exchanges opened yesterday at the Produce Exchange, attended by sixteen delegates from the United States and Canada. A special committee was appointed to investigate the question of bill of lading reform, and empowered to go to Washington if necessary to further this object.

After an address by James Ward Warner a resolution was adopted approving the Stevens bill now before Congress, which said:

> Without such relief as this bill furnishes, the practice of issuing bills of lading in advance of the receipt of the property will tend to increase rather than diminish, and thus impair all confidence on the part of merchants, banks, and bankers in the bills of lading and eventually eliminate its use altogether as a means of securing loans and thereby cause confusion and congestion in the marketing of our various crops.

E. Pfarrius of the Produce Exchange urged closer cultivation by the farmer. He said that to regain our position as a grain exporting Nation the farm yields must be increased. He added:

"There is no reason why our farmers should not be able to increase the wheat yield to twenty-five bushels per acre, which on the present area under cultivation would give us more than a billion bushels a year."

Frank D. La Lanne, President of the National Board of Trade of Philadelphia, urged the passage of a currency bill that would meet requirements, and a plea to improve methods of distributing seed to farmers was made by M. Cochrane, President of the St. Louis Merchants' Exchange.

INTERBOROUGH HAS BIG GAIN IN PROFITS

Its Net Operating Revenue Totals $17,974,505, an Increase of $2,197,554 Over Last Year.

562,788,395 PASSENGERS

Of Which the Biggest Increase Was In Subway Travel—Much Saved by Cutting Expenses.

The annual report of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company for the year ended June 30, 1910, was made public yesterday, showing, as foreshadowed in the figures made public from time to time by the Public Service Commission, a substantial increase in revenues.

Gross operating revenues were $28,987,647, an increase of 9.28 per cent. over those of the previous year, while operating expenses increased only $265,609; to $11,013,142, or 2.47 per cent. The net operating revenue totaled $17,974,505, an increase of $2,197,554, or 13.98 per cent., over that of the previous year.

Reductions in taxes through legal decisions favorable to the company on disputed points helped to a very considerable saving, and the taxes for the year totaled $1,750,421, which was 2.74 per cent less than in the previous year, leaving income from operation at $16,224,083, a gain over last year of 16.07 per cent.

The item of non-operating income, although small in proportion to total income, was materially reduced during the year, largely by reason of the policy put in force at the beginning of the year of not crediting to income account the interest on advances made for the construction of the Belmont Tunnel. Non-operating income showed a reduction of 58.97 per cent., and totaled $411,024, making the gross income $16,635,107, a gain of 11.06 per cent.

After all deductions from income, which increased 1.58 per cent., to $10,552,960, had been made, the net corporate income was $6,082,147. This is an increase of $1,492,323, or 32.51 per cent., over last year's net corporate income. The gain in corporate income was due to an increase in the Subway division, amounting to $630,673, or 15.72 per cent., and on the Manhattan Railway division of $861,649, or 148.63 per cent. The surplus over the 9 per cent. dividends totaled $2,932,147 for the year, or 103.64 per cent. more than in the previous year.

The number of passengers carried increased 9.35 per cent., to 562,788,395. Of the increase in passenger traffic the Subway had the lion's share, that division carrying 30,531,969 more people than in the previous year, an increase of 12.81 per cent. The elevated lines traffic increased by 17,576,084 passengers, or 6.36 per cent. more than in the previous year.

In the expenses of the company a considerable saving was brought about by reductions in general office salaries and law expenses, which reduced by $117,137 the annual administrative expenses, leaving the item of "general expenses" at $117,137.

The stockholders are told in detail in President Shonts's report of the various moves in the new subway negotiations with the Public Service Commission.

SEATS AT BELMONT PARK.

Grand Stand to Accommodate 5,000 Additional Spectators for Air Meet.

Five thousand additional seats will be added to the grand stand at Belmont Park to accommodate the crowds expected there during the international aviation tournament Oct. 22 to Oct. 30. A large force of carpenters and engineers began work there yesterday remodeling the structure. It is believed by the managers of the tournament that the handling of the crowds is to be their most serious problem, and Allan A. Ryan, Chairman of the Committee on Arrangements, said last night that everything would be done for the comfort and convenience of spectators. Applications for seats and parking space are coming in from all parts of the country. The indications are that most of the boxes for the special days will be sold before the gates are open.

The Board of Governors of the Aero Club of America yesterday gave their official sanction to the international meeting and cablegrams were sent to the club's foreign representatives assuring them that the meeting is certain to be a success.

WOMAN RESCUED FROM RIVER

New York Yacht Club Launch Reaches Her Just as She Is Sinking.

In an effort to end her life, Mrs. Nora Coffey jumped into the East River from the recreation pier at the foot of East Twenty-fourth Street last evening. The quick work of a watchman and the crew of one of the New York Yacht Club's launches saved her. The watchman, Peter Annestede, saw her jump, and he threw a life preserver within her reach. She clutched it, but in a minute let go. She was sinking when William H. Edwards reached her in the launch, which he runs for the New York Yacht Club.

Dr. Baker of Bellevue revived her. She was made a prisoner on the charge of attempted suicide and then removed to the hospital. She said her home was at 344 East Twenty-econd Street and that she had felt great anxiety because of the illness of her children.

After she had recovered from the shock incidental to the submersion, Mrs. Coffey's three-month-old infant was brought to the hospital and given into her care, as the infant is being nursed. Mrs. Coffey has had nine children, and five are living. The hospital surgeons said the woman seemed to have gone through some great nervous strain.

POLAR BEAR STILL UGLY.

Confinement Irksome to Silver King, Who Resents Visitors.

Silver King, the big polar bear which was lassoed by Paul J. Rainey in the arctic regions and presented to the Bronx Zoological Park by him and Harry Whitney, his fellow-sportsman, is not at all content with his new surroundings. Yesterday he voiced his displeasure in unmistakable terms and the zoo resounded with his roaring.

The sight of the crowds seemed especially to irritate Silver King, and many times he lunged against the bars trying to get at those who watched him. Although it was a pay day at the park, hundreds of visitors went to the zoo especially to see the polar bear, and many were regaled by the keepers with the story of his capture.

The zoo officials said that in a week or two Silver King's bad temper will disappear, and that, like most other wild animals in captivity, he will decide to make the best of his lot.

Famed for a flavor even more delicious than its fragrance.

DRESSMAKERS IN TROUBLE.

One Arrested for Dodging Customs and Two Others Must Explain.

Three women passengers arriving on steamships in this country last Saturday got into difficulties with the customs officers on account of undeclared goods and were called upon for explanations yesterday. In two of the cases the goods were seized and the passengers not detained, but Miss Ida M. Smith of the dressmaking firm of Smith & Kelly, 562 Fifth Avenue, after a hearing before Special Deputy Surveyor Smyth, was arrested, charged with attempting to avoid the customs duties.

According to Mr. Smyth Miss Smith brought in model gowns valued at about $1,100 without declaring them when she arrived on the Amerika on Saturday. It was also said that some pieces of embroidery were found concealed beneath the skirts of the dressmaker by a woman Inspector.

According to the Deputy Surveyor Miss Smith offered no defense when she was confronted with the bills for her Paris purchases, but admitted that she had taken a chance of getting through without paying the necessary duty. She was paroled in the custody of her attorney, James J. Fitzgerald of 2 Rector Street, to appear before United States Commissioner Russ in Hoboken to-morrow. Her baggage was ordered seized. It was said at the Custom House that the criminal charge against her would be prosecuted because of the desire of the officials to break up the practice of defrauding the Government on the part of dressmakers.

Mr. Smyth also had summoned before him Miss D. A. Holston, a dressmaker of 10 East Thirty-eighth Street, and Mrs. Theresa Forster of 587 Knickerbocker Avenue, Brooklyn. A Parisian model gown admitted by the first-named to have been brought for use in her establishment here, was sent to the Appraisers' Stores for valuation, and three pieces of dress goods sewed up in a steamer rug belonging to the latter were seized.

Mrs. Forster explained to the Deputy Surveyor that she had no intention of defrauding the customs, but had taken the advice of fellow-passengers that it was not necessary to declare articles for personal use. She said her mother had sewed the dress goods in the rug in Germany to provide her with a warmer traveling rug.

VINEGAR TO RESTORE SIGHT.

Hypnotic "Doctor" Held on Charges of Medical Society Sleuth.

Charged with practicing medicine without a license Domenico Gherardi of 343 East 118th Street, who describes himself as a doctor of mesmerism and hypnotism, was held for examination yesterday by Magistrate O'Connor in the Harlem Court. He was arrested on complaint of Detective Helen Holmes of the County Medical Society.

Miss Holmes said that on Aug. 3 she, with James Vincent, another employe of the society, visited Gherardi's home. Vincent said his wife had lost a diamond ring and wanted Gherardi to assist him in recovering it. Gherardi, according to Miss Holmes, replied that he was a doctor of mesmerism and hypnotism, and did not find missing rings.

Miss Holmes wears glasses, and she said Gherardi told her he could restore her sight and also cure insomnia, with which she said she suffered. He told her, she said, to take off her glasses, and he then made strange gesticulations and muttered:

"Sleep! Sleep! Go to sleep!"

Miss Holmes said she pretended to sleep, but watched Gherardi, who wet a towel with vinegar and water, laid it on her eyes, and blew his breath on it. Miss Holmes declared he then shouted:

"Wake up! Wake up! I command thee to awake!"

Miss Holmes roused herself and then, she said, Gherardi demanded $10 for the treatment. She told him she was a poor woman, so, she said, Gherardi offered to take $2, which she paid him.

STEAMERS TO BRUNSWICK, GA.

Clyde Line Establishes a Daily Service to That Port.

For what is said to be the first time a daily steamship service between here and points south of Hatteras is to be started this week. Such was the information given in an announcement sent out yesterday by the Clyde Line, which purposes inaugurating such a service on Thursday with the sailing from here of the Algonquin for Brunswick, Ga.

This has been brought about as the recent taking over by the Texas City Steamship Company of the Brunswick Steamship Company, a freight line, according to the announcement, which left the Port of Brunswick open, whereupon the Clyde Line decided to establish a service to that point.

Besides the Algonquin there will be put on the Brunswick run the steamships Sabine and Rio Grande. The Clyde Line for years has been sending vessels between here and Charleston, S. C., and Jacksonville, Fla., and it was an easy matter to arrange dates of sailing from here so that, with the exception of Sundays, the line would have a vessel leaving every day.

With the service into Brunswick the Clyde Line claims entrance into practically all of the larger ports of the States on the Atlantic, with the exception of Savannah and Baltimore.

FALLING WALL KILLS AN EAST SIDE TAILOR

Two Also Injured When Front of East Houston Street Building Collapses.

MAN AND WOMAN IN BELLEVUE

Roof Was Being Raised to Add Another Story When Bricks Crash Down on Sidewalk Shelter.

While workmen were making alterations to the four-story building at 110 East Houston Street yesterday morning, the front wall from the fourth-story windows to the roof buckled and fell to the street. The timber sidewalk shelter on which the bricks fell, collapsed and two men and a woman were buried in the débris. One of the men was killed.

The man who died was Valentine Kline, a tailor, of 319 East Eighty-eighth Street. The injured were Mary Kopitzky, an elderly woman, and William O'Brien, a dishwasher, who lives at 358 Bowery. They were removed to Bellevue Hospital, cut about the face and arms, with possible skull fractures.

The ground floor of the building is occupied by the Handelsman Cigar Manufacturing Company. Henry Handelsman of 178 Second Avenue, a member of the firm, recently bought the property from Miss D. G. Richardson, and he was having added a fifth story.

Twenty men began work yesterday under Joseph Freeman of 70 West 113th Street, a contractor. They had lifted the roof on jacks, when the front wall bulged and crashed down on the wooden covered way. This was built of heavy timber, designed to protect passers from falling objects, but it was not strong enough to withstand the load of brick. It gave way, burying the three persons.

Patrolman Schiedler saw the wall swaying, and shouted an alarm, but too late to warn those who were in danger. Schiedler called several city employes who were working on a gas main half way down the block, and they formed an impromptu rescue gang.

Kline was still alive when taken from the débris, but he died a few moments later on the steps of St. Augustine's Chapel across the street. The injured were taken to the hospital by Dr. Byrne. At the hospital it was said they were not seriously hurt.

Freeman, the contractor, who was also injured about the shoulders, was arrested on a charge of criminal negligence. Workmen who were on the roof were unhurt, for though it tilted slightly, it was not enough to cause them to slide off.

The building long belonged to the estate of "Spite-house" Richardson, and only recently was sold. A neighborhood panic followed the crash, but the reserves from the Fifth Street Station quelled the excitement, and three men were left to warn folk from the danger zone.

TRAPPED BY A DECOY LETTER.

Post Office Clerk Accused of Rifling Registered Mail.

After pawning about $1,200 worth of jewelry in this city on Sept. 8, Mrs. G. E. Upjohn, who lives in New Jersey, mailed the pawn tickets to herself by registered mail to insure their safe arrival at her home. They never got there. When she complained to W. W. Dixon, Chief Inspector of the Post Office, she learned that hers was but one of a number of similar complaints made recently.

Yesterday evening, according to Inspector Dixon, Inspectors James and Jacobs sent a decoy letter containing $8 through the hands of Samuel D. Singer of 568 Prospect Avenue, the Bronx, a clerk in the Hudson Terminal Station of the Post Office. A few minutes later, they say, they arrested and searched him and found the letter in his pocket, as well as a pawn ticket for a diamond sunburst and three trunk checks recently lost in a registered letter addressed to Raleigh, N. C.

According to the Inspectors, Singer confessed that he had rifled the letter sent by Mrs. Upjohn, later redeeming the jewelry and repawning the sunburst. A bracelet and gold chain which had belonged to her were recovered at his home. When arrested he had $83 in his pockets and a wallet containing $135. He will be arraigned before United States Commissioner Alexander this morning on a charge of rifling the mails.

NOT GUILTY, SAYS O'BRIEN.

Trial of Acting Inspector Who Failed to Clean Up Coney Goes Over a Week.

Police Capt. John J. O'Brien, who recently was removed from the Macdougal Street Station on charges, was at Police Headquarters yesterday when his trial was called by Deputy Police Commissioner John J. Walsh. O'Brien pleaded not guilty, and at his request the trial was adjourned until next Monday, to give him an opportunity to engage counsel.

The charges against O'Brien grew out of acts he is alleged to have committed while Inspector in charge of Coney Island. The evidence was gathered by agents of Commissioner of Accounts Fosdick, by order of Acting Mayor Mitchel, and the charges include failure to suppress disorderly resorts and making a false report as to conditions at Coney Island.
